UNIFYING THREE FIGHTING ARMS

The strategic and tactical similarity between modern land and air warfare and disparity between land and air sea, presents a strong argument for unification of all three arms under a single head.

The closer co-ordination and more efficient utilization of available weapons which such unification would accomplish, become increasingly apparent as the war progresses.

When men first began to fight on the seas, they logically applied the same strategic and tactical principles which they had discovered to be most effective for land fighting — such as concentration of inferior lines, the attack from the flank, and the like.

The largest warships, called line of battle ships, were at once the backbone and front-line striking force of the fleet. Smaller and less heavily armed ships were used for scouting and carrying purposes, but during major clashes they were held in the rear until the opposing battle lines were engaged.

In modern times, as a result of the development of such weapons as aircraft, mines, and torpedoes, the line of battle ships — the dreadnaughts — are held back and become the last to engage the enemy. Aircraft, cruisers, destroyers and submarines are the first to enter the battle.

However, except for this reversal of procedure, the tactics used in sea battle still are essentially the same as in ancient times.

The similarity of these tactics to land warfare has been demonstrated strikingly in the flat North African desert and in Russia where opposing armies, lacking natural protection on level terrains, must depend their strength in much the same manner as opposing fleets.

The great tanks, heavily armored, carrying powerful guns, have become the dreadnaughts of land warfare, providing the initial striking punch in the same manner as did the line of battle ships in ancient times. Then come automotive artillery, jeeps with light guns and motorized infantry which can be shunted quickly from one zone to another as the need arises.

Mining has become equally important both on and land and at sea, forcing opposing forces to send light probing and sweeping units in advance of their heavy weapons.

Aircraft is employed similarly both on land and sea, as a canopy of protection for tanks, trucks, and heavy warships, to harry enemy infantry or small vessels, and to attack and destroy enemy warships at sea and enemy tanks on land.

Heavy bombers like battleships and big tanks, must be escorted. Fighter planes are used to drive off enemy attacks in the same manner that cruisers are used to shield line of battle ships from submarines and mines.

There are indications that tanks, which already have grown from 10 or 20 tons to as large as 80 tons, will follow the battleship pattern, and continue to grow, perhaps into hundreds of tons, with six-inch guns, or bigger.

Thus, though there are vast differences in quantity and quality between air, it becomes apparent that tactical use of all varieties of the weapons of war is becoming increasingly similar. Logically, it would seem that the patterns of the forces which apply them must merge into one.

MICA FOR MUNITIONS

Before the war Canada worried very little about producing mica. A little was mined in this country, but India, Madagascar and Ceylon supplied most of Canada's needs. Then the source of supply was cut off, and we looked to our own rocks for this urgent war material.

Justin Purdy stumbled on a large crystal of mica in the bush near the village of Eau Claire, Ontario, late in 1941. He and some friends decided to mine it. They received the phenomenal sum of $13,000 for the mica which came from one ten foot hole. This discovery inaugurated a veritable "mica rush" with the staking of dozens of claims surrounding Purdy's property. The Inspiration Mining and Development Company later consolidated several different properties to form the Purdy Mica Mines Limited.

White mica, muscovite, occurs in the rock as "books" varying in size from less than one inch to over six feet across. This find has been invaluable to Canada and the United States. Muscovite, an excellent electrical and heat insulator, is in great demand now for use in all manner of radio parts for the manufacture of airplane spark plugs. Great quantities of the best kind are needed.

Mattawa a French-Canadian town about forty miles east of North Bay, is the grading and shipping centre for the East Crosby deposits. Canada's chief source of strategic mica. The Royal Ontario Museum has been able to secure a sheet from one of the very large "books" in the district. It is perhaps the largest sheet of mica on display in any museum.

REMARKABLE FAITHFULNESS OF AN ENGLISH DOG

The faithfulness of a dog is remarkable, knowing, as it does, no bounds and accepting no rules. When a blind man of more than eighty years of age was taken into hospital, in England, recently, for a serious eye surgery operation, a little cocker spaniel dog came with him, and refused to leave his master's bedside. He was told that his master was faithful, and after many vain attempts to coax him away the surgeon decided that the dog should go with his beloved master into the operating theatre.

While the operation was, over the dog came back into the ward and climbed on the bed to watch over the old man. This, of course, is not all hospital rules, and so the Soldiers' Welfare League was asked for, and eventually the faithful worker was taken to a Home, to wait for until his master should join him.

The Late Mrs. William W. Baird

Following an illness of several months, the death occurred at her home in North Fredericksburgh, on Thursday, March 18th, of Mrs. William W. Baird, a well-known resident of the Anderson district.

Mrs. Baird had lived all her life in North Fredericksburgh Township. She was a daughter of the late Asa H. Wagar and Nancy Huffman and was born about 66 years ago at the Pines, about three miles from Napanee, on the River Road. Since her marriage she had lived in the Anderson district and for many years was an active worker in Anderson United Church.

She is survived by her husband, two sons, Samuel at home and Lawrence at Morven, and two granddaughters, Frances and Doris. She also leaves three sisters, Mrs. J. P. Mellor, Gretna; Mrs. Newton Parks, Hay Bay, and Mrs. Samuel McNeil, Toronto.

Her funeral, which was conducted at her late home on Sunday afternoon, at 2 p.m., A. C. McMillan was attended by a large number of friends and relatives. Following the service her body was placed in Riverside Cemetery vault to await burial at a later date.

The pallbearers were Messrs. Allan C. Bishop, Bert Ford, Reginald Griffith, Bruce Parks, James Homsby and Fred Chambers.

YIM, VIGOR, VITAMINS AND YOUR VICTORY VEGE-TABLE GARDEN

Hello Homemakers ! When a Canadian digs his sunny back yard to plant a vegetable garden, he is only doing what the British found necessary long ago in this war. Both Dominion and Provincial governments are urging us to grow vegetables. Labour shortages on farms, the necessity for canning commercial crops for the Armed Forces, curtailed deliveries — these may mean a shortage in the quantity of fresh vegetables available. So more and more home gardens are needed this year and YOUR garden is a valuable help.

But you'll want to grow some vegetables anyway for the good eating and for the economy. Fresh and exercise you get from it. Growing your own will save trips to market — your food budget, too. Picking vegetables straight from garden to table are better, because the fresher the vegetables the higher the Vitamin values. Green vegetables — rich in vitamins and minerals—mean health for everyone.

In wartime, we cannot afford to experiment, so sketch your plot on paper; keep a chart of kinds of vegetables, dates for planting and harvesting. Carrots, chard, beans and tomatoes might be your first choice. You can get advice on soil preparation, fertilizers and insect control from the Department of Agriculture. This is a year to grow food for fitness — start planning YOUR Victory garden to-day.

TAKE A TIP

1 Draw your garden on paper, to scale; send off orders for fertilizers and insecticides; repair tools and paint to do as much as you can.

2 If you've never germinated seeds in a cold frame before — do not experiment this year. Seeds are precious.

3 Even a 7 by 12 foot vegetable garden of greens will help this year. Curb your "fever" to start too large a garden, if you haven't had experience.

4 Vegetables require sunshine at least three-quarters of the day, so don't plant in the shade.

5 The loam should be at least six inches deep and workable. Gravel or stony soil is a handicap.

6 Choose the right seed for your purpose — early or late varieties, those suitable for storage or canning — also amount of seed needed for your plot.

Potato Soup (Cottage Style)

Four cups milk, four slices of onion, one and one-half cups of riced potatoes, two tablespoons baking fat, two tablespoons flour, one and one-half teaspoons salt, few grains cayenne, inch pieces of cooked sausages.

Baked Bean Cakes

Two cups baked beans, half-cup boiled dressing, one cup chopped celery.

Mix beans, celery and salad dressing well. Serve on cabbage or lettuce leaf.

Good Bread and Butter Pudding

Two cups bread crumbs, raisins or figs, four cups milk, one-third cup brown sugar, half-teaspoon salt, half-teaspoon caramel flavouring, two tablespoons butter.

THE QUESTION BOX

Mrs. J. D. W. suggests: For a nut-tiness in flavour, an added health and energy value, a pleasing crunch-iness; in a recipe that calls for two cups of flour, use three-quarters cup bran and one and one-half cups flour.

ANNE ALLAN invites you to write to her in care of The Napanee Beaver. Send in your questions on homemaking problems and watch the column for replies.

LETTERS FROM NICKEY

THE STORY OF LIFE IN THE C.W.A.C.

Dear Babs:

Time marches on and here I am again. I have been hard at work preparing the mess bills, but I will be back long enough to write you a quickie. I can solve my conscience by working overtime to-morrow.

The end of this course here at Kemptville is near at hand and in a few days all the candidates will be gone. I will be sorry to see them go; they are nice boys and I have made some pleasant acquaintances and contacts at our weekly dances.

I must tell you about these parties; everybody has such a good time. They are held in the Assembly Hall of the Administration Building and are organized by our social committee which arranges for refreshments, prizes and a special entertainment.

Sometimes we have a quint contest with a team of C.W.A.C. contesting against a team of candidates. This is always fun; we cheer our respective teams while and the rivalry is intense. Usually the M. C. has to make sternly that prompting from the side lines ceases. Or again, we have a spot dance with a prize for the couple who step nearest the chosen spot and usually sometime in the evening play musical chairs.

Then we like a couple of novelty dances such as the Lambeth Walk and Coming, Turu' the Rive'. Here are always a few waltzes and some fast numbers for the jitterbugs. As our announcement says, "Entertainment for Everybody." Yes, I am going to be very sorry to see this course finish and leave. When the next course arrives, like at the school will be an old story to me and I don't suppose I will feel that first enthusiasm. In the interval between courses I expect the big balls will seem quite slowly — empty and echoing — after all the bustle and hustle. Well I shall be able to draw a long breath and set the Mess Officer in order. I have some wonderful plans for future offerings that I have been saving for a quiet time to put into effect.

One of the lecture periods has been changed and the officers are pouring into the Mess for a fifteen minute break and a smoke. I can sit no longer in concentration as they pass in the hall . . . the aroma of an adjutant according to routine order . . . procedure . . . discharge . . . and so on. Creativity! There is much good-natured chaffing, but with a serious undertone, say, they are very businesslike. I feel a twinge of sympathy. I recall examination time at school. I'll smarten up, Majors, captains . . . and lieutenants . . . all are under the spell. I'll dip into the biz classrooms, but it will be a very sound plan. Rubbing shoulders there is more to be a mind interchange of ideas and I will get a broader view of specialists in one line or another, give my mind exercise and keep fresh. I'll say they are very refreshing. Then I can get through brushing-up and return to the mess a better officer. Yes, I am convinced that I am pulling my weight. It's a grand feeling! There I go again! I'll please myself and then you will feel the same in your turn. I say it — that's the only difference . . .

I love the atmosphere of surplus life and gaiety. The officers are bringing with them their hearty enjoyment of recreation" and their boundless enthusiasm for their work. I like nothing better than hearing an adjutant from Halifax telling an adjutant from Vancouver "how we do it down in the Maritimes" or vice versa. During the day other officers frequently drop in to confer with the Mess Secretary and, hearing their ranging discussions, I feel so close to the military machine that I can hear it ticking — an exhilarating sensation !

I am looking forward to going home for a long weekend within a few days. Oh joy — I anticipate being spoiled within an inch of my life. Mother will breakfast in bed — if I wheedle. This will be the first time the family has seen me in uniform and I expect to be taken for quite a ride. They call me the "generalissimo" you know, but if I know my dad, there will be an unbridling note of pride in his raging. I am counting the days until I pack my haversack, give my buttons the most furious shellacking they have yet experienced and board the train for home. Bet I think I will have lots of news when next I write.

Love as always,
NICKEY

REPAIRING FLOOR COVERINGS

In all our homes, floor coverings as well as other things, will have to do a little extra duty during the war, but this does not mean that our homes need look shabby. What it does mean is that as soon as repairs become necessary they must be tackled right away. By doing this you will find it easy to make everything last just a little longer.

Linoleum often begins to look shabby because the design has worn off where some of the mats were. Now there are two things you can do to make it look attractive. One is to paint the design by repeated washing with very strong water — when you have a plain linoleum which can be polished — or you can paint over the linoleum with paint made for this particular purpose.

Should you have the misfortune to damage some of your linoleum accidentally, it should be wrapped round in one particular piece, if it can be repaired invisibly if you are fortunate enough to have some of the scraps of the same linoleum with which to patch it up.

To do a repair of this kind, slip the new pieces of linoleum underneath, seeing that they cover the patch fits in with the design on the linoleum around it. Take a ruler and chalk out a square, or oblong all around the damaged part. Then using a special linoleum knife and working through the top linoleum and the patch, all at the same time, cut out both the patch pieces, discard the piece with the hole and fit in the patch. Fix down the patch, and with linoleum cement fix down the edges. Should the whole of the linoleum can be painted — then it is only nobody will realize that the linoleum on the floor is made up of odd pieces.

Another household repair which you will probably like to know about is the re-webbing of a chair. If the strands have worn, it gives way and the springs of the chair may get out of place, and the seat becomes uncomfortable and unsightly. When this happens turn the chair upside down, and take off the webbing which covers the bottom. Then take off the old webbing — not only the pieces which are broken — and remove the tacks. The strips must be tacked at one side, stretched across to the other side and tightly, and tacked down. Interlace these webbing strips as you work. When you have put on the last strip, depress the springs down under the webbing and fix them in position, using a packing needle and fine twine for this.

You'll find all these repairs quite simple to do, and they can be tackled with confidence by any housewife.

Your completed application form is to be sent to your Local Ration Board by Estimates based on these methods are within the canning sugar ration, and the amounts are satisfactory for wartime canning and jam and jelly making, as proven by test in the Dominion Department of Agriculture experimental kitchens.

JAM or JELLY MAKING

Allow 1½ lbs. of sugar for each quart of jam or jelly.

Most people use jars of various shapes and sizes. Take a number of the jars you usually use and see how many cupfuls of water they hold. Four (4) cups make a quart. In this way you will be able to estimate the number of quarts of jam or jelly your jars will hold. Then allow 1½ lbs. of sugar per quart for your requirements. For example, for 8 quarts of jam or jelly you will require 12 lbs. of sugar.

IMPORTANT NOTE

The Dominion Department of Agriculture recommends canning fruit in preference to making jams or jelly because:

More fruit can be put up with less sugar and at less cost.

Canned fruit retains more of the vitamin value of the fresh fruit.

WHEN AND HOW CANNING SUGAR WILL BE MADE AVAILABLE

When your Local Ration Board has reviewed your application you will be provided, sometime before June 1st, with special canning sugar coupons. These coupons will entitle you to buy sugar, at any grocery store, at specified intervals. You do not have to buy all your sugar at once.

COMPLETE AND SEND IN YOUR APPLICATION BEFORE APRIL 15

Complete your application form as shown in the illustration and mail it to your Local Ration Board not later than April 15th. Attach the application forms from the ration books of the other persons you will be feeding in your household. Do not write anything but the serial numbers of the sugars on these other forms. Simply copy the serial numbers from the front of their ration books on to their application forms and clip them to your own fully completed application.

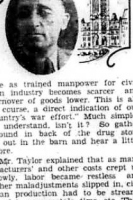
WRITTEN SPECIALLY FOR THE WEEKLY NEWSPAPERS OF CANADA

by JIM GREENHILL Editor of the $1M SWIFT CURRENT SASKATCHEWAN



THE ECONOMIC OUTLOOK

"Price ceiling, squeeze, control," That all sounded brackish and puzzling to me. Most likely it does to you. So I talked with Economist Kenneth W. Taylor, secretary of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, seated in his ordinary looking office, and me gazing directly out at the Peace Tower on Parliament Hill. (Since this article was first written, Mr. Taylor has been appointed Food-Administrator as successor to Hon. J. G. Taggart.)

I had learned the day before about the necessity of a check on strong inflationary forces which are inevitable in wartime; that from August 1st, 1939, to April 1st, 1941, our cost of living index had risen from 100 to 107.7, due to depression of the Canadian dollar, higher taxation, increase in hitherto low farm prices; that Canada had put a ceiling price on goods and services, on wage increases and introduced the cost of living bonus, and that, as a result, from November 1st, 1941, to November 1st, 1942, our index only rose 2.3 points, from 115.4 to 117.7, while in the same period in the United States it had jumped 9.7 points. And in the last war with only a quarter of the present resources devoted to production of war materials the Canadian index bopped up 20.1 points.

Out of a maze of information I give you merely these few: mainly figures, because I like statistics; they sometimes frighten the ordinary man.

Here's something with interest you. Out of a normal consumption annually of 500,000 tons of sugar we imported 400,000, growing the difference in Canada, half of it, in Alberta. With shipping acute Canada agreed through British-American arrangement to forego enough sugar to save 100,000 tons of shipping yearly; later things became worse and we agreed to lop off another 50,000 of shipping space. That's why, folks, you're getting less sugar. Of course we could grow more in Alberta, say; it's a profitable crop, but remember freight rate costs and suppose you had to move it out to Winnipeg you would have to meet a normally lower price structure. Could be done, naturally, but only by use of heavy subsidies.

Well, how about coffee? The difference in consumption with us would be saving two shiploads only, but with the Americans, who consume more, it would amount to 40 shiploads saving, but then the board feels we cannot treat our consumers any better than the American.

Then I hitched up my galluses, started asking about agricultural prices and problems, and Mr. Taylor opined there was plenty of difficulty in reconciling beef, butter, whole milk products, etc. Well, how about beer? They were going to be sold with three alternatives because the American people "run away fast." They could either hold rigidly to the price ceiling, which meant that most of the stuff would go to the U.S.A. with very little left for the Canadian housewife; the price could be put up to the American level, which means the ceiling would break down; or — and this they decided to do — hold the price in Canada and control exports. The price was put up a little, too, at the same time.

He admitted frankly there was a difference of opinion "within" for a while and it got a little out of hand, but, "remember," the western cattle growers will probably get in 1943 the best average price since 1920."

Food Demands Strain Resources

Generally the demand for food is straining our resources, he pointed out; there is a heavier demand overseas; the United States is sending more to Russia, less to Britain; all our salmon pack is going to the Mother Country, besides milk products, canned meats and what not. And on top of it all agriculture has a labor problem.

We came back to meat for a minute and he explained that our beef shortage in the east is relative — not basic — as compared to the west. The industrial eastern workingman is making more money, eating more meat; wants it. The aftermath of the boom. And on top of it all agriculture has a labor problem.

"Total war, he holds, is not achieved until all resources not necessary to satisfy the minimum of essential needs of the civilian population are devoted to war production. He argues that we must accept this all in the proper spirit, because strong inflationary forces tend to produce stronger deflationary trends when the countries economy is reconverted to peacetime production. It would bring mass unemployment, much less demand for farm products and low price levels. And, "the serious problem of post-war will not all be eliminated by prevention of inflation, but it will certainly facilitate the solutions and help stop and prolonged post-war depression."

I hope you're not weary of pondering economics. There's something brighter coming next week, I hope.

A. W. MILLIGAN, ENTERPRISE, CELEBRATES 76TH ANNIVERSARY OF BIRTH

Mr. Alfred Milligan was born in the Moscow district on March 14th, 1867. He is the son of Horace Milligan and Eliza Jane Amey. He had three brothers and one sister, all of whom are now dead.

Mr. Milligan was a very successful farmer in the Moscow and Centreville districts until he retired to Napanee a few years ago. Since then he has carried on the work of the Massey-Harris agency. For a few years he was a dealer in flour and feeds. He married Edith Wagar about fifty-six years ago. A few years after her death in 1903, he married Mary Jane Bloor, who died a year ago. He has one son, Roy, and two daughters, Mrs. S. McLean and Mrs. G. McKeown.

He has a very good memory and is in fair health. A few weeks ago he had the misfortune to fall on the ice and break two ribs but he has almost recovered now. He is a devoted member and supporter of The United Church, of which he is now an elder. He has been a steward in the church for almost forty years, and recording steward for almost twenty-eight.

He accepted an invitation to dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. Vannest on his birthday. A birthday supper was secretly planned at his home by his granddaughter and Mrs. W. Coulter. The guests to supper were Rev. and Mrs. H. E. Prair, and Mr. and Mrs. D. Walker. She enjoyed helping to light the several candles on his birthday cake, attending the evening church service, he was again surprised when a number of his friends and neighbors called to wish him many happy returns of the day.

Bethel School Pupils Write Poems About The War Effort

The following two poems written by pupils of School Section No. 7, Camden (Bethel) were sent to The Beaver by the teacher of the school Mary F. Hinds:

I am very glad to let you know
That we've been running a mighty big show
To helping the war.
We have bought so many War Savings stamps
That our poor tongues take the most painful cramps
From licking each single one
Eight dollars we gave to the Russian Fund
To guard those poor people against the Hun.
And help them fight
We also builded two war-work quilts
To help to drive to the very hills.
The swords into Hitler's guts.
We raffled one quilt and made heaps of money
Half went to the Red Cross to help some poor sonny
In battle or in camp
To The Salvation Army the other half went.
Which was thirty dollars to the even cent.
Sixty being the total.
We are also planning a Victory Sale
The money from which will make Hitler wail.
In his bomb-stormed country.
We sincerely hope that you all will buy.
So fewer of our dear soldiers will die
Fighting for Victory.
We buys our pupils are faithful too.
To our dear flag, the red, white and blue—
That high flying banner.
And we're all a-marching, hand-in-hand
With our near neighbour Old Uncle Sam.
To wipe out the Axis.
We've also been reading so many books
On how to us this great war looks.
Far over the sea from here
And many a daily news commentator
Paints pictures to us even ten times clearer.
Over our radios.
But if we keep a true, stout heart
And from each effort do not part
In this great struggle.
We'll shape those leaders from their realms.
Our noules then will take the helms
To stand on our peace
Original poem by Jack Robinson, age 13,
Grade VIII. S. S. No. 7. Camden (Bethel.

We do a little war work
To help our fighting men—
We knit, we sew, we never shirk.
And in our class we number ten.
We made a pretty tulip quilt
We raised a lot of money
We worked so hard, but then we built
A quil; that was a honey.
We also help to do our bit
By working in our leisure
To give the Huns another hit.
And soon restore our pleasure
And to worry the Axis a little more
We buy War Savings Stamps.
We have bought a lot and we'll buy still more
To return our boys from the prison camps.
We try to gather all the scrap
That we know how to find.
To reach the enemy in a trap
Behind the firing line.
The Junior Red Cross we have joined
Their help the boys will welcome.
The work of the Red Cross is the kind
That all of us ought to help some.
Now don't you think we little ones
Have quite well done our share.
To keep our sturdy fighting sons
All tuned up, over there.

Fern Allen, age 42,
Grade VII. S. S. No. 7. Camden (Bethel.

DORLAND

Dorland, March 20. The fields are quite bare of snow, but there are still banks along fences, and, with the ice in the roads, travelling is still a thrilling experience. The sleet storm on Tuesday covered everything with a thick coating of ice. Limbs were broken from trees, but on Friday evening the storm did not last as long and could become so heavy. Robins and killdeers have made their appearance in spite of all the cold and storms.

Another meeting of the U. E. L. Dorland Company was held on Thursday afternoon, when the Building Committee presented their report. It has been decided to build along much the same lines as formerly. Work of clearing away the debris has begun, and as soon as material can be got on the ground rebuilding will commence, with Mr. H. John in charge.

A few have their sugar bushes tapped. Others are waiting for more favorable weather.

Mr. W. J. McCrudden and Miss Jessie Gallagher have both been under the doctor's care, but are quite improved.

Mrs. Brown is seriously ill at the home of her daughter, Mrs. A. Allen.

By HYE BOSSIN

Hedy Lamarr hasn't done a stitch of work since early in January and won't until her employers let her pay her own income tax. The studio says it doesn't want to reduce her salary of $2,000 per week but wants to monkey with it in a way that will make sure that the beautiful refugee from Vienna won't earn more than the USA limit of $25,000 per year. In court, where the studio is seeking authority to make her end the glamorous abstentesim, Hedy said that she wants all her money so that she can have the pleasure of personally handing Uncle Sam his share. She claims the action of the studio ends their contract. The studio says they've advertised her in future pictures and must protect its investment.

Just proves that money is no guarantee against trouble.

Who do you think is the favorite male movie star of the British Navy? Not Gable or any of the slick derring-do boys but comedian Barry Fitzgerald, whom you'll see in Deanna Durbin's next, "The Amazing Mrs. Holiday." The sailors love him because he plays seamen in a real way. No wonder—he was a tar on a British merchantman before he went in for acting. He plays a sailor in the Durbin picture and will do it again in "Corvettes in Action," the story of the Canadian navy.

Little Norway, Canadian headquarters of the fighting Norwegian air force, was the scene of the world premiere of a splendid new film, "The Moon is Down," last week. Sir Cedric Hardwicke, who stars in it, was present, as were correspondents from many places in Canada and the USA. Right after the screening the USA Treasury Department program, "The Bombardon," devoted to the adventurous escapes of Norwegians headed for Canada, was broadcast. Sir Cedric and Lady Hardwicke appeared on it. Since the war Canada has been the favorite stamping ground of the movie industry outside the USA.

It seems that playing a soldier, sailor or flyer on the screen is a prelude to the real thing every time. Gable was at Britain on the screen before joining up. Richard Quine, a draftee in "For Me and My Gal," was called up after the picture. Richard Ney, following two military roles, is now in the army. Members 47th Bty (R) Try Qualification Tests at Belleville

On Sunday last twelve members of the local 47th Field Battery (R.) accompanied by the officers and instructors were in Belleville trying their practical tests for the qualification of Artillery Sergeants and Bombadiers.

The tests were taken at the Belleville Armouries under the supervision of Col. T.A. Williams, Capt. W. G. Howard and Lieut. Ecclesiastical Cadre, Sergt.-Majors Kent and Pinnook, from Headquarters at Kingston.

The examination included detailed questions on foot drill movements and proper positions, duties and details of gun crews, use of artillery instruments, such as dial sights, sight and field clinometers, map reading and protection against war gases, and treatment of casualties affected by gas.

The results of the tests will not be known for a couple of weeks but the local boys are anxiously awaiting the announcement of the results of their hard work during the past winter.

The word from Ottawa was the usual confirmation sent out six months following the first word received by the next of kin.

Mr. and Mrs. Roney were advised that a letter would be received by them with further details, and that their son's personal effects would be sent to them.

RENT REGULATIONS MUST BE OBSERVED

In the belief that many landlords may still remain unaware of this Regulation, Colonel Ponton, the regional Rentals Administration of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board points out, with the approach of the spring moving season, that wherever rooms, apartments, houses or other living accommodations are rented by the month, the landlord is required to file within 30 days a Form RC 40 to be obtained at any office of the Board with each change of tenant. Another copy of the form in question must be handed to the tenant.

Large numbers of these forms are being constantly received from landlords throughout Eastern Ontario. It is doubted, however, if every change of tenancy is recorded. In this connection, the administration draws attention to the fact that fines have been already imposed upon landlords who have neglected to observe this provision of the Wartime Leasehold Regulations, which applies to rooms rented by the month as well as to other accommodations.

SUGAR VOUCHERS TO BE DISTRIBUTED BY VOLUNTEERS

Another important piece of work which volunteers are doing in every community where a Local Ration Board is in existence.

This work is to be performed during the month of May in connection with the issue of canning sugar coupons to cover applications for such sugar which are being received by Local Ration Boards until April 15.

In place of the sugar purchase vouchers which were issued for this purpose last year, special canning sugar coupons will be given applicants this year and the distribution of these is to be carried out by volunteers who will be recruited by the Local Ration Boards.

Each sugar canning coupon will be good for the purchase of five pounds of sugar. It will be good on and after June 1st and will become void in the hands of the consumer on September 30th, although the official canning season will extend to November 30th. Should any canning sugar so obtained remain in the hands of the consumer on the latter date, it will have to be declared and coupons from the household ration books representing the amount of sugar declared will have to be surrendered.

It is emphasized by the Local Ration Board that extra sugar obtained for home canning must not be used for any other purpose, since special arrangements will have to be made to stock-pile canning supplies to meet home canning demand.

BRITISH ARMY MAKES IMPORTANT GAINS IN TUNISIAN BATTLE

British Enter Gabes and Still Pursue Nazis

WEDNESDAY —

Rommel's Africa Korps was reported to be almost surrounded by the British Eighth Army and General Patton's United States divisions. Allied bombers and fighter planes were aiding greatly in spreading confusion among the German troops.

Following four days of violent fighting the Russian Army was able to hurl back a strong German attack on the Moscow-Bryansk Railway. 7,000 prisoners were taken by the Russians.

In spite of stiffer resistance the Russians were able to continue their drive toward Smolensk.

On Monday night nearly 300 British and Canadian bombers attacked the St. Nazaire submarine base.

The R.A.F. continued non-stop attacks on Japanese positions in Burma.

So far in March the United States Air Force made 21 air attacks on Kiska Island in the Aleutians where the Japs were believed to be building an airfield.

THURSDAY —

Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons that Axis counter-attacks had largely erased the break in the Mareth Line in Tunisia made by the British Eighth Army. But war correspondent reports claimed the British had made a further break in the line.

The Russian Army took more territory from the Germans in its drive toward Smolensk. In the Caucasus the Russians renewed their offensive and captured a railroad centre. In the Belgorod sector, north of Kharkov, the Russians were also on the offensive against powerful German assaults which were beaten back with heavy losses.

In new operations about 150 miles northwest of Nanking the Chinese made substantial gains in attacks Sunday on Japanese positions.

The German Air Force attacked a northern English town and bombed a school killing twelve persons.

FRIDAY —

The Russian Army advanced toward Smolensk and captured another German stronghold and several more villages. Moscow claimed that Nazi attacks in the Belgorod-Chugnev sectors had collapsed.

The situation in the Mareth Line of Tunisia was somewhat obscure although the British Eighth Army appeared to be holding onto some of its gains on the seaward end. The United States Army, operating in the Maknassy area, made some local gains. Air activity was again on a large scale over the whole battle area.

Because of the Allied air offensive over Western Germany and France, German industrial production has been greatly reduced. Airplane production was said to be 20 per cent. lower and steel and coal 50 per cent. down.

SATURDAY —

Reports from Tunisia stated that the British Eighth Army had reversed its offensive and made further advances on the Mareth Line. Seventy miles northwest of the British positions, United States forces were battling to keep Rommel's flank pinned to the coast and kept up their threat to his escape corridor.

Russian troops beating against Smolensk's outer defences, wiped out a German garrison at one strongh old and captured another. The Russians also held firm against Nazi counter-assaults on the Donets River front near Kharkov.

General deGaulle pledged that he and General Giraud will ensure a fighting union of all French forces and end all disunity among the two French groups.

MONDAY —

On Saturday night Berlin was subjected to its heaviest air raid of the war. A large force of R. A. F. and R.C.A.F. planes dropped 900 tons of high explosives and thousands of incendiaries on the city. On Sunday Rouen and Rotterdam were also bombed by British and United States planes.

Allied forces during the week-end opened what is considered the final offensive in Tunisia with attacks along the whole front from Biserte to Mareth and the results to-date were reported very satisfactory.

With the opening up of spring in Russia the Nazi Donets Basin offensive and the Allied drive toward Smolensk were practically at a standstill during the week end.

RECREATION ROOM IN TRINITY CHURCH

During the past week a new recreation room was opened in the dining hall of Trinity United Church, and already it is being used by the young people of the church and some of the older members, too.

Provision is being made for games suitable for all ages and a corner has been arranged with a desk and chairs for letter writing and reading.

The approach or equipping the recreation room have been provided by the Women's Association and by members of the congregation who are interested in providing a place for young people to meet and spend their leisure time.

The facilities of the room are also available to members of the armed forces who wish to use it.

The supervision of the recreation room will be the responsibility of members of the congregation, who will be asked to devote an occasional evening for the purpose.

Some interested members of the church are discussing the possibility of turning the church yard, west of the building, into a bowling green, this summer, but as yet no definite plans have been formulated.

No Ammunition For The Casual Hunters

Casual hunters are out-of-luck for ammunition unless they can show special circumstances placing them in the class of essential users, rationing officials of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board announced.

The announcement followed publication of an order which rations small arms ammunition and restricts its use to those who can show essential needs, such classes as farmers and trappers who depend on game for their livelihood and those who need guns and ammunition for protecting livestock.

To clarify the situation for casual hunters, officials said that the order stipulates that persons who rely on hunting for their food are authorized to purchase. "Of course," they added, "all hunters shoot for food but a large percentage of them don't rely on game for their food. They are in the class of casual users, rationing officials of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board announced. Approval Given Of Appointment As Ration Secretary

Approval has been granted at Ottawa of the appointment of Miss Dorothy Sagar, John Street, Napanee, as secretary of the Local Ration Board operating there under the chairmanship of Dr. D. R. Hall and of the town. She replaces W. J. Grange in that office.

FIRST OFFERING MAPLE SYRUP ON NAPANEE MARKET

There were just two lots of maple syrup on the Napanee Market last Saturday and buyers scanned around it like bees around honey. At $2.75 per gallon it sold as fast as it could be poured out and a great deal more could have been sold if it had been available.

Eggs on the market were 28c, 32c, and 35c. per dozen.

Little pigs were $7.00 each.

EXTRA SUGAR TO BE ALLOWED FOR RHUBARB

The Local Ration Board brings glad tidings to housewives of Napanee with the announcement that, contrary to last year's ruling, extra sugar will be allowed during the approaching official canning season from June 1st to November 30th for the home preserving of rhubarb. For the purposes of the home canning regulations, rhubarb will this year, be considered a "perishable fresh fruit" and housewives wishing to preserve it will apply for extra sugar for that purpose along with other fresh fruits. These applications, prepared in accordance with instructions contained in the current ration books and the "Canning Guide" which has been distributed by the post office, must be in the hands of Local Ration Boards by April 15th.

The Board points out, however, that no extra sugar obtained in this manner may be used for making jam from other fruits such as prunes, figs, nor may it be used for pickles, marrow, pumpkins or tomatoes. If housewives desire to preserve any of these, they must use sugar from their ordinary rations. Similarly, no home canning sugar will be allowed for home-made wines. An exception is however, made in the case of citron, since it is only with the use of sugar that that vegetable —classed as a "fruit" under canning sugar regulations—can be consumed.

SHOWER HELD FOR FIRE VICTIMS

On Wednesday evening of last week the members of the Ready Helpers' Class of Trinity United Ch. held a pot-luck supper in the dining room of the church at which a kitchen shower was held for Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Osborne, Bath.

Mr. and Mrs. Osborne lost all their household possession as well as their home in the fire which destroyed the residence in the Village of Bath a few months ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Osborne were former residents of Napanee before moving to Bath about 18 years ago, and during their residence in Napanee were members of Trinity Church.

Mrs. Osborne was also a former member of the Ready Helpers' Class.

PROCEDURE OUTLINED FOR SECURING SUGAR FOR CANNING

Application to be Filed Before April 15

Many inquiries have been made at The Beaver Office recently concerning the procedure necessary for securing canning sugar rations. In order to be of assistance we have consulted the Local Ration Board Secretary, Miss Dorothy Sagar and give the following information secured from the secretary.

Applications for canning sugar must be made before April 15th, and must either be handed in or mailed to Miss Sagar, at the office of A. L. Dafoe, opposite the Napanee Post Office by that date. Many applications are apparently being made to Brockville, which is wrong, and entails extra work and delay, as they have to be returned by the Brockville office to the Napanee office.

The application for canning sugar is to be found at the back of Ration Book No. 2 and on it a number of questions are asked. It is necessary for only one member of the family to answer all the questions, but the application from the ration books of all the members of the family showing the number of the book and the number of the page, must be detached and included with the form filled out by the member of the family who makes the application for the household.

The person who makes the application must be ready to answer the question on the form which asks how many members there are in the household, and be sure to attach all the application forms to her own form when sending them into the Ration Board.

The territory under the jurisdiction of the Napanee Ration Board includes all of Lennox and Addington, as far north as Sheffield and including Sheffield Township.

The ration books for canning sugar will be mailed or delivered to the applicants at a later date.

STATISTICS REVEAL L. & A. COUNTY FARMERS HAVE INCREASED INCOME

All Ontario Farmers Enjoy Increased Revenue For Their Farms

Cash income from the sale of farm products in Canada was at its highest point in the year 1928 at $1,058,800,000. In 1942 the figure had advanced from a low of $377,000,000 in 1932 to $1,000,160,000 in 1942.

The figures given below indicate the improvement in farm cash income in the Province of Ontario during the past four years:

1939 Cash Income	$212,411,000
" of Total for Canada	30
1942 Cash Income	$322,970,000
" of Total for Canada	32
" Increase from 1939	51.9

Cattle, sheep, hogs and dairy products contributed 63.5 of this cash income in 1942

COUNTY OF LENNOX AND ADDINGTON

Cash income for 1942	$3,887,075
Breakdown into various farm products is as follows —
Dairy Products	$1,571,569
Cattle and Calves	896,492
Hogs	629,191
Eggs	277,297
Vegetables	227,667
Poultry	199,219
Sheep, Grain, Fruits, etc	175,440
Total	$3,887,075

A very unusual feature of an analysis of the Ontario farmers' cash income is that 45 per cent. of his increased income is received during the six months ending April 30th.

That the war has been largely responsible for the improvement in the prices of farm products, and that the farmer has received a proportionately greater share of the general advance in prices, the following will illustrate:

Increase in Prices
1939 to October 1942

Canadian Farm Products	33.7
Wholesale Prices	28.4
Manufactured Goods	22.4

Almost any time of the day there has been a line-up in the office, of applicants for the licenses and ration books.

The last day for the use of the 1942 license plates and gasoline ration books is to-day (Wednesday.)

Most of the evening was taken up by the usual basis to watch the process of syrup making. Ted Middleton and Theodal Dupee explained the process to those who were novices.

Later the guests had an opportunity of tasting up maple sugar and enjoying the delicious cream product of their labour. Community singing was led by Mr. Arnold Rogers. Mrs. Lawrence Marriott, on behalf of the club, thanked the hosts and Mr. Ted Middleton replied.

CARS DAMAGED WHILE PARKED ON MARKET SQUARE

About noon on Tuesday one of the coal trucks belonging to Napanee Fuel & Supply Company, while making the turn at Lee Jim's corner on the Market Square parked car in front of Mower's Barber Shop and crushed the car and damaged the barber shop door.

The glass in one side of the door was broken and slight damage was done to the car, which belongs to Mr. Clarence Hagerman and also to another car parked nearby, which was struck by the truck.

No charge was laid by the police, as the owner of the truck assumed responsibility.

RED CROSS NEWS

During the recent campaign several items were donated by the Napanee Red Cross to be sold. Among these is a quilt, a good organ in very good condition, which is suitable for a small church or home, and a radio in the office, of parlor fol desk. A gramaphone and a number of records, and a very good solid music box in a lovely oak cabinet, are among the other articles.

Miss Helen Grange was busied in the work-rooms on Saturday afternoon.

The Canadian Red Cross Headquarters in Canada have received a copy of the message from Queen Mary expressing thanks for the gifts from the Canadian Red Cross Society to the Victoria Home for Invalid Children. The message, signed by Cynthia Colville and dated December 30th, 1942, reads:

"I am commanded by Queen Mary to write and ask you to convey to the Canadian Red Cross Society Her Majesty's warm thanks for their really munificent gifts to the Victoria Home for Invalid Children, of which she has long been patron.

"The Queen most gratefully thanks are due to many generous war workers and donors and to those who allot these splendid presents; to receive dozens of sheets and pillow cases, 21 afghans, 200 bibs and two or three dozen children's suits, and beautiful dolls and toys, is really overwhelming in these days.

"Already needs this generous help more than these suffering children, and Her Majesty is proportionately grateful for such kind thought and such generous expression of it."

In Britain, today, every fit man between 18 and 41 has already been drafted into the Forces, unless irreplaceable in an essential job. The age limit has now been raised to 51.

FREE ENTERPRISE

It is interesting to note how quickly the term "free enterprise" has caught on. It is not a new phrase. But it has suddenly become a new slogan which we find in many quarters, on many lips, and in many magazines and newspaper articles. It seems almost impossible that the phrase should have received so much prominence with, somewhere, a definite plan to that end. Just who started the new vogue it would be hard to say. But here it is. No longer do we hear of unrestricted competition — it is now "free enterprise" that we hear about.

It cropped up the other day in the Parliament at Ottawa, when Hon. G. B. Isnor, M.P., of Halifax, was debating Mr. Ilsley's financial statement. And when he dealt with this subject, he was subjected to a continuous cross-fire from the Members of the C. C. F. and the Social Credit Members. One bit of the dialogue is as follows::

Mr. Isnor: "I hope there is no question in the mind of the Hon. Member for Yorkton (Mr. Castleton) as to where I stand on Free Enterprise. I am for free enterprise. I should hate to see the day when we should lose that initiative, for free enterprise has been the backbone of Canadianism right from our earliest days. The Hon. Member from Yorkton, in his definition of free enterprise the other evening, and I take it he is utterly opposed to free enterprise, as were all members of his group.

Mr. Caldwell: It all depends upon how you define it. The present system prevents it.

Mr. Isnor: I have a definition, here, which I shall give, but I take it for granted that the Hon. Member for Yorkton and his group are opposed to free enterprise as expressed by him . . . etc. etc.

This is not new. The debate over free enterprise is an old one. But it would be well perhaps that a word of warning be given against the danger of being deceived by a slogan. To be sure, everybody agrees that men and women should be free, free not only to vote as they like, worship as they like, but as well to make their way in the economic world as best they can, using the gifts and brains they have received with a will. But it must always be remembered that freedom for one person ends when it interferes with the freedom of somebody else. And there can be no question but that the kind of free enterprise which held sway before the war interfered seriously with the freedom of others. The unrestricted freedom of some to make money out of others, often prevented those others from making enough to keep body and soul together.

The trend of the times is towards more regulation of the actions of men in every walk of life. We are not yet persuaded that the extreme form of regulating life as in Russia or Germany is the best for any society. But there must be more regulation in the future than we had in the past, for the simple reason that the economic concept of free enterprise proved unworkable in a crisis.

We are not so sure, either, that free enterprise is negatived by, say state-owned corporations. The men and the women who work for the Ontario Hydro Electric, are as free as those in similar positions, anywhere.

It may be that we will achieve our economic summum bonum, if we permit both public and private enterprises, such as the C. N. R. and the C. P. R. to operate side by side. Then one acts as a check on the other and there is a minimum of regulation.

The future of our whole social and economic fabric is uncertain, but it would be sheer folly to suppose we can ever go back to the world we left in 1939. That world is gone, and to try and resuscitate it by the use of slogans or any other device, is to court irretrievable disaster.

CRITICISM OF CHURCHILL

Not a little criticism has been levelled at Prime Minister Churchill because in his latest speech he said nothing about China, as one of the nations which will have much to say in formulating the policies for the post-war world. It is always interesting to observe how certain individuals or groups look for something to oppose in any speech they hear, or any programme suggested.

There are two or three things that must be kept in mind when trying to appraise that address. In the first place it is impossible in one address to cover every phase of political and social life. Naturally, some things have to be omitted in any article or speech. Any editor knows the painful act of blue pencilling articles in order to make them conform to space limitations. Mr. Churchill undoubtedly had many other matters on which to make judgments, but there will be time for that later on.

Then, too, it must be remembered that the address was given largely for home consumption. While it dealt, to some extent, with foreign policy, yet the bulk of it had to do with pensions, health, agriculture, education, and post-war employment. The reason for this was the necessity of maintaining a united front against the common enemy. The Beveridge plan had come nearer to dividing England than any other single factor since the war began. Leaders of Labor were apprehensive. There was a rumbling among the rank and file of the workers, over the failure of the Government to accept all the Beveridge recommendations. Once let Labor get the impression that they were being sold down the river and the fat would be in the fire. They would slow up their effort, and seriously hamper the war.

And so Mr. Churchill dealt with the internal problem, and by outlining plans for the future which would ensure work as far as that was possible, education and health for all along with social security, he averted what might have been a serious division in Great Britain.

It is well perhaps not to get hysterical because in a speech intended for home consumption largely, not enough emphasis was placed on the international situation. That will, undoubtedly, come later. And in the meantime, it might be the better part of wisdom for all to cease aiding the enemy by prying open a gap between the various partners of the United Nations.

"AND LIKE IT"

We do not, as a rule, use this space for quoting from an advertisement, but we are going to do it this time. The advertisement appears in a number of American magazines and is paid for by the United States Rubber Company. May be if we change the word "America" to "Canada" everytime it appears, the advertisement will mean more to us personally. The illustration which accompanies the advertisement shows a man rising in his pew on Sunday and saying: "I have no explanation for turning this family pew into a pulpit, except, just now, the spirit has moved me. With your permission, I want to say what others, later on may say better, but what I feel must be said now:"

* * * * * *

The time I lost my job we ate beans
Six weeks in a row.
But I got back on the pay roll!
The day the banks closed, I felt like I'd been hit
With a ton of bricks.
But I got up and dusted my pants off!
The year I worked my fingers to the bone.
And took a cut instead of a raise, I swore I'd quit.
But I stuck!
The night we got the telegram about the boy.
We thought the sun would never shine again.
But . . . we're carrying on!

* * * * * *

It seems to me, somebody's got America
Sized up wrong.
This country was born at Valley Forge!
This country outgrew the grief of Gettysburg!
This country came to manhood at the Marne, and in the shattered forest of the Argonne!
The point I want to make is . . . .
We've been through the hardships and the heartaches all before!
Our only trouble is that when it comes to making war
We're a little short on practice.
But what we haven't any shortage in, is courage . . .
Fighting spirit . . . and the will to win!
That's why we want to know the truth about this war.
The whole truth, and nothing but the truth . . .
plain . . . . unvarnished . . . . with the bark on!
That's why we all can figure out how big the job is and buckle down to lick it.
So let's have it!
If we need sugar to win this war, take it.
If we need rubber to win this war, take it.
If we need steel to win this war, take it.
If we need cash to win this war, take our money and buy War Savings Stamps and Bonds!
Take everything we've got to win this war,
And welcome!
Because there's one thing no one's ever going to take from you and me, so help us God
And that's America.

* * * * * *

I'm not talking for myself alone, or for my family,
I'm talking for all Americans.
So, the words could just as well be yours as mine,
And I say: we'll live on bread and water
If we have to,
And we'll like it . . . fine!

AFTER THE WAR?

In the March issue of "The Mountain Eagle," monthly publication of the R.C.A.F. station at Mountain View, Ontario, a Flying Officer writes . . .

"Major Power, Air Minister, has asked Parliament for help, from any quarter, on the problem of rehabilitating in civil life the men of the armed forces on whom Canada's destiny is built. Perhaps we can help him by letting him see the kind of life we, of the armed forces, want when we come home.

"Major Power says that in peace time there will be a let-down from thrills. Certainly after the last war there was a big let-down; we came home to a land where everyone seemed to be most interested in getting ahead of one another, and squabbling for money and position. We were hard to be interested in such things. We had known, in the front, a great sense of purpose and comradeship, but they seemed to have gone. Work became something unpleasant that had to be done to get us enough money to be comfortable and have a good time. The result was unhappiness, depression and unemployment.

"This time we want and thrills in something; and they will if we're wise, we Canadians are ready to do something about it. The biggest thrills come from pitching into a job in which something worthwhile is done. We must become part of a great plan of world building that will ensure the kind of life we dream about, but which so far has seemed unattainable.

"It's the kind of life where kids can grow up in happy homes that are full of love and laughter, where everybody trusts each other. Homes from which people can go out to work at jobs where all are pulling together, free from ambition and greed. It's the kind of life where nations are pooling their resources and giving freely of their best, both spiritual and material, for the common good.

RUSSIA SHOWS NO INTEREST IN POST-WAR PARLEYS

Washington, (U.P.) — The Soviet Union is showing little interest today in overtures from British and American officials apparently aimed at bringing her into a series of talks similar to those now in progress between Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and American officials.

The Soviet view, according to well-informed quarters, is that to engage in further discussions would be premature—that the Allies need more victories before getting down to post-war problems.

Officials here and in London have noted the desirability of close collaboration among the big powers of the United Nations on current war issues, but there is considerable concern lest Russia's aloofness tend to lessen the effectiveness of the Allied war effort.

The Soviet Union has been putting great emphasis upon the necessity of a second front in Europe and until this is done there appears to be little likelihood of closer contact between the Allies and Premier Josef Stalin.

The Soviet Union is expected to accept the invitation to participate in the United Nations' conference on post-war food problems, scheduled to begin April 27. s/he has a vital interest in world food matters and the subject is politically non-controversial.

NO QUICK RESPONSE

But it is not in keeping with the Russian psychology or in keeping with the conduct of Soviet officials in the past years either to accept or scorn the offer, Soviet Union, to reply a quick Russian response to the more comprehensive Anglo-American overtures of the last fortnight.

At a press conference on March 12, Mr. Eden said it was "pretty well indispensable" to have close collaboration between the United States, Britain and Russia on post-war European affairs, and that a conference of three powers and China on the post-war world in general.

On March 15, Secretary of State Cordell Hull, with Mr. Eden at his side, told a press conference of the benefits to be obtained from exchanges of views between Governments and mentioned specifically the desirability of such conversations between the United States and the Soviet Union, or between the United States and China.

HELPFUL MOVE

Mr. Hull spoke again recently of inter-Allied conversations and said that tentative discussions and exploratory views would be a most helpful contribution to the perplexities dealing with, and solution of, the great task of a post-war international structure.

Despite these cordial evidences of good will toward the Soviet Union, there has been no indication that Russia will meet the suggestions half-way.

It is conceded that the Soviet's approach to post war planning would be different because of the differences between the Soviet and American forms of Government. In the United States the democratic processes call for free discussion of purposes of the war and public interest in the type of peace that is to be made.

Rubber Life-rafts Being Made in Canada

INFLATED, READY FOR USE AND RIGHT SIDE UP WITHIN 60 SECONDS

A. W. Denny, Goodyear Factory Manager, opens the valve which inflates the first Canadian-made Goodyear rubber life-raft. Identical in principle with the famous rubber raft that kept alive Captain Rickenbacker and his plane crew, the Goodyear model looks much like a soldier's duffle bag before it is opened and is tucked away near the pilot where he can quickly seize it in case of an emergency landing over water. Once in the water, all he has to do is pull a cord and the boat is inflated, ready for use and right side up within 60 seconds.

Second picture shows what happens: inside the duffle bag a gas "bottle" rapidly releases CO_2 gas when the cord is pulled. This gas feeds into the chambers of the raft, forces off the dome-fastened cover of the bag, and the raft opens up in much the same way as an artificial Chinese flower. Two sectional oars are easily assembled. In the side pockets of the life-raft are a hand pump, a repair outfit, first aid kit, emergency rations, two paddles and water-tight, two-way smoke grenades. A bright yellow cover to attention of rescuers.

Third picture shows the raft which requires little care and effort to maintain, getting into a canoe-fashioned craft. The airman grabs the sides of the raft and rolls across the boat, from which position the hardiest comparatively easy.

ENFORCEMENT—FOOD

How do they get away with this, you ask that? Even your own friends say, "They can't do this to me. I wasn't hoarding." You've heard plenty of that stuff. And Fred A. McGregor, grey haired, soft spoken Enforcement Administrator of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, at Ottawa, tries to help find the answers. There is nothing he fears more than to have his personnel labelled Gestapo and such things.

He realizes, of course, that an investigator in your region, invested with new and unprecedented power, might throw his weight around a bit, and possibly make a few mistakes. But supply of men, capable of Hon. says Mr. McGregor. They keep checking on the checkers, every sometimes it takes time to find out. It takes a decided focal point in an ivory tower in Ottawa," he said, "whether or not results. hoarding or anything else they do try to get an honest statement of fact from the enforcement counsel in each regional division, and they do insist on getting "local colour" with it. Personal circumstances are taken into consideration. All the administration does, he says, is pass on a case to decide whether it should go to the courts or not. Then the law does the rest.

Kicks—
Well-Founded And Unfounded

"We have to watch our step, too, from those whose toes have been stepped on; who have spite charges against persons they may have a grudge against, many of which we have been investigated and discovered to be unfounded." And in the province, he added, is a certain merchant, where he had just that day personally telephoned an old Ottawa born woman in Montreal, to apologize for the actions of an investigator who was too smart altogether.

"We couldn't handle the job of enforcement if the public didn't co-operate," he pointed out, "but I think some 95 per cent. of the people are doing a real enforcement job with us." A small percentage of course, are defiant and won't play ball. Some of it, he claims, is purely carelessness of regulations to be observed in business.

"What of the future?" I asked. He hitched closer to me to emphasize the point as he warned that more difficult times are ahead, with dangers of "black market", etc. "Tell the people they are only helping themselves and they can be of tremendous help to us as the more critical time approach. We would rather have compliance than enforcement any time."

From December 1, 1941, to December 31, 1942, they had 1,562 prosecutions for the whole of Canada, and 1,438 convictions. You and I who know what's going on can realize it cut out defiant and won't play ball. Some of it, he claims, is purely carelessness of regulations to be observed in business.

Retinol Views
Foods Situation

I hate to hurry on with so much material of interest available, but the series is just about finished. I might give you a few thoughts from Dr. G. E. Britnell, economic adviser of the Foods Administration, tousled headed, earnest fellow whose office walls are covered with colored charts. Butter rationing? All part of the over-all picture we shall be explained. Figure it out; more lunch palaces, more sandwiches; more civilian workers, armed forces; Red Cross necessities; Alaskan Highway; U.S.A. troops in Canada; commitments to West Indies and Newfoundland. Why the butter ration? Because only 6 per cent. over the previous year, per capita consumption of butter in Canada is 26 lbs., while that of cheese only 4 lbs., and it takes two of cheese to make one of butter.

Beef? Yup, he admitted a tight position there, but remember that in general there is nothing in the over-all position in Canada which would dictate it if we had no responsibilities to the United Nations. It is obvious that we cannot maintain higher consumption levels of meats than others of the United Nations, say the United States.

It is unlikely that we will avoid meat rationing in the trend of events, he says, and that takes in beef, pork, bacon, veal, lamb and mutton. With the new feeding programme, however, he is certain we will have more beef in the long run. Now, co-operation is the slogan.

As I got up to leave he shook hands and said with a smile: "Remember, fellow, we are still the best fed people in the world." I had had bacon, two eggs for breakfast. Could have had more. How in heck can we grouse sincerely?

About
Foods Administration

And now I'll finish this with a few words about talking with Foods Administrator Gordon Taggart, who is shortly leaving his job and Ottawa to sit in the agricultural driver's seat in Saskatchewan again.

Mr. Taggart made a good impression on me. He impressed me as a man of broad knowledge of the various food commodities, directly from farm and various food processing and distributing industries. "The food administration staff determines what to do," he said, and much of the action which follows may be carried out by regional offices of the Board, enforcement or rationing divisions.

You see, food supply naturally divides itself into two groups, foods of domestic origin or imports. When domestic supply is threatened as a result of lower price established under the ceiling, either of three things is done. The article can be removed from the ceiling entirely, or dealt with a number of fresh fruits and vegetables. The price could be increased, as with beef, [illegible] other products would [illegible] price range and [illegible] er prices, to maintain [illegible] thirdly, subsidies [illegible] existing price.

And he added that the most common [illegible] imports has been for the [illegible] Prices Administration to [illegible] bulk purchase at the best [illegible] price and then sell [illegible] stic trade at whatever [illegible] cessary to maintain [illegible] The determination of [illegible] and the management of [illegible] has been done by the Foods Administration. Mr. Taggart made a [illegible] drum that I [illegible] member told an [illegible] dinner. And [illegible] Subsidies are no [illegible] trade sets no [illegible] them. They are [illegible] no other way of [illegible] supply of an article [illegible] ing the cost of [illegible] ited only to existing [illegible] and next week [illegible] the series.

PETER AND JOHN BECOME DISCIPLES OF JESUS

Lesson Text: John 1, 29-42. Mark 1: 16-39

We have always to remember that the Gospel according to John was written about a hundred years after the birth of Christ. Naturally, the writer had to depend, for his material, on earlier records. Supposing an author today set out to write a life of John Wesley. He would have to secure his source of material from letters and documents which have been preserved in libraries and archives. Similarly, the writer of John had to depend on the other gospels which were already published. Consequently, many of the ideas in the Gospel of John belong to a generation to which Jesus did not belong. It is well to remember this when we read this fourth gospel and compare it with the synoptics.

This incident, of which the first section is our account, took place after the baptism and the temptation. Jesus was still in Judea. John is telling of the events at the baptism, and bears witness to the unique character of Jesus. He tells this in a figurative way, and which his readers would readily understand, but which we, with our more scientific and less mystical and poetic approach to life, are apt to question. The point, of course, of this section was that Jesus at the time of His baptism was recognized as of a Divine nature.

The account continues with the events of the next day, when Jesus called the first two disciples. The first of these was Andrew who, at once, went in search of his brother, Simon Peter, and together these two men left the jobs they had and set out on a new career of service with the Master.

The first two disciples were fishermen, and Jesus called them to be fishers of men. That was good psychology. He appealed to them with the basis of their main interests in life. He met them at the point of their everyday experience and showed that that experience could be transmuted into a spiritual adventure. This is something we are beginning to learn anew. Recently there have been held in different parts of Canada certain missionary clinics. At these clinics men of one generation meet with those of a similar profession and discuss the missionary enterprise in it relates to their particular profession. — doctors to discuss it in relation to teachers, etc. Perhaps we did not make enough of this in our religious appeal. The ideal to be said for the [illegible] having men of the same profession or trade share [illegible] similar position. Jesus [illegible] ity can be lived within the [illegible] of common interests.

Canada's Best Tens

The Canadian Film Weekly, a trade paper devoted to our motion picture industry, has announced the results of a series of polls held among theatre owners and motion picture critics to determine their respective choices of the ten best pictures and players. The results are very interesting when compared with similar polls held in the United States. In each case most of the choices, with several exceptions, were the same as those of the U.S.A. Generally the results confirm Canada's historic position in relation to our American cousins. This position has been described by the fellow stuck for words as being "the same—but different."

Asked to name the pictures which were most popular with their patrons, Canadian theatre owners placed them in tip following order: (1) How Green Was My Valley, (2) Captains of the Clouds, (3) Sergeant York, (4) Mrs. Miniver, (5) Abbott & Costello films, (6) Reap the Wild Wind, (7 and 8—tie) Shores of Tripoli and The Fleet's In, (9) King's Row, (10) Holiday Inn. Gene Autry, though he didn't make the Best Ten, was picked as the leading cowboy star.

The American film trade press didn't poll for the best box-office pictures.

Gary Cooper, who took the Academy Award last year, won the 1942 honors in the Dominion. The others, in order, are (2) Abbott & Costello, (3) Walter Pidgeon, (4) Bob Hope, (5) Greer Garson, (6) Bette Davis, (7) Betty Grable, (8) Spencer Tracey, (9) Mickey Rooney, (10) Clark Gable. Abbott & Costello won the U.S.A. poll of theatre men, with Cooper third.

Walter Pidgeon and Bette Davis, who were in our Best Ten, didn't make it in the USA, where James Cagney and Gene Autry did. Pidgeon, a Canadian, was sure of the charmed circle here, considering his work in How Green Was My Valley and Mrs. Miniver, two films understandably closer to Canadian hearts.

Canadian press and radio critics ticked off their choices in this order: (1) Mrs. Miniver, (2) How Green Was My Valley, (3 and 4—tie) Sergeant York and The Man Who Came to Dinner, (6 and 7—tie) Captains of the Clouds and This Above All, (8, 9 and 10—tie) Pride of the Yankees, Bambi and Now, Voyager. Several of their choices were not voted on in the theatre owners' poll, since critics view films at their first showings and months before they have circulated the entire Dominion.

The American critics' poll, conducted by Film Daily of New York, was similar in the case of only five pictures.

Chosen as the best ten players in 1942 by Canada's critics were (1) Greer Garson, (2 and 3—tie) Walter Pidgeon and Bette Davis, (4) Gary Cooper, (5) Joan Fontaine (6) Spencer Tracey, (7) Monte Woolley, (9 and 10—tie) Katharine Hepburn and Teresa Wright.

The poll results are proof Canada has distinct tastes of its own in pictures and players. And that the tastes of film critics and the public also differ.

WARNING

CANADA FACES A WOOD-FUEL FAMINE NEXT WINTER

ARE YOU one of the Canadian householders who burned fences, doors, and even flooring to keep warm in this winter's sub-zero weather?

• Or perhaps you are one of the lucky ones who just managed to scrape through?

In either case, you will want to be prepared for next winter when greater hardships loom unless you take immediate action.

The shortage already has affected many communities . . . total stocks of dry wood are nearly exhausted . . . in some places the small supply of green wood cut for next winter is being used now to meet the present emergency.

Throughout most of Canada, fuel-wood is obtained not far from where it is consumed. Its production and distribution are the business of local citizens.

The Dominion Government recognizes that the wood-fuel shortage is so serious that even with the full co-operation of everyone in affected communities an adequate supply is not assured. Accordingly, it has been decided to stimulate the output of wood-fuel by assisting those normally engaged in its production and distribution. To this end, the following measures will be adopted:

1 A subsidy of $1.00 per cord will be paid to dealers on all commercial fuel-wood contracted for and cut on or before June 30, 1943, and held to dealers' account on that date.

2 The Coal Controller has been authorized to arrange in his discretion for the payment of such portion of the transportation costs as he considers proper in respect of fuel-wood, particularly in cases where dealers, to procure supplies, find it necessary to contract for fuel-wood at locations outside the area from which they normally derive their supplies. In order to obtain any such reimbursement, dealers must obtain a permit from the Coal Controller before contracting for such supplies.

3 The Coal Controller will repurchase from dealers at dealer's cost all commercial grades of fuel-wood on which a subsidy of $1 per cord has been paid and which are still in dealers' hands as at May 31, 1944.

4 Assistance will be given in providing priorities for necessary equipment.

5 Farmers now on the farm, and who leave the farm temporarily in response to this appeal to engage in fuel-wood cutting, will be deemed by National Selective Service to be carrying out their regular occupation as farmers and will be given all the rights of deferment of military service which such an occupation now carries. Such temporary absence should not, however, interfere with agricultural production.

Municipal councils, farmers, fuel dealers, individual citizens, service clubs, and all other groups in communities where wood-fuel is burned, are urged to begin at once a rapid survey of their local situation, and to take immediate action to relieve the shortage.

BATH

Bath, March 27. — The ice bridge between the island and the mainland is in a precarious condition. The mail man makes the daily trip with the ice aunt. He has broken through only several times.

Spring is here ! It has been heralded into our midst with the return of our feathered friends. The robins and red wings have been seen and heard.

The A. Y. P. A. met on Monday evening at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Borland.

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Allison and sons, Jimmie and Bobby, spent the week end in Portland.

We are pleased to see Pte. Wilfred Tillman home with his family, after being confined to hospital for a long period.

Dr. Regen made his regular round of calls in the village on Sunday morning.

Pte. Harold Turkington, R.C.O.C., of Kingston, called on his mother and family on Sunday.

The local Red Cross is having its weekly meeting at Mrs. Burleigh's on Thursday afternoon. Members and anyone interested are welcomed.

Housecleaning is the order of the day. Several have suggested to get this job out of the way in time to make our gardens a bigger and better success this year.

The school children have had the pleasure of enjoying a fine new radio, the gift of Mr. Hawley, Kingston, to the school; also a piano from Mr. Cuppage. The second in the series of instructive pictures produced by the Board of Information, was presented in the school on Monday last.

CHICKS SURE! if

YES—the Bray Hatcheries have chicks for sale, in spite of a deluge of orders. Not perhaps, in the breed that's your first choice. Not, perhaps, in the Xtra-Profit grade. But Bray Chicks of the usual high Bray quality . . . .

Mind you, that's not saying that the breed and grade you want aren't available. Very probably they are. But demand is uneven. In some breeds it is so heavy that the Bray Hatcheries are booked ahead—in those breeds—for weeks. In others even last-minute orders can be filled, for both day-old and started chicks.

NAME YOUR SECOND CHOICE

So when you order your Bray Chicks, name your second choice . . . even your third choice, if possible . . . on breed, grade, and date of shipment. It may prevent delay and disappointment. All Bray Breeds have the same backing of skill and care behind them, so you will probably be pleased with the results you get, even if the breed isn't the one you ordinarily order. . .

PATRIOTISM IS PROFITABLE

Every War and Victory Loan issue, five in all, is presently selling at or well above 100. In some cases the profit to original buyers of these various issues is a very handsome one.

For example, Dominion of Canada First War Loan 3½% Bonds due in 1952, were issued in February 1940 at 100 and now sell at a minimum of 3¼% above this price. If sold at to-day's prices this would show the original buyer an annual return of over 4% on his investment, taking into consideration the premium received at the time of sale.

The prices of these Loans have been forced up by an investment demand from the financial institutions and larger investors with moneys accumulated between loan periods. This buying is based on value and value alone.

"DUD" LIGHT BULBS CAN BE SALVAGED

The life of the average electric light bulb is from 700 to 1,000 hours. This means a life of about two or three months. In every home the family, instead of throwing "dud" bulbs in the waste basket, can salvage them to help along the war effort.

As it is only the bulb end, containing brass and zinc and fine copper wire, which is needed for salvage, the bulbs should be smashed so that no jagged edges remain. The ends should then be put away in a box or bag for the salvage collector.

The Late Mrs. Almon Brown

Mrs. Almon Brown, one of the oldest members of a well-known family, long resident in the County of Lennox and Addington, died at her home on the Palace Road, about two miles from Napanee, on Tuesday, March 23rd.

Mrs. Brown, who was in her 90th year, was formerly Martha Jane VanAlstyne. She was born in North Fredericksburgh Township and was the only daughter in the family of eight children of Joseph VanAlstyne and Elizabeth Fennell, members of Pioneer U. E. L. families.

As a young woman she lived for a while with her family in Richmond and later in Napanee. Following her marriage in 1892 to Almon Brown, she went to live on the Brown homestead on the Palace Rd., where she resided until her death.

Her husband died in 1915 and since then she had continued to live with her younger son, Rae, and his family. Before her marriage, Mrs. Brown was a member of Trinity United Church and since then, of Grace United Church, which she attended regularly as long as her health permitted.

She is survived by two sons, Ross and Rae, and two grandchildren, Cameron Brown, son of Rae Brown, a lieutenant in the 12th Anti-Aircraft Battery, and Doris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Brown. Miss Emma VanAlstyne and Miss Hazel VanAlstyne, Napanee, are nieces.

Her funeral was conducted at her late residence on Thursday afternoon, by Rev. C. D. McLellan, minister of Grace United Church. Interment followed at Riverview Cemetery.

Mrs. Adam Fullerton Died in Brockville

Word was received in Napanee, on Monday, of the death that day at Brockville, of Mrs. Adam Fullerton, a former resident of Napanee.

Mrs. Fullerton was formerly Edna Percy and was born in Napanee. She lived here until 1884 when Mr. Fullerton went to Brockville, where he opened a drug business. He had formerly been associated with the Dellor Drug Store in Napanee.

Mr. Fullerton died about three years ago, after being retired from business for some time.

Mrs. Fullerton leaves one daughter, who resides in Brockville.

Funeral service conducted in Brockville to-day (Wednesday) and her body will be brought to Napanee at a later date, for burial.

MR. MRS. CHARLES HUDSON CELEBRATE THEIR SILVER WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

On Saturday evening, March 27th, a number of immediate friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Hudson, Bath, to extend congratulations to this popular couple on their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. The evening was spent in playing progressive euchre. The dainty prizes were awarded to Mrs. P. G. Whitfield, Mr. Jas. Carroll, Miss Ruth Hudson, Arthur Whitfield, Mrs. H. Claringbold, Mrs. Jas. Carroll and Mr. Leroy Hoselton.

After playing cards for some time the guests partook of a sumptuous midnight supper. Mr. and Mrs. Hudson and daughter, Ruth and Joan, presided at the supper table which was very attractive, with lace cloth and centre of yellow tulips and yellow candles in green crystal holders.

Mrs. Hudson received the specially decorated anniversary cake and her sister, Mrs. Hare, cut the first.

A unique toast, composed in verse form was proposed by Mrs. H. Claringbold, to which the bride and groom suitably responded.

After the supper hour Mr. and Mrs. Hudson opened their numerous anniversary gifts and cards for which they thanked their guests. Among their many gifts was a beautiful silver cream and sugar set with a tray, also silver candle holders, from their daughters.

Grace Church W. A. Entertains Y. P.

U. presided, and committees were appointed for the next meeting. Mr. Gerald Smith led in group singing, assisted by Mrs. B. M. Black at the piano. A number of games were conducted by David McLellan, and refreshments were served by the executive of the W. A. under the convenership of Mrs. Wilfred Smith.

NO SEED POTATOES CEILING PROPOSED

Ottawa, (C.P.) — The Agricultural Supplies Board said in a statement issued here to-day that reports have been afloat in some parts of Canada," it is not recommending that the ceiling be placed on prices of certified seed potatoes for sale in Canada.

"At the same time, through export permit control, the board hopes to reserve in Canada sufficient stock of certified seed potatoes to satisfy Canadian requirements," the statement said.

It urged that orders for certified seed potatoes be placed promptly.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

This column is sponsored by the Regional Office, Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Questions on price control, ration regulations and other wartime Prices and Trade Board rulings should be mailed to: Information Branch, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, Victoria Building, Brockville, Ont.

Q. As a licensed trapper, am I entitled to obtain ammunition under the new rationing regulations? And how am I to get it?

A. Yes, a trapper licensed by a department of the Dominion or any provincial government is considered an "authorized purchaser" of small arms ammunition. He should complete a certificate of essentiality in duplicate and send it to his supplier. In some cases, the written approval of the Local Ration Board will be necessary and thay Board has the power to vary the quantity or disapprove the purchase.

Q. I am thinking of putting up rhubarb this year. Can I get extra sugar for such preserving?

A. Yes. The canning sugar regulations permit application being made for extra sugar for the preserving of rhubarb between June 1st and November 30th. Applications, prepared in accordance with instructions in your ration book and in the "Canning Guide," must be in the hands of Local Ration Boards by April 15th.

Q. I am interested in the conservation programme of your Board and especially in its campaign to make serviceable clothing out of articles that have been discarded. How can a demonstration of this work be arranged?

A. Write to Miss Byrne Sanders, Director, Consumer Branch, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, Arcade Building, Ottawa.

Q. Will you please tell us where to apply for our sugar for canning purposes. Do we send the application to Brockville or Ottawa, or is there a ration board closer to us?

A. Send your canning sugar application to your Local Ration Board, which is empowered to receive it and which will be responsible for issuing the special sugar coupons which you will be given before the opening of the official canning season on June 1st.

Q. Is it too late to cut furlwood for the use of myself and family?

A. By no means. The Coal Controller is anxious to have as much firewood as possible this year so that a scarcity next winter may be averted.

Q. Do I have to pay five cents more for the meals that I eat in restaurants?

A. Only if you take a beverage with them. If you do not drink tea, coffee, milk or other beverage usually served as part of the meal, you do not pay for the meal remains the same.

Q. Why is there such an apparent shortage of cleansing tissues in the stores?

A. This is just another of the supply difficulties which this Board is trying to iron out. The prevalence of colds during the winter season, coupled with greater use of handkerchiefs by women now no longer have time to wash handkerchiefs, has undoubtedly increased demand which it is hoped to restore to normal at the earliest date. Contrary to common belief, there has been no restriction upon the production of these tissues, but consumption has increased very substantially.

Memorial Service At Tamworth For P.O. Lorne York

On Sunday morning, at 11 o'clock, the Tamworth United Church was filled to capacity for the memorial service held for P.O. Lorne York, who was killed in action in Africa. Only a short time ago, Lorne was the second son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert York and lived the greater part of his life in and near this village. After his graduation from Tamworth Continuation School, he entered the Bank of Commerce here and in the time he was transferred to Keswick, Ontario, where he enlisted in May, 1941. He arrived in England early in November 1942 and shortly after his arrival was sent to North Africa.

Learning of his death, the pupils of the village and vicinity were saddened. A large number of friends and all who knew him.

There were several floral tributes placed in the church by organizations and friends, also a large number of Masonic Brethern from surrounding villages as well as the local Lorne Lodge, members of the lodge were in church. Rev. A. W. Seaton preached a most impressive and comforting sermon. The speaker spoke very warmly of the gallantry and the upright life of the deceased. He also gave a fitting poem which conveyed the thought "He is not dead, he is just away." The choir sang the anthem, "No Night There."

He leave to mourn his loss his mother and father, three sisters, Eva of the Canadian Bank of Commerce at Tamworth, Jean and Laura, at home; also two brothers, Douglas at home and Donald of the R.C.N.V.R., whose headquarters is Halifax.

In Loving Memory

SCRIMSHAW — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, Alfred Scrimshaw, who passed away April 3rd, 1933.
A wonderful Father, we still think of you.
In memories that are fond and true.
There was a thing, too big or too small
That you wouldn't try to do for us at all.
It's sad but true, I wonder why,
That the best are always the first to die.
We have lost, but God has gained
The best Father this world ever contained.
Sadly missed and ever remembered,
13a IVA, HENRY, BILLIE.

OESER — In loving memory of a dear loving daughter and sister, Helen Frances Oeser, who departed this life on March 28th, 1940.
It's lonely dear Helen, without you,
And we miss your smiling face.
For life is not the same to us
Since you passed away.
We have only your memory, dear daughter
To cherish our whole life through.
But your sweet smile will linger forever
As we treasure the image of you.
Ever remembered by MOTHER, SISTERS and BROTHERS.

WEDDING BELLS

YORK - BUSHIE

On Thursday, March 25th, a pretty wedding was solemnized at The United Church, Hinton, when Harold Hugh York, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Bushie, both of Flinton, Ont., were united in marriage by Rev. AN OASIS TAKES KEY SPOT IN DRIVE AGAINST THE AXIS

BY DeWITT MACKENZIE

There's more than meets the eye in Commander-in-Chief Eisenhower's appointment of General Montgomery to lead the American troops in the drive on Gabes and the Allied maneuvers for position in what may be the start of the big offensive, though it hasn't yet been officially identified as such.

Its a fair guess that Patton has been given the task of exploiting the breakthrough which now exists to the enemy's Tunisian defences as a whole. That is the danger of a wedge being driven between Gen. von Arnim in the north and Field Marshal Rommel in the south.

It looks as though Patton, with his central command, is expected to provide the wedge. That he is in a tank expert, and that these machines will play a great part in the coming showdown, fits well into the picture.

The general inaugurated his new job by recapturing the oasis town of Gafsa and driven on twelve miles to the southeast.

Gafsa is highly important, especially as it controls the railway line driving a wedge between Rommel and Gabes. This oasis not only is one of the greatest and most fruitful little Gardens of Eden in all Barbary, but it is the strategic point of the central Allied front. It was the anchor of American troops defending the area forced to withdraw on February 16.

Hub of Road

Gafsa, long a military post, is the hub of a network of strategic highways leading out of that mountainous region. It also lies on the railroad which runs to Sfax, one of Rommel's chief supply ports, 130 miles to the east.

One would expect Gafsa to play a highly important part in driving a wedge through the Axis defences. Other Allied troops to the northeast would co-operate in this operation. The wedge would be thrust through to the coast, between Sfax and the sister port of Sousse directly north.

The holding powerful positions. However, much of this strength is massed at the extreme ends of Tunisia, like the knobs on a dog-bandled dumbell. Von Arnim is in the far north facing Lt.-Gen. Kenneth Anderson's British First Army near Bizerta and Tunis, while Rommel is facing Montgomery with the British Eighth Army way down near the southern border on the great Mareth Line of fortifications.

In between these giant knobs is a stretch of close to 300 miles of coastal belt which is vulnerable. The Axis is said to have some 250,000 troops in Tunisia, and while that force would be formidable when massed, or even divided between two places, it is far from sufficient to defend the length and breadth of Tunisia.

The Allied strategy will aim at segregating the two main Axis forces at either end of the country, and then annihilating them. That, of course is easier said than done and the German leaders may be expected to put up a fierce resistance. They may even try to consolidate their forces and face the enemy together, if necessary.

Meantime, Allied resources are mounting. There is doubt as to how long the battle will rage, but there can be no question of the outcome.

LETTERS FROM NICKEY

THE STORY OF LIFE IN THE C.W.A.C.

Dear Babs:—

It was a wonderful weekend and I enjoyed every [illegible] moment! As I expected, our military tactics were quite successful in the family who exclaimed over me to their's content. My father made my happiness complete by appearing the next day with a saner special [illegible] button stick which swung together to clamp the buttons in a twice. Very clever. It has since increased my prestige in the barracks considerably; Barty's mouth fairly watered when I showed it to her. For a moment or two she even forgot to be envious, remember her Romeo dedicated to Science? She said, "Rashly, Nickey, it's simply too clever." So I gallantly stuffered and managed to say, "Yes, it is, isn't it?" and retired for a dictionary at the first possible moment.

To-day the school here at Rempville is humming like a gigantic beehive. Every train brings more candidates for the new course, starting to-morrow, and the batmen have been struggling with mountains of luggage all day. The ones recruited is sitting at his desk, a fierce frown on his face, while he wrestles with the knotty problem of accommodation. It is amazing the way some little one-pip subaltern gets mixed up with a bevy of majors and the arrangements have to be resnuffled.

I am feeling a little groggy today, probably because this morning I had a tetanus-typhoid inoculation and I can now feel the effects. However, it is very cheering to think how gorgeously immune I am going to be. Think of it, when the Army has finished doctoring me up, I will be a dead loss to typhoid, lockjaw and smallpox. Incidentally, the women often stand up to these inoculations better than the men. Take Margot for instance. On the evening of the day she was inoculated she went to the Canteen and for twice in succession ordered "Burnt Leather Cake" and then ate the entire lot. Wounded, having a wonderful time — that is, until in the jam an officer crashed her head with a cleaver because her arm was sensitive, so, of course, he asked what the trouble was. On learning that she had been inoculated he said, "My dear child, you should be at home in bed." "Oh, non, Monsieur," she replied airily, "I am a woman, I can cope, take me."

Here is a piece of news for you and incidentally, I am proud as Punch. I have just been elected to the dizzy rank of Lance Corporal, duly promulgated in Part II Orders, and am now ready to receive congratulations. I suppose I might call it this, the first rung of the ladder but one little stripe does seem rather mighty lonely. Well, as I always say, there's no use moping for long! Seriously, the thought that pleases me is that my well-meaning efforts have not gone unnoticed.

We now have two new inmates of Number Seven. Two living quarters who are black as coal and arrived in a package from Africa. They are the most maidenly pair of Scotties I have ever had the pleasure to meet. Mrs. Frankie who has obtained permission to keep them. The reunion was very touching. They are intelligent little rascals, roly poly as apple dumplings and as fat and mischief that they keep us chuckling. The old boy Luther of the young dog, is a domestic tyrant and when baby Bartsy's mealtime pething, he growls him into a corner and bites him there. He will not stand for him stealing his breakfast and the two dogs understands perfectly and wills. When you would see them sedately pattering along in double harness, cocks of the walk. They think nothing of walking up to the Officers' Mess or St. Bernards and calling them names. Early the other day, I found the young one spug of a free-for-all by his tail and carried him up-side-down into the house. And, let me tell you, I was in the doghouse for several days, his dignity was so offended.

The Mess Secretary is closing his books with an air of determination, so I think that must mean that he is ready to close up shop for the night. And there's the bugle and the flag is fluttering down—a sight that never fails to choke me up. Just a sentimental Celt! But, it is a stirring moment.

Much love,

NICKEY.

A MESSAGE FROM EDDIE RICKENBACKER

War Finance Review.

"The least we can do is to accept the privilege of paying taxes and buying more and more war bonds to finance and win this war. In the shortest possible time, thereby saving the lives of thousands upon thousands of the cream of our young manhood and additional billions of dollars for the cost of it.

EDDIE RICKENBACKER.

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS
HELP KEEP THE FRIEND

CANNING IS A "MUST" IN 1943

This third year of war meals, as many Canadian housewives already know, shortages in certain groups of food commodities which we have always been accustomed to purchase without any difficulty. In fact, many of us have taken it for granted that supplies of these goods would always be available. In doing so, we have not taken into consideration the practical and intensely realistic reasons why we must do without.

Metal, as we all know, is an essential material in the successful carrying on of a modern war. The millions of cans of prepared foods of various kinds which we have so casually picked off the shelves of our local groceterias have represented tons of precious tin which is needed in the war effort. Therefore the manufacture of canned goods must be drastically curtailed. "What is the answer?" asks the Canadian housewife. Simply this:

She must augment the steadily dwindling supplies of canned fruits and vegetables from her grocer with fruits canned by her from this season's crop. Many have done this for years, but this year it will be necessary to decide in advance how much fruit to can in order that sugar might be obtained for the purpose. The Dominion Government urges Canadian housewives to can fruit this year instead of making it into jam or jelly, as the latter requires more sugar to make. Experts state that three pounds of sugar will make six quarts of canned fruits, whereas three pounds of sugar will make only two quarts of jam or jelly. More food value is also conserved when the fruit is canned.

Application for sugar for canning purposes is necessary in order that the Sugar Administrator of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board can provide the sugar needed. The "application for canning sugar" is to be found in the new ration book. The form must be filled in and returned to the nearest local Ration Board before April 15th.

Cutting Coat According To Cloth Is Important In Meal Planning

The injunction to "Cut your coat according to your cloth" certainly applies to the planning of wartime meals.

Menus must be sufficiently flexible that they can be adapted to available supplies.

The following menu, suggested and tested by the Consumer Section of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, has this very necessary flexibility. The Chinese pie is different and usually proves a satisfying all-in-one dish for vegetables and meat are cooked together. Use those it is available, if not, beef.

Cabbage and carrot salad is a good accompaniment to this dish. The dessert a "Cobbler" melts in the mouth, provides its own sauce and makes use of whatever canned fruit you happen to have on hand.

CHINESE PIE

One and one-half lbs. lean lamb or beef, shoulder, shank, neck, or flank; salt and pepper to taste flour, three tablespoons fat, one onion, sliced, water, three cups turnip, diced, one cup peas, three cups seasoned, fluffy mashed potatoes.

Cut meat into one inch cubes. Sprinkle with salt and pepper, roll in flour and brown in hot fat. Add onion and cover with water. Simmer one and one-half hours or until meat is almost tender, then add turnips and continue cooking until meat and turnips are tender. If stew is not thick enough blend in additional flour mixed with a little water. Season, add peas, and place in a casserole. Cover with the mashed potatoes. Bake in hot oven, 400 deg. F., about 10-12 minutes, until topping is puffed and golden brown. Serves 6 to 8.

PEACH COBBLER

Two cups sliced, canned peaches, plums, cherries, pears or cooked apples; three-quarters cup syrup from fruit, one tablespoon lemon juice (optional), one tablespoon butter.

TOPPING

Two cups all-purpose flour, half-teaspoon salt, four teaspoons of baking powder, one tablespoon of sugar, one-third cup of fat, one cup well-beaten, three-quarters cup milk.

Place fruit in baking dish or six individual custard cups, pour in syrup, sprinkle with lemon juice and dot with butter.

Mix and sift flour, salt, baking powder and sugar, cut in fat, mix in beaten egg and milk. Drop dough in six mounds on top of fruit. Bake in a hot oven, 400 deg. F. for twenty-five minutes or until biscuit is cooked. Six servings.

PLANNED FOR ECONOMY BAKED BEANS RECIPE

Here is a special recipe for baked beans, worked out to suit the short cooking time. The brown bread recipe will be welcome, too, in households where baked beans also mean steamed brown bread.

BAKED BEANS (SERVES 12)

Four cups navy beans, half-pound salt pork, one cup molasses substitute, one teaspoon dry mustard, one tablespoon salt, one-quarter teaspoon pepper, three cups boiling stock water (from simmering bones).

Wash beans; pick over; soak three hours in boiling water to cover. Cover, bring to boil in same water (to preserve minerals and vitamins), reduce extra water if needed to cover well; skim; cook slowly until tender — about one and one-half hours. Drain reserving cooking water. Turn beans into bean pot or three-quart casserole.

Scrape pork rind until white, score top by cutting down about one inch, and bury in beans with rind exposed. Mix remaining ingredients and pour over beans. Cover; bake in slow oven (325 deg. F.) three to three and one-half hours or until well browned, uncovering during last hour. Add more water if necessary during baking. Molasses substitutes on sale at food stores.

One cup bread flour, two teaspoons soda, one teaspoon salt, one cup cornmeal, one cup wholewheat flour, three-quarters cup molasses substitute, two cups sour milk or buttermilk, one cup raisins, if desired.

Sift flour, soda and salt. Mix with cornmeal and wholewheat flour. Mix molasses with milk, add dry mixture, add dry ingredients. Beat well. Add raisins if desired. Pour into baking dish or six individual custard cups, filling two-thirds full. Bake in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) about one hour. Serve hot with butter.

THEY'LL DO IT EVERY TIME..

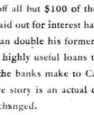
Helping to House Canada's War Workers

WHEN the huge shell-filling plant came to his town, Charles Hunter got to thinking about the critical shortage of housing . . . and about the two large cottages he owned. It wouldn't cost much to modernize and sub-divide them to make comfortable homes for four families.

He talked it over with his bank manager, who extended him a $600 loan. With the money, Hunter not only converted his cottages but took part of the loan, along with some of his rental income, to remodel another house to accommodate eight single individuals.

With the aid of the Bank Hunter helped to provide urgently needed homes for war workers. He has now paid off all but $100 of the loan. A very small amount paid out for interest has thus enabled him to more than double his former revenues.

Such modest, highly useful loans typify the contributions that the banks make to Canadian enterprise. The above story is an actual case—only the name has been changed.



More than 5,000 experienced bank men out of 14,433 have gone into the armed forces since war began. This throws a greater burden on remaining staffs and new employees. Do your banking early in the day. Pay small bills by cash instead of cheque wherever possible. It all helps.

In the Garden

BY GORDON LINDSAY SMITH

When To Plant

Two factors determine the time to plant—the condition of the soil and the hardiness of whatever is being planted. Experts stress the extreme importance of the first point which, they say, is very often ignored by the over-eager beaver. If soil is dug too soon, while it is still very moist, the work of cultivation is often doubled or trebled and injury to the crops planted, is serious. Heavy soil will almost invariably form into hard lumps that may require almost an axe to break them up.

The easy test to determine when the soil is ready is to walk across it. If it is muddy and sticks tight to the shoes, then it is best to allow it to dry out some more. If it merely presses down and crumbles when handled and brushes off shoes easily then it is right. This is the old test of the practical gardiner.

Depending On Hardiness

As for the second point, this is usually covered in the directions in Seed Catalogues or accompanying the order. Certain things that would normally seed themselves and come up unasked every spring, can be put in just as soon as possible. In the lower line this would cover such hardy things as alyssum, hollyhocks, marigolds, etc. Sweet peas also should be put in this category, although they will not stand the winter except in some of the very mildest parts of Canada. In vegetables too, one can hardly plant such things as peas too early, because they are a cool weather crop and might make their growth before the days become too hot. Also in the hardy line are spinach, lettuce, radish, beets, carrots and parsnips, Swiss chard, etc. Under semi - hardy, there will be beans, potatoes, corn, cabbage, etc. A very slight frost will not kill some of these but it will certainly set them back. As a matter of fact, with a few exceptions, there is little object in planting while there is still danger of serious frost and the soil is cold. And, of course, with warm weather things like melons, squash, tomatoes and cucumbers, one is risking certain disaster by planting before danger from frost has passed.

Nursery Stock

With nursery stock, however, one plants just as soon as possible. It is best to get it in the soil while the ground is still moist. If this is impossible, experts advise either planting roughly in a trench — "heeling in" it is called — or keeping roots soaked in water until permanent planting can be carried out.

Vegetables For Health

This year Canadians are going to appreciate fresh vegetables more than for many years. None too many kinds are now available in cans, and with help getting scarcer professional market gardeners are not expected to raise as much of these crops as usual while demand, of course, is steadily increasing. All in all, it looks as if the amateur will have to grow more of his own vegetables this year. He will be amazed how much better things taste when grown in the garden right at the door. Grown quickly and picked just before cooking they are full of natural sugars. The vitamin content, too, of all vegetables is highly perishable. Within 24 hours of picking, many of them disappear entirely. Experienced gardiners make several sowings of practically all vegetables.

Soil Preparation

One thorough cultivation before seeds are planted will save hours of labour later on and a good deal of disappointment. Any authority on gardening stresses the importance of thorough preparation of the soil. This applies to both vegetables and flowers.

Assuming the place is fairly level, the first job will be a complete spading, or plowing if it is big enough and possible. Care should be taken to see that all old sod and other coarse vegetable refuse is thoroughly buried, and if possible broken up a bit. Then it is best to cultivate. In small plots a rake will do the work until the soil is broken down as fine as possible. If there is time it is then an excellent idea to allow the garden, or at least the later planted part, to rest for a few days to encourage weed seeds to sprout. The second and third cultivation, of course, will then kill these things easily, making the handling of the garden later on much easier.

Vegetable Layouts

After the soil is worked up into fine tilth, the earliest of the vegetables may be planted. These may go in in rows from 12 inches apart and wider, depending upon the size of the mature plants. Carrots, lettuce, beets, parsnips, etc., can be planted in 12-inch rows, but beans, peas, tomatoes, corn and potatoes will need 18 to 24 inches.

If we are lucky enough to have a tractor or horse for cultivating then, of course, there will have to be more space, and two to three feet between all rows is not too much. Not only because it will be very much neater, but will also make cultivation easier as the rows should be absolutely straight and all planting done along a string. Thus planted we know where the seeds are and it will then be safe and easy to cultivate even before plants have started to sprout. Peas, corn and such fairly large seeds are planted about one to two ins. deep,—fine seed like lettuce, carrots, merely pressed in.

Flowers In Wartime

Some people may regard flowers as a luxury, but the real gardener emphatically does not. Even in wartime he will find a place for them. To him the growing of beautiful flowers is more than just a hobby or recreation. It satisfies his natural craving to create something with his own hands and out of his own brain — it provides a tonic for war-strung nerves. And of course the actual cost in dollars and cents is negligible. A few packets, at a total cost of a quarter, will provide a wealth of bloom, will turn some ugly neglected corner into a riot of color and beauty.

Flowers to Fit

Through decades of plant breeding and natural selection flowers have been developed to fit almost any location. There are some which actually prefer those darkish corners. There are, stocks, nicotine, etc., specially designed to scent the evening air. Some indeed, like petunia, that actually seem to thrive on neglect.

There are little, short chaps like alyssum and dwarf marigolds and lobelias, specially bred to fit along the front edges of flower beds or to trim walks. There are tall hollyhocks, castor beans ornamental sunflowers, cosmos and other giants which will make backgrounds and screen fences.

VICTORIA W. I.

Victoria branch of the Women's Institute held the regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Wilfred McCracken. Mrs. Jack McFarland, first vice-president, presided. The meeting opened in the usual way by singing the ode and repeating the creed. Roll call was answered by an Irish joke. A duet by Helen and Florence McFarland was much enjoyed and they very generously sang again most pleasingly. A humorous Irish reading by Mrs. Wilfred McCracken was well given and well received. Mrs. Edgar gave current events prepared by Mrs. A. M. Graham. Mrs. Jack McFarland conducted a contest and Mrs. Wilbert Bush won the dainty prize. The singing of the National Anthem brought the evening meeting to a close after which a most delicious lunch was served by an ideal hostess.

SANDHURST W. A.

The March meeting of St. Paul's Sandhurst, was held at the home of Mrs. Whitfield, with an attendance of twenty. The rector, Rev. C. C. Brazill opened the meeting with hymns and The Litany, followed by an address in keeping with the Lenten season. He brought to our attention the temptations of our Saviour, and stressed the importance of self-examination during Lent, that we might, by prayer and supplication, improve our lives and bring our bodies into subjection to our minds.

The business meeting followed and the minutes of the annual meeting were read and approved, also the report of the Board meeting and financial statement which was very satisfactory. The roll call was responded to by a donation to our annual thankoffering. Living Message and Dorcas secretary gave reports and work was given out to the members. Two new members were enrolled. Dainty refreshments were served and a vote of thanks tendered the hostess. The meeting closed with prayer by the rector.

NEWBURGH W. I.

The March meeting of Newburgh Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. George Walker. The roll call was responded to by an Irish limerick. It was decided to send $5.00 towards sugar for making jam for the boys overseas. The following war work was reported sent in for the period February 25th to March 23rd, 1943: 12 pairs seamen's stockings, 1 v-neck sweater, 3 turtle-neck sweaters, 8 pairs men's gloves, 2 tuck-ins, 6 quilts. Miss Cameron gave some very interesting current events. Mrs. S. Moore, convener of Canadian Industries, read a very educational and interesting paper on Manufacture of Window Glass. Mrs. Moore also prepared a very novel contest, which was enjoyed by all. Miss Cameron voiced a vote of thanks to Mrs. Moore, and also to Mrs. Walker for her hospitality. The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

Many friends were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Both on Friday evening, leaving with high praise of their hosts. Mr. Both left on Saturday to join the R.C.A.F. in the Engineering Department.

Syrup season is away to a slow start, due to the great depth of snow and ice in the woods.

Three pairs of robins have returned to their sanctuary of last year on C. C. Thompson's lawn, where they nest within two feet of the house. They are very tame and follow the gardener for worms so closely as to be a nuisance.

Ice race from Cloyne to Kaladar, handled by Harry Levere by truck, has never been held up an hour this season due to road conditions. We give great credit to Road Overseer Wm. O. Both, and Grader Man Mercon Cummings. Lumber trucks are banned until roads dry. Often ten thousand feet of lumber are hauled on a trailer truck.

MEAT RATIONING TO BE STARTED EARLY IN MAY

Two Pounds Per Person Each Week Allowed

Hon. J. L. Ilsley announced late last week, that meat rationing will be instituted in Canada early in May. Each person will be allowed two pounds of meat per week. The rationing will apply to all meat except poultry, fish and butcher's offal.

According to statistics the present meat consumption per person in Canada is about two and one-half lbs. per week.

It is not proposed to put burdensome restrictions on the slaughter of livestock by farmers for their own use and consumption. An appeal will be made to all farmers who slaughter their own meats to live well within the spirit of the ration.

In order to control the supply of meat entering into the channels of trade, there will be restrictions on the right of farmers and of other persons to slaughter for trade.

To conserve meat supplies and to avoid discrimination against those who do not make frequent use of restaurants, it is proposed to establish meatless days in all restaurants, hotels and public eating places. This will, of course, be in addition to the usual restrictions on supplies to such establishments that go with all forms of rationing.

Steps will be taken to see that those who hold space in private cold-storage lockers are not allowed to use such space to evade rationing or to secure any special advantage in obtaining meat supplies.

DETAILS PROMPTLY

It is expected the Prices Board will be ready to give full details of the meat rationing plan within the next two weeks. This will give sufficient time to the public and the trade to familiarize themselves with the details of the plan and thus contribute to the smooth functioning of the ration.

SPEAKERS GIVE SUGGESTIONS

Mr. Parnell spoke on the new government order effective April 1st, which requires the production of commercial seed to 16 per cent. He suggested increased acreage of soy beans because of their high protein content. He stated there is plenty of seed, which is available and the yield is about thirty bushels to the acre. Soy Beans are also not affected by many diseases or insect pests. He suggested that if grown from seed for fodder should be planted about thirty inches to the acre. Sowing is from two and one-half inches deep and one inch apart in the rows.

Mr. Parnell said that some farmers thresh soy beans by putting seeds and stalks through a hammer mill. I find you get a good feed. If threshing is done this way there is little danger of moulding in the stalks absorb extra moisture. Mr. Parnell particularly stressed the need for superior production. Surpluses have been greatly reduced and definite goals for this year have been set. The government is asking for twenty per cent more hogs and lambs and a large increase in dairy products, eggs and poultry. The goal, for coarse grain has been set at the same figure as last year which was a bumper crop.

In order to produce the increased dairy products there should be this year much more feed than last year if the quota for export is to be reached.

Mr. Tennant stated there are 25 per cent less men on farms now than before the war. There is a shortage of help and farm machinery is being rationed. Farmers, he said, cannot work harder or longer than they have but they can plan their work better in order to overcome shortages. He suggested that pastures be arranged for nearer barns, that seed of the best varieties of grains be used, that seed be treated; that attention be given to fertility of the soil; that early seeding be observed.

Mr. Tennant said that pasture was a most important crop and also one of the most neglected. It is the chief source of milk production and must be given the best return for the least expense of labor and money. He suggested that regular pastures be supplemented with emergency pastures of oats and grain and rape and millet, and that attention be given to the fertility of pastures.

EXPIRY DATES OF BUTTER COUPONS

It is announced that butter coupons 4 and 5, due on April 3 and April 10 respectively for the purchase of one-half pound of butter apiece, will expire on April 30. Each of these will be good for the purchase of one-half pound of butter. But they must be cashed before May 31, when they will cease to possess value.

AGRICULTURAL MINISTER ANNOUNCES PRICES FOR DAIRY PRODUCTS

BRITAIN WILL TAKE 150,000,000 LBS. CHEESE THIS YEAR

The Dominion Agriculture Minister, Mr. Gardiner, announced last week that new prices and subsidy arrangements for milk sold for cheese, butter or concentrated milk products in Canada at the same time he revealed that the British Ministry of Food has agreed to take 150,000,000 pounds of cheese from Canada in the production year ending October 1st, on a price basis of 20 cents per pound at factory or grading shipping point.

Under previous contracts, the price was on a Montreal basis. The shipping point basis has been substituted because, when cheese is requisitioned inequalities result in returns which otherwise do not occur where cheese is sold for local consumption.

The price, said Mr. Gardiner, means an increase of from five-eighths to one cent per pound, depending upon the location of factory or grading station. The Dominion is continuing premiums of one and two cents for 93 and 94 score cheese, respectively. In Ontario, where the Provincial Government is paying a further two cents subsidy, the top price, therefore, will be 24 cents.

MINIMUM BUTTER PRICES

The Minister also announced the establishment of minimum prices for first-grade creamery butter delivered by the purchaser, on a graduated scale, for the months May to December. The British Columbia, Ontario and Quebec prices start for May at 32 cents and increase as follows:—29½, 32½, 32½; 33½; 33½; 34½, and 34½.

The load and highest price is to remain through the high cost of production winter months until, April 1944.

Mr. Gardiner said the Dairy Products Board has been authorized to support the butter market as may be necessary to maintain these minimum prices by purchasing butter on a basis of the minimum prices specified delivered the Montreal, Toronto or Montreal during the month purchased. First grade creamery butter will be 93 cents.

On butter fat bonuses, the Wartime Prices and Trade Board has July, started to pay six cents per pound when the production volume was threatened and, in December, increased the subsidy to 10 cents—that rate to run until the end of April. Under the new authority granted to the Agricultural Food Board to establish and pay subsidies upon food products — an authority transferred from the Prices Board last February, the summer subsidy is to be eight cents and from December until the end of April 1944, 10 cents.

Judgment Reserved In Action Against Township and Officials

Judge J. C. Reynolds, Kingston, in County Non-Jury Court, held in Napanee on Monday, reserved his judgment in the action brought by Stewart James Wilton, against the Township of Ernestown, and the Treasurer of the Township of Ernestown, asking for a declaration that the 1933-1934 taxes on his property had been paid, also for $500.00 damages from the Township Treasurer for improperly returning his taxes to the County Treasurer and having his property advertised for sale. A writ was also brought by Mr. Simmons against the County Treasurer for an injunction restraining the Treasurer from selling his lands for taxes.

The taxes on Mr. Simmons' property were returned to the County Treasurer in 1939 as being unpaid. The delay in returning them to the County Treasurer was one of the grounds for action by Mr. Simmons, who claimed that if they were to be returned to the Treasurer all they should have been returned earlier. He also claimed that the Collector's return was not verified under oath and that his taxes had been paid by an alleged settlement between himself and the Township.

The Township denied that any such settlement had been made with Mr. Simmons, and returned the taxes for sale to the County Treasurer.

The action did restrain the sale of the lands in the fall of 1942.

There were a number of witnesses for both defendant and plaintiff and the Court was well filled with spectators, mostly from the Township of Ernestown.

W. S. Lane, Picton, acted for Mr. Simmons; G. F. Smith, Napanee, appeared for the County Treasurer, and W. M. Nickle for the Township of Ernestown and Mr. A. M. Fraser, Treasurer of Ernestown.

In a narrow but busy road a lorry driver kept holding up the traffic by climbing down from his driving seat to chase away several cyclists who were hanging on behind his lorry. But as soon as he was up again they came back.

The driver of the bus behind lost his temper at last, and shouted out:

"For the love of Mike, mate, leave the little brutes alone. I'm behind my schedule time already!"

"That's right, mister," shrieked one of the culprits, "you tell 'im off. We 'ate this trouble wiv 'im every morning!"

ANTHONY EDEN'S VISIT

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden has returned from his visit to The United States and Canada. He was non-committal as to the real purpose of his conversations with the American officials. Perhaps Under-Secretary of State Sumner Wells cast some light on it when he said, just after Mr. Eden had left: "I am revealing no State secret when I say to you that one of the gravest doubts which exists in the minds of our partners of The United Nations to-day, is the doubt as to what the policy of The United States will be when victory is won."

From this it is legitimate to infer that there is among the British and the Russian leaders, a fear that once the victory has been won The United States would draw back into its isolationism. This is not an unwarranted assumption. Already there are straws which indicate a slight tendency in that direction. The isolationists who were silenced immediately after Pearl Harbour, are gradually making themselves vocal again.

It is hard always to tell what would have happened if something else had happened, but it is a fair guess that had The United States remained within the League of Nations and pulled her fair share of the load in the world league, the situation we are in to-day might easily have been avoided. Naturally there is a fear among the partners of The United Nations, that the same thing will happen again. And it is likely that Mr. Eden came to talk the matter over with Mr. Roosevelt. Mr. Roosevelt's statement that, on essential matters, the partners of The United Nations group are ninety-five per cent. in agreement, is reassuring.

But nobody knows who will be in the White House when the war ends. Nobody can predict what a future Congress or Senate will do. But any rate, it would seem from what the President has said, that The United States will not forsake the reconstruction of the world so far as he is himself is concerned.

There is another feature that no doubt was in the discussions between Mr. Eden and Mr. Roosevelt, and that is Russia. Certain elements in The United States and for that matter in England, fear Russia's influence in the post-war world. What was agreed on with respect to the attitude of The United States and Russia as revealed in the conversations, will not be known. But if the two great Democracies are ninety-five per cent. in agreement on vital issues, we may rest assured that, so far as the present Washington Administration is concerned, there is nothing to fear with respect to their relations with Russia. Russia will be at the peace table, and if Great Britain and the United States stand their ground in the Russian economic system, there is hope for action to the reconstruction of the world, as now these nations are united for war.

ADVERTISING

A bit of a controversy has arisen recently over the merits of advertising. It all started when Mr. J. V. McAree, who writes a column in The Toronto Globe and Mail, set out to expound his philosophy of advertising. Mr. McAree argued that advertising a certain commodity does not affect the sales of any other commodity. The advertising of Ford cars, he maintained, did not increase the sale of Plymouth cars. The purpose of this argument was to show that the ban on liquor advertising was all wrong, for the advertising would not have increased drinking. It would merely have enabled the purchaser of liquor to know more about the various brands, so that he could make his purchases more intelligently.

It was fortunate for the public that this philosophy of advertising was not allowed to go unchallenged. Mr. James Fisher, of The James Fisher Advertising Agency, who is one of the best students of advertising and who has made it his life's work, takes issue with Mr. McAree. Mr. Fisher states clearly in a letter to The Globe and Mail, that he is not concerned with liquor advertising, but he challenges the whole point of view of Mr. McAree. Advertising, Mr. Fisher maintained, creates a market. It creates a demand. The fact that one advertiser advertises a certain article, helps the sale of other articles. Mr. Fisher quotes two examples, that of breakfast foods and motor cars. He says:

"When ready-cooked breakfast foods came onto the market at the beginning of this century, the advertising of a few leading brands created a market for ready-cooked breakfast foods as a class. Advertising revolutionized the eating habits of the people. The advertised articles won the major amount of the trade, but literally dozens of breakfast foods have found an outlet as a result of the advertising of the pioneers. Many other brands have since been advertised, but a basic market for ready-cooked breakfast foods was created and has been maintained by a few leaders.

"In the automobile field, Mr. McAree asserts that advertising of Ford cars does not promote the sale of other cars. Wrong again! The advertising of his car or cars by any one automobile manufacturer interests the public in motoring, and other manufacturers benefit. The advertising or a group of automobile manufacturers, each manufacturer advertising his own cars, developed the automobile market and literally put the community on wheels. Each helped the others."

Mr. Fisher is absolutely right. Those who have had anything to do with advertising know that one advertiser helps another. Let one firm advertise a big sale in the town and every merchant benefits. When this general principle is applied to liquor advertising, it follows that the government law on such advertising has certainly been instrumental in restricting the sale of alcoholic beverages. The government is to be commended for this action.

V

ONE SWALLOW . . .

"One swallow doesn't make a summer" — or something like that, goes the old proverb. And if a proverb is defined as the accumulated experience of the generations condensed into a few words, then that about the swallow qualifies. To be sure we hadn't seen a swallow, but we had seen a robin or two and had heard the crows. Then there were other evidences that seemed trustworthy. The snow was gone from the streets; the fields, lately white, were showing brown, with the white patches around the fences—not so white now but getting grayer as they diminshed in size. The cattle, too, were out on the sunny side of the barnyard, nosing into the straw stacks.

Taking it all and all, it looked as though the end had come—for Winter. Who can blame those who, believing the signs of the times, took off heavy overcoats, discarded winter wraps, left off rubbers and overshoes, and sallied forth. But, as we said above, quoting the aphorism tried and tested by experience, "One wsllow doesn't make a Summer," nor one robin, or crow, for that matter. And so back we go to the things we had all too soon discarded, wiser and sadder, with sunny nose, bleary eyes and achey back, hoping the next twittering of the birdies will not be a false alarm.

NOT SO SMART, EITHER

A news report from Chatham, Ont., tells of a farmer who beat the ceiling price on maple syrup by selling small maple trees and giving away a gallon of syrup with each tree sold. The ceiling price in that area was $2.75 a gallon—the farmer was able to get $3.75 by this piece of trickery. Apparently the farmer was legally within his rights, and got away with it.

But after all it reveals a queer kink in a man's make up. The farmer in question was out to defeat a law which was drawn up for his protection as well as the protection of others. It is notorious that the farmers have not had their share of the national revenue. They have been largely at the mercy of the buying public. But conditions have improved. The improvement is due in no small part to the way in which the prices and control board have sought to check inflation by a system of checks, and subsidies. If there is any doubt as to the success of this effort, the situation across the United States border would soon dissipate it. There are some ceilings in the States, but prices have risen to a much greater extent than here, and wages, always a lap behind prices, are mounting by leaps And bounds. But the purchasing power of the increased wages does not keep up with increased prices. The vicious inflationary spiral is at work. We have every cause to be grateful to Donald Gordon and his drastic but official methods of dealing with a serious tendency in this country. To a very large extent inflation has been defeated here.

When the ceilings and controls were first announced the Government pointed out that this effectiveness in checking inflation would depend, to large extent, on the co-operation of the ordinary citizen, who watched for price increases and refused to pay an advance in price for any commodity. That there has been a large measure of success in the application of the controls and ceilings, would indicate that the co-operation has been forthcoming.

It may be smart to give away a gallon of syrup with a maple sapling, it may be technically legal, but it reveals a type of mind that is hard to understand. The farmer who thought out this novel method of beating the law had an ingenious mind; but his ingenuity might be used to much better advantage in co-operating with the Government, in its life and death struggle with Hitler.

ALLIED SHIP OUTPUT BEATS LOSSES BY TWO MILLION TONS

London, (C.P.) — A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, said at the Guildhall, last week, that new shipping tonnage produced by the Allies in the last eight months exceeded losses by "a good deal more than 2,000,000 tons."

Calling the U-boat "the most deadly menace of all," Mr. Alexander said the Axis had a "very large number" of submarines at sea despite attacks on the enemy's building yards and operational bases.

"In the last six months there never has been a single day in which one or more attacks has not been delivered on U-boats," by the Royal Navy, he said, adding that "very heavy losses" were being inflicted on the undersea fleets.

IMPROVEMENT FORESEEN

Although Allied losses have been "both serious and heavy," he said "Nazi claims are always inflated" and in the next few months the Allied fleet of escort ships built on both sides of the Atlantic will increase rapidly.

British light naval forces consisting of motor launches, motor torpedo boats and motor gunboats now are gathered in the hundreds in each of these sections, Mr. Alexander said, and British losses of submarines had been more than replaced.

So many mines have been destroyed by British minesweepers, he added, that if "every one of them had sunk one of our merchant ships they would have destroyed the whole of the British Merchant Marine."

A foreign diplomatic meeting in London meanwhile reported from his contacts inside Axis lines that Germany had decided to greatly increase her efforts at production of submarines as well as guns, tanks and transport equipment.

CONFERENCE HELD

This source said Gen. Walther von Unruh, directing Germany's manpower pool; Fritz Sauckel, the German labor dictator; Walther Funk, Minister of Economics; Robert Ley, labor leader and others had decided at a conference, recently, to speed an increase of 24 to 28 per cent. in the manpower allotted to submarine production.

Increases of 25 per cent. for railway cars and locomotives and 18 per cent. for guns and tanks also was decided upon ,this source said.

He reported that airplane production goals would remain at around 2,000 planes a month, although the Reich has been able to produce less than 2,000 a month recently. Submarine production had declined to twenty a month, this source added.

ALLIES MASS INVASION FORCE

BY JOHN A. PARIS

London, (B.U.P.) — Britain, the United States and Canada are massing gigantic land, sea and air striking forces for invasions of Europe which will quickly end the Axis rule from Tunisia, Allied observers said to-day.

The main Allied landings, they believed, may be made in Norway and Greece, with a possible diversionary thrusts across the English Channel and North Sea into France, Belgium and Holland and across the Mediterranean into Italy.

Premier Winston Churchill already has disclosed that the Allies are preparing to launch "invasions" — and it was noteworthy that he used the word in the plural — this year. Men and war machines are pouring into Britain from North America in endless streams and a similar flow is probably also being maintained to North Africa, the base for any invasion of South Europe.

PINCERS THRUST

The attacks, if they are made through Norway and Greece, probably would constitute a great pincers movement directed at Germany herself. Any landing in Norway would be a potential threat to the great German ports and Wilhelmshaven and Kiel and might force Axis warships to abandon the Baltic to avoid being bottled up there, thus giving Soviet warships free rein.

Should the Allies invade Greece, they would find guerilla forces waiting to join them in the march through Yugoslavia and other occupied countries to Berlin.

The Germans have already ample evidence of their concern over invading invasions and in particular pending invasions and in particular fear that forces will land in Norway and Greece.

MEN COMMANDEERED

Private advices reaching Norwegian sources in London said Adolf Hitler has asked for another 85,000 Norwegian workers to construct additional fortifications at Narvik and Tromsoe, two of the principal Norwegian ports in the north. British and French troops landed in a futile attempt to throw out occupying German forces in April, 1940.

MME. CHIANG ASKS LABOR FOR TOTAL CO-OPERATION

San Parnicace, (B.U.P.) — Mme. Chiang Kai-shek, warning that dictension will spell defeat, called upon American labor to co-operate for increased production to help win the war.

"You must exert every ounce of your energy in co-operate to help win this war," she told 2,000 longshoremen and members of other labor organizations at the Congress of Industrial Organizations Hall.

"Because my own country has no heavy industries, we have been fighting with flesh and blood. You have heavy industries; you can provide the munitions not only for yourselves, but for China as well.

NO DIFFERENCE OF OPINION

"Production must increase," she declared. "We must let no discension, no difference of opinion come between us, because if we do, we will be defeated. Therefore, let all labor co-operate and increase production."

The tiny wife of China's generalissimo pounded the rostrum with her fist as she challenged:

"Are you ready to lose this war?" The workmen shouted, "No!"

"Do you want to win this war?" she asked.

Her audience roared: "Yes!"

"And so do we," Madame Chiang replied.

She declared that in order to win the peace, the war first must be won—"and that at the earliest moment possible."

"FELLOW WORKERS"

Madame Chiang addressed the group as "fellow workers" because "I am speaking to a cross section of all labor in America, both men and women ,and what I am going to say to you is meant for every one of the laborers in America."

She reiterated that she had "great affection" for the American people.

"I have always had affection for them because I was here as a child, and I know what Americans are, but I wish to tell you that my trip this time has increased my love for the American people and for the American cause."

"Again I wish to stress to you that it is necessary, it is vital that everyone of us, but not only that every working man and woman exert his best for the country because I know you are all patriotic, and 100 per cent patriotism does not conflict with having worthwhile universalism."

U. S. SHIPPING OUTPUT SOARS

Every World Record Claimed Broken

Washington.—The American shipbuilding industry has established a record for volume shipbuilding and for its end of 1942 probably will more than double its 1942 output of 8,090,000 deadweight tons, the Maritime Commission said in its annual report.

This year's goal already has been set at nearly 19,000,000 deadweight tons, the commission reported, adding that this can be stepped up to 20,000,000 tons, the present capacity of shipyards if materials and supplies are available.

Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, chairman of the commission and war shipping administrator, said the 1942 production did not include some 800 smaller craft and other vessels delivered to the armed services. Up to December 31, 1942, in all, 746 Victory fleet vessels were delivered, including 542 Liberty ships, 62 tankers, 6 ore-carriers, 62 long-range program C-type ships, 10 cargo carriers for Great Britain, five cargo liner ships and fifteen special type craft.

SPECIAL TYPES

In addition, he said, shipyards delivered special type vessels to the army and navy.

The report carries the warning that American shipyards now must not only supply adequate tonnage for a seven-seas navy but provide the United States armed forces with "a five-ocean supply coverage."

The report adds that there never has been and never can be "in the absolute sense" enough shipping to comply with all military and civilian requirements in wartime. Nevertheless, the report says, the American merchant fleet to date has been adequate to transport the vital materials furnished by loading at seaboard."

500,000 EMPLOYED

More than 500,000 men and women are now building merchant ships, the report disclosed, and 800 plants located in 32 states are turning out material for the victory fleet. More than 60 shipyards, with a total of 309 shipways are turning out ocean-going tonnage. In these yards about 2,500 ships will have been constructed by the end of 1943.

In addition to the construction job the nation's yards repaired more than 5,000 vessels in 1942, with the average repair job taking seventeen days.

A total of 1,250 ships also were converted under the Lend-Lease act, and some 1,300 vessels were fitted out for troops, guns and anti-mine equipment.

The report adds that the Maritime Commission also took over and reconditioned 105 alien-owned vessels last year.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To The Editor of
The Napanee Beaver.

Dear Editor: Last week it was our pleasure to have as our guest a native son of the Napanee District, William A. Wilson, now in Govan, Saskatchewan.

Some years back I wrote you about the fine people we knew in Saskatchewan, who came from your town and vicinity. Mr and Mrs. William A. Wilson were prominent among that group. It was indeed a pleasure to see Mr. Wilson again and to have him with us for a visit even if it was a brief one. As you know he was born near Selby and married Miss Agnes Miller of the same neighborhood. Their farm home was in or near that village and when W. A. decided to go out to Saskatchewan he sold their farm to his cousin, a Mr. Wilson, who is a brother of our old friend David B., a merchant of Napanee. Back in 1912 we went out to Saskatchewan to live and were fortunate in the selection of Govan for a home, for there we soon came in contact with the good people from Napanee.

While our home was being built we lived with Mr. and Mrs. Shirley Paul, and I need not tell you what a splendid couple they were. Through them we got to know Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Wilson, Mr and Mrs. Robert Paul, Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Neely, Oscar Martin, Bruce Paul, Harry VanLaven and family, and others from your good town. Then there were others from Belleville and nearby town, the Robins, Dickeys and Ketchesons. They were all fine people, standing for good government and the better things in life.

David B. Wilson, your hardware merchant lived for a while in Govan and taught an adult Bible class in the Methodist Church and will long be remembered for his kindness, as well as for his splendid interpretation of the Scriptures. Shirley Paul and his family were loyal supporters of the Church as was Oscar Martin. He and his family are there to this day, carrying on their farm.

Mr. and Mrs. Shirley Paul, Mr. and Mrs Robert Paul and Mrs. W. A. Wilson are the only ones on, but their works do follow them. Harry Neely, nephew of G. M. is in Govan and active in the civic, religious and business life of the community. Bruce Paul lives near Govan, also Lawrence a son of Harry VanLaven resides in that Govan district on the S. M. Neely farm.

We have been away from Govan more than twenty years and did enjoy having W. A. Wilson tell us about all the people we knew there since Mrs Wilson's death. W. A. has been with his son, Arthur, in Deansford, N.J. Arthur has a wonderful position with Standard Oil. In a few days W. A. will start for Govan, Saskatchewan, going via Watertown, N.Y., and Napanee. I only wish we could be with him at Napanee to see D. B. and wife, Mrs. G. M. Neely and Harry VanLaven and family. We had a nice visit with them about ten years back and at the time I told G. M. Neely I could not understand why anyone would leave Napanee for Saskatchewan.

It will not be a happy home going for W. A. for the completion of nearly half a century will not be easy for him, but he has a strong faith in an All Wise God and will keep busy with his affairs and doing kind deeds for others as has always been his custom.

Fish Conservation

Dear Sir:— At this season of the year, certain game fish move up rivers and streams to spawning grounds. Regretfully has been the habit of quite a number of persons to illegally fish by net, by spear, by other means of indiscriminate fishing, over the years, the supply of game fish in the streams waters and the cost to the taxpayers of re-stocking these waters with fish which will spawn encounter a opportunity nearly 400 fish. A most deplorable fact, is that in many instances these fish, are caught illegally sold and consumed.

To lovers of fishing, the practice is most reprehensible. Fishing waters are noted for reaching effects in the spring and plant life, as it is in these waters, that the greatest amount of balance which is necessary to keep stabilized. Much is given to wanton destruction of the magnitude of the spawning season: guides and fishermen suffer, fish suffer and the whole natural food, and plant life in rank and appearance. Fishing in stagnant waters, as the water and the fish are destroyed by thousands of fish and game.

It has been proven that where the difference does exist, there are two fish to one. I dare say multiply this number by twenty thousand times, and the difference will be quite apparent; who is at fault, what has, in so many words been done and the remedy. Surely it is all too apparent to those who legally.

When the Lennox and Addington Fish and Game Protective Association was formed, one of the objects was the education, not only of members, but the community at large, of the effects of several illegal practices upon the fish and game life of our county.

With the advent of new legislation, it is all the more necessary these illegal practices must be stopped, to allow all fish to mature before they are caught. Further the Ontario Fisheries Department will, no doubt, be able to supply fry and fingerlings for our lakes, streams and ponds, provided out of parent fish by the hatchees, no one should be allowed to seine and on rstock of potential fish. It begins to appear that the public has now nearly 150 members, many of whom are interested and described in the rules and regulations governing fishing. They are also on record as being willing to assist in the selling of game fish, and in some have been appointed game wardens, but in order to solve the problem of all people of the district to assist us in this great undertaking, we can help by refusing to buy illegally caught fish. Use your influence and to report to the secretary of the Association any and all persons offering such fish for sale.

The legal season for fishing hardly a month away. Let us all do our part to see that it.

Yours sincerely,
P. K. KETCHESON,
Lennox and Addington Fish and Game Protective Association.

Enemy planes were at last report, the sirens were wailing. Some man street of the control was startled a woman who cried:

"Take cover!" yelled an Air Raid Warden. "Can't you hear the sirens?"

The old man took his time to reply his mouth. "Yes, I hear them," he replied placidly, "but I reckon I'm all right where I am. I'm deaf as a post, and I'm too old to run. I figure if I'm where somebody can hear me when I'm dying, they'll be sure to get me out before the building falls on me."

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

LESSON APRIL 11TH, 1943

PETER AND JOHN WITNESS CHRIST'S GLORY

Lesson Text; Mark 9: 2-8. II Peter 1: 16-18

In this lesson we are in the realm of the unusual, the mysterious. Hard headed, practical-minded men and women will find difficulty. Only those who have entered somewhat into the spirit of Christ would be able to get the deep meaning of which this incident tells. Prayer was for a ritual, a formal thing. But when it is real, and deep and searching, it has a transforming effect on those who are the experience. We have all probably seen faces illuminated, brightened, as a result of prayer. Watch some saintly man or woman as they hold communion with God. And the inner ecstasy shows itself on the face.

Lesson Text; Mark 9: 2-8. II Peter 1: 16-18

In this lesson we are in the realm of the unusual, the mysterious. Hard headed, practical-minded men and women will find difficulty. Only those who have entered somewhat into the spirit of Christ would be able to get the deep meaning of which this incident tells. Prayer was for a ritual, a formal thing. But when it is real, and deep and searching, it has a transforming effect on those who are the experience. We have all probably seen faces illuminated, brightened, as a result of prayer. Watch some saintly man or woman as they hold communion with God. And the inner ecstasy shows itself on the face.

Jesus was accompanied by two others, Elijah the prophet and Moses the law-giver. There is no object in trying to explain this mysterious scientific explanation. We either accept it or reject it. The deeply religious man will find little difficulty. The man of science will reject what experience completely, but he must, however, which has significance for us is, that in some way or other the disciples were assured by the representative of the law, the representative of the prophets, and by God Himself, that Jesus was indeed His Son. That, after all, is the important matter.

Peter, rash and impetuous as usual, suggested that three huts should be built, one for Jesus, one for Elijah and one for Moses. He wished to keep them there. He failed to see that these matters did not belong to say and so made the offer. We can appreciate that Jesus had come with the unusual and the experience he had had put to, in an effort to get them to understand. So Peter made his suggestion. But it was out of order. No great thing can be done like that could be kept permanently. The mountain top experiences are rare when they do come are to be cherished, for just as such a character that they are to help to fit us. But besides this aim top experiences there are of the plain and the valley of the world's work has to be done where the ordinary things are carried on. So with Peter's suggestion. The straining of the mountain top and the little band forward to the mountain. But we must believe that not only was Peter not forthright in the spirit of the day ahead, but life for Jesus and James and John could not be the same again.

The second section of the lesson text, adds to that which preceded in the first, the experience in later years. The Christ's life were not considered. Had they been a myth they would have been destroyed. As it was men, wrote the story of Christ, recording the experiences as they had been told them. Peter wrote down the various things they remembered and there are some differences in the record but those very differences are evidence of the Scripture record.

The transformed life of the church's place in the world. The world's death. It will be a death which has unlimited possibilities for the forming power of the redeemed transformed life of Him who was likened unto Jesus as He died the death and crucifixion.

In the Garden

BY GORDON LINDSAY SMITH

Few people realize that one can start gardening very early and keep on planting right into July. Only when the business is extended fully in this way is it possible to maintain a supply of the freshest, vitamin-packed vegetables right through the season. In our Victory Gardens this year this point is especially important.

Early Planting There are some things which must get their first growth while the weather is cool and moist. In this line, of course, are shrubs, vines and trees and other nursery stock. One can hardly plant these too early.

There are also those flowers which normally seed themselves — things like cosmos, corn flowers, marigolds, and alyssum.

Grass is also in this category. Indeed if one waits until the weather really looks warm before putting in a new lawn or repairing an old one, then results are almost sure to be disappointing because grass makes its best growth only during cool, moist weather.

And in the vegetable line, too,

First Vegetables there are several that must get early growth in cool weather. These include peas, spinach, onions, early endive, radish and lettuce. One can plant all of these just as soon as the driest part of the garden is ready.

While one can hardly plant these vegetables too soon, one can easily stop planting them too soon. With most vegetables, the experts advise making at least three sowings, about ten days to a fortnight apart. In this way the gardener is protected against damage which might wipe out one sowing, and the season of garden fresh vegetables will be greatly extended.

Started Plants For speedy results, the use of started or bedding plants will help. These may be secured from the nearest seed firm or florist or professional gardener. They are plants from seed sown indoors, usually in a hotbed or greenhouse and are well grown when set outdoors as soon as danger from frost is over. They now come in a great variety of both flowers and vegetables. Only by the use of certain started plants is it possible to get flowers and vegetable maturity in some parts of Canada. Petunias, for instance, would hardly reach blooming stage in most parts of Canada if sown from seed outdoors. The same is true of tomatoes, and possibly of cabbage and other things. In transplanting these from the flats or baskets in which we buy them, one should water well, and if the sun is hot it is a good thing to provide a little shade for a day or two. Also, if these plants are in flower or are very tall, it is advisable to snip off flowers and pinch back main stems to encourage stocky growth.

Planting Hints There are various little ways the experienced gardener uses to hasten things along. With tiny seeds like those of lettuce, onions, etc., sowing will be more economical and need less arduous thinning if the fine seed is mixed with a little sand and the mixture spread thinly along the row. Allow potatoes to sprout in a sunny, warm room for a week or two and see that sprouts are not broken off in planting. Soak the seeds of beans, peas, beets, corn, etc., before planting.

Make Your Dollars Count Double

● What do you buy with your hard-earned dollars? Food, clothing, shelter? Then they are well-spent. But, the dollars that you have invested in Victory Bonds have a double value. They are helping to train, feed, equip and transport Canada's fighting men. At the same time that your Victory Bond investments are helping your country in her time of greatest need, they are paying you good interest. And, every day you find pleasure in thinking of how much they will mean to you when the war is over.

Very soon you will have a chance to buy more Victory Bonds. Dollars invested in this way will be even more valuable than ever because, our fighters are on the offensive. There's a better chance than ever for an early Victory. Think what this will mean to you and your family—to men and women everywhere who are born to be free.

Canada has sent a steady stream of men and materials to the fighting fronts. Now that we are marshalling for the attack, we must have huge reserves. It must be clear to all that the greater our available supply, our reserve of fighting tools, the fewer will be our losses in men.

You can help to save lives, hasten Victory, bring our men back home. You can help to assure "the four freedoms" for all—by buying Victory Bonds to the limit of your ability. You are not asked to give but only to lend. Help Canada. Safeguard your own future. Be ready to go the limit when the Victory Bond salesman calls.

To date the maple syrup and sugar industry in this vicinity reports a very poor year. Several farmers have their maples tapped, but declare a poor run of sap. This shortage is believed to be due to lack of frost in the ground. Also, because of there being no frost in the ground, many cellars have been flooded with water because of the vast amount of snow piled up during the winter and no frost to keep it from seeping through. The first snow storm hit this country November 12th, 1942, and, at time of writing, April 5th, the ground is covered with fresh snow, which makes five months of stiff winter. The past winter has been the hardest and longest one in many years.

The following is a list of work done by the Tamworth Red Cross Branch for the month of March and sent in to headquarters at Napanee:

Sewing: 5 quilts, 2 crib quilts, 1 boys' shirts, 7 pair ladies' bloomers, 2 men's windbreakers.

Knitting: 1 sleeveless sweater (Army), 2 turtle neck sweaters (A. F.), 1 turtle neck sweater (Army), 2 turtle neck tuck-ins (Navy), 2 pair gloves, 1 pair seaman's stockings, 1 pair service socks, 1 alternate cap.

Relief Work: 1 lady's coat, 2 ladies' sweaters, 4 girls' skirts, 1 child's dress, 1 child's sweater, 4 girls' dresses, 1 girl's coat, 1 suit child's underwear, 1 pair children's gloves.

Money raised: Tea collection, $6.10; cash donations, $2.25; total, $7.35.

THIRD HOLSTEIN WAR EFFORT CALF AUCTION

In 1941 and again in 1942 Canadian Holstein breeders, individually and through their County Clubs, donated calves to War Effort Calf Auctions that resulted in $13,445 being sent to Britain where it was largely used to assist in the relief of children among merchant sailors whose ships had been sunk. A contribution was also made to the Royal Air Force Benevolent Fund for pilots and crews. Again this year a similar auction is being planned to be held in two sections, one at Brampton on May 26 in conjunction with the National Holstein Sale and the other at Kemptville on May 27, as an opening feature of the All Eastern Ontario Sale. The former will be sponsored by the breeders of Western and Central Ontario and the latter by the breeders of Eastern Ontario and Quebec. A total of fifty heifer calves will be sold in all.

Officials of the Prince Edward and Lennox and Addington Holstein Breeders Clubs decided to donate one calf from the two clubs. Breeders who have heifer calves available for this purpose are asked to communicate with the secretary, Stewart Shetler, R.R. 7, Napanee. Offers for calves must be in his hands by April 10 at the latest and should be for heifers at least three months old. A committee of district breeders will select the most suitable animals from amongst those available. Application blanks and full information may also be secured at the office of the Agricultural Representative.

TRIBUTE TO THE LATE ES GERTRUDE WHITE

following poem, by Anne Suth- gays a very beautiful and able tribute to the tender ap- earning personality of the s Gertrude White, who was aff of the West Ward Public for a few years. Miss White Toronto about a month ago.

ut the Heaven, you open for feet too fair, too perfect, too mplete, be restless there and ill- ntions,
re help happily on earth rent to that small task oft great.
ou
ull to tell, some tenderness nuity to discover, Lord be

And give her young, child—angels there to mind!
Give her a garden-plot to bend above,
Give her your tired old angel-folk to love,
And some sweet instruments to play, She will be lovely in Your Heaven and gay
If she can whisper with each little task
This thing I do, I do to Him for oh—I love Him so!"

LARGE ATTENDANCE Anniversary Services TRINITY UNITED CH.

Rev. Harry Pawson, minister of Central United Church, Weston, was the preacher, both morning and evening, last Sunday, for Trinity United Church 103rd anniversary services.

The services, which were well attended by members of Trinity and Grace United Churches and many other citizens of the town and district were in charge of the minister of the latter church, Rev. G. M. Chidley. The choir under the direction of Mrs. J. E. Madden rendered excellent music both morning and evening.

The anthem in the morning was "Now Thank We All Our God," and a ladies trio by members of the junior choir, "He shall feed His flock." In the evening the choir's anthem was "I talked with God last night," and ladies trio sang "Lord Thou art mindful." Mrs. Harold Denison sang, "Come ye blessed," at the evening service.

A beautiful bouquet of pink carnations was placed before the pulpit by the Women's Association of Grace United Church. Rev. C. D. McLellan, minister of Grace Church, who was unable to be present, sent a letter expressing goodwill to the members of Trinity Church and thanks for the courtesy extended to the members of Grace Church during the past few months.

Mr. Pawson preached two sermons which were listened to with a great deal of interest and were of practical value to the large congregations because of their inspirational qualities.

In the morning Mr. Pawson based his discussion on the words of Jesus: "Take no thought for the morrow; for the morrow will take thought for the things of itself. Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof." He said that one's admonition to-day seems impossible to heed because of the many causes for anxiety and for people and thereby help them to live a fuller, richer life. He declared the fact that the Beveridge plan had been shelved by the British Government, the members of the armed forces, he said, will expect a new order when they return to civilian life. That is what they are fighting for and, in his opinion, the old order, with all its faults, and inequalities, is not worth wasting a life for.

It is difficult not to worry, Mr. Pawson said, and the best advice he could give to overcome anxiety in the future is to make whatever preparation for it that is possible, and to live a full life each day as it comes, plus "the best one has and to trust in God."

In the evening Mr. Pawson's address was on the "Reasons why people do not go to church." His text was Jesus' words to his disciples, "will ye also go away?" and Peter's reply, "Lord to whom shall we go? Thou have the words of eternal life."

Mr. Pawson enumerated a number of reasons for staying away from church, gleaned from a questionnaire sent out by the minister of a large city church. He showed the fallacy of the reasons how superficial they were and how lacking in a knowledge of the true value of the church and its influence on the lives of people. Mr. Pawson pointed out how absolutely necessary the church and attendance at church are to fully rounding out a life. All else but following the teaching of Jesus has been tried and found ineffective and he recommended as an antidote for the ills under which the world is suffering to-day, a real application in all spheres of Jesus' way of life, difficult as it may be to follow.

MARCH MEETING HOME - SCHOOL ASSOCIATION

The March meeting of the Napanee Home and School Association was held on the afternoon of March 31st, 1943, at the West Ward Public School. The president, Mrs. Hunt, opened the meeting by reading the Aims of the Home and School Association.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. Mrs. F. Knox acted in the absence of the secretary.

A letter from the federation was read, asking for a donation of $1.00 to the federation, to help cover the expense of the annual meeting. It was moved by Mrs. T. Hunt and seconded by Mrs. L. Scrimshaw, that this donation be sent to the federation. Carried.

A letter was then read giving the dates for the annual convention to be held at the Royal York Hotel on April 26th, 27th, and 28th and an invitation extended to anyone who might be able to attend.

The business report was then given showing a balance on hand of $12.50. Mrs. Hunt spoke, asking anyone for books which would be suitable for children of all ages, in hopes that we could start a school library.

A class demonstration of musical numbers, consisting of "God save the King," "Home Sweet Home," and "School Days," was given by the pupils of Miss Tuckett's room.

Mrs. Moore, convener of the membership committee, reported five new members. This she followed with a reading of "Early Impressions."

Very Rev. E. M. Leacy addressed the meeting on "Home Relationship." He said the Home and School Association is getting on well. Parents, both teachers and parents are working together and the children will reflect the influence of both homes, schools and churches. He pointed out that children should be taught to "honor their father and mother" and to "honor thy father and thy mother, that thy days may be long upon the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee." Children should be taught to respect their parents and their elders, reverence above all, obedience to their parents or those in authority over them, and to be kind to their brothers and sisters. Children should be taught to be thankful for the many blessings they receive from their parents and to show their appreciation by their actions. Children should be taught to be truthful, honest, and to be ashamed of telling lies. Children should be taught to be clean in their speech, their habits and their thoughts. Children should be taught to be reverent in church and to show respect for the house of God. Children should be taught to be kind to animals and to be merciful to them. Children should be taught to be courteous to their elders and to show respect for old people. Children should be taught to be obedient to the laws of the land and to respect the rights of others. Children should be taught to be loyal to their country and to be willing to serve it. mothers to be fair to other children, treat each child the same and that the teachers also show no partiality with the pupils. The last, but not the child on and brings together the mother, child and teacher. He pointed out that a child who is trained to obey at once and willingly reveres the parents and teachers who taught him this discipline. In this way we train a child to honor and fidelity to God and country.

Captain Hughson, on behalf of the Association, thanked the speaker.

Mr. Russell Hunter, chairman of the Blood Donors Clinic of the Red Cross, gave an interesting talk on blood donors.

He pointed out that 50 per cent. of the Association's Convention members were donors and all that is required on the part of a donor is health and patriotism. The donor must be examined first by a doctor to ascertain that he is able to give blood. It takes about eight or ten minutes to give nine-tenths of a pint, which is the "average amount taken at one time, and can usually be given about every three months." He explained the four types of blood and how each individual type is arrived at. This blood is used for overseas service is pooled and taken to the Connaught Laboratory in Toronto, the only one yet in Canada, where it can be dried by vacuum process and is known as dried blood or plasma. When needed this is mixed with sterilized, distilled water and used as blood transfusions, saving many lives.

SPRING FEVER — FOR HOUSECLEANING!

Hello Homemakers!.. As Spring draws near, we are eager to tackle our housecleaning — to be "up and at it." This year the house cannot be ripped apart but that needn't worry us for it was never really necessary. Then, too, you know that certain renovations are out until "Johnny comes marching home."

Perhaps you have a scheme of your own? There's the bit-by-bit method, with your housecleaning systematically spread over a couple of months. Walls, floors, furniture and accessories are dealt with piece by piece, or room by room, etc. This does not upset the whole house.

In pioneer days there was just one type of floor and one method of cleaning it — with sand (or strong soap) and water, plus plenty of elbow grease. Today there are many types of floors and finishes, each requiring special care. This is true, too, of all our home furnishings.

Below, we answer some of the questions most often asked about cleaning, since it is impossible to deal with all of them. But do write us about your own special housecleaning problems and we promise to answer promptly.

CEILINGS AND WALLS

Care depends on the finish. Clean them a little at a time. Calcamined and papered surfaces are dusted. Painted and wood-panelled surfaces may be carefully washed. Rub in a small portion; then dry it thoroughly. Many women apply self-polishing wax to clean dry-painted walls to prevent fingerprints and soil.

SPOTS

Crayon — Sponge lightly with a clean soft cloth dampened with carbon tetrachloride; blot and repeat. Do not rub.

Smudge — use a dough type of wallpaper cleaner or art gum eraser.

Ink — blot immediately. Then apply a paste of fuller's earth. Ink blesches are apt to remove colour—apply cautiously.

Grease — hold a clean white blotter over spot and apply a warm iron; or apply a paste of fuller's earth and when dry, clean off with a cloth dampened with carbon tetrachloride.

Water Stains — apply a paste of fuller's earth and carbon tetrachloride. Leave on overnight.

Tears — tear a piece of wallpaper to match; apply paste carefully; then press piece into place with a clean blotting paper.

WOODWORK

Painted woodwork should be cleaned often with a strong linen or clear, softened water; then dried off thoroughly. If heavy soil has collected, use a paint cleaner made of: half cup soap flakes dissolved in one quart hot water. Cool until jelly-like and stir in half cup whiting. Apply cleaner with a damp cloth, then polish with lemon oil. Always apply a thin film of oil. Let remain for fifteen minutes ,then take up excess with soft cloth. Black marks may be rubbed with fine pumice. Do not rub around spot.

WASHABLE SHADES

Take them down one at a time; dust thoroughly and place on flat surface. Scrub shade with a soft brush or sponge with thick suds. Use water sparingly. Rinse off with cloth wrung out of clear water. Dry. Hang, but do not roll up until thoroughly dry.

PICTURES

This year you'll want to change them around to make your rooms different. Frequent dusting behind pictures prevents ominous black lines. A paste of fuller's earth left on to dry may remove a mushroom line. Picture frames need waxing and polishing occasionally. Wooden frames require a little lemon oil, applied gently — never rub.

LIGHTING FIXTURES

Dust on light bulbs and globes reduces the amount of light, so keep them clean for you pay for. Before cleaning fixtures, turn off the electric current and remove shades, bulbs, etc. Then use the dusting attachment of the electric vacuum to go over fixtures. Wipe bulbs with damp cloth. Be careful not to get the metal section wet. Dry thoroughly. If bulbs are extremely dirty, hold by metal and dip in soapsuds. Dry carefully. If bulbs look very dark after they have been cleaned, replace with new ones. Painted metal bases are wiped off with a soft cloth dampened with one part turpentine and ten parts mineral oil; marble bases are cleaned with rag dampened in crystal bases with a cloth dipped in water and household ammonia, and dried thoroughly. Hand-painted silk shades must be dry cleaned. Linen or homespun cannot be washed but may be dry cleaned. Imitation parchment should have the pasted edges protected, then clean with turpentine. Genuine parchment is wiped with a cloth sprinkled with a mixture of one part turpentine and ten parts mineral oil.

ANNE ALLAN invites you to write to her in care of The Beaver. Send in your questions on homemaking problems and watch this column for replies.

LETTERS FROM NICKEY

THE STORY OF LIFE IN THE C.W.A.C.

Dear Babs:

Life in the Canadian Women's Army Corps continues to march on and I have never been more happy. Incidentally, the regularity of the life and the ten-thirty curfew are agreeing with me. Of course, a couple of nights every week I am entitled to a late pass expiring at midnight, but even so, I have never before had such a regular life and I am brimming over with vim and vigor.

I attended my first N.C.O. meeting last night and amazed myself by airing my views thoroughly. As you know, Keeches are lacking in my line, but last night I was really going great guns. Perhaps it would have been more seemly for a lowly lance-corporal to sit and listen to her betters, but I was carried away. You see, the crowd at Number Seven (our quarters at Kemptville) take a keen interest in C.W.A.C. affairs and they felt that I should represent them. I think I put some of their ideas across, too.

After the N. C. O. meeting, we had a session drill and I had a wonderful time — my first experience acting corporal at drill. I said "left, right, left, right" fiercely and my voice is like a sergeant major. Oh, I had a little difficulty, once or twice, when I called the step on the wrong foot and put the girls off — I could feel my face turning a rich tomato, but I survived. I may add that the inmates of Number Seven were full of praise regarding me about it later when we were having a bedtime snack. Frankie looked at me with blue eyes dancing and drawled, "well, well, Corporal, haven't you heard ? There is a left foot and a right foot. The right foot when advancing is followed in an orderly fashion by the left . . ." Without waiting for more, I tossed a pillow at her and then somehow everyone was in the scuffle. However, the Orderly Officer chose this minute to rap into Number Seven and we untangled fast.

Dear old Barty has me worried; she has run out of five syllable words. I think I know the trouble. She is visibly pining for her wretched Cuthbert. I could cheerfully wring his neck. On completing his course he gallantly presented her with a handsome little tome of a thousand odd pages on the Ancient Aztec Civilization and after bowing many times with his hand on his heart, or reasonable facsimile thereof, disappeared into boundless prairie. So now we have Barty looking like the Lady Maid and all but trailing widow's weeds. Evidently Cuthbert with his enormous words and mental gymnastics made quite an impression.

Well, my dear, I have been putting off the evil moment, but I really must go and do some mending. I find stocking-spring holes very quickly in the C.W.A.C. and I don't want the Orderly Sergeant pouncing on me for being improperly dressed.

Take good care of yourself. Duck, and write soon.

Best love,
NICKEY

How to Maintain The Lawn in Spring

The spring maintenance of lawns should start as soon as the snow melts and the soil becomes sufficiently dry to permit work, says J. H. Boyce, Forage Plants Division, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa. The first operation is to rake the lawn to remove the winter's accumulation of twigs, leaves and other debris. Any perennial weeds that emerge should be pulled or cut out at this time. The soil on thin, bare areas should be thoroughly raked in order to prepare a seed bed. These areas should then be seeded with an adapted seeds mixture at the rate of two to four pounds per 1,000 square feet according to the thinness of the turf. After the seed has been uniformly scattered over the area it may be covered by raking or by the application of a thin layer of screened topsoil, after which the seeded areas should be rolled.

Except for the rolling after seeding, only one rolling is necessary each year, and then only in districts where frost has caused heaving. The rolling should be done after the frost is out of the ground and before the soil becomes too dry. Heavy soils should never be rolled when very wet.

Proper fertilization is a very important part of the lawn maintenance program, the chief demand of the grass being for nitrogen. Poor turf requires the application of phosphorus and sometimes potash as well as nitrogen. A recent order of the War Time Prices and Trade Board prohibits the sale of fertilizers containing chemical nitrogen for use on lawns. There is no restriction on the use of organic fertilizers as yet, and they may be used on lawns with satisfactory results. The indiscriminate use of fertilizers on turf is not recommended, because as much as possible of the available fertilizer should be reserved for food production. If a lawn is in a vigorous, healthy condition fertilization may be greatly reduced or eliminated without injuring it seriously. Lawn owners who do not object to white clover may encourage it by the application of phosphorus and potash fertilizers, and in some cases lime. A high proportion of clover in the lawn will reduce the amount of nitrogen that it is necessary to apply in order to maintain a healthy grass. The best time to apply fertilizer in the spring is before the grass starts its new growth.

Lawn mowers should be repaired and sharpened well in advance of the growing season. Mowing should start early and at first should be long, heavy growth of grass be permitted. Cutting back such a growth always gives the grass a severe setback. The grass should never be cut to a height of less than one inch. The height of one and a half to two inches is much to be preferred, particularly during the warmer months.

Additional information on the construction and care of lawns may be secured from the Division of Forage Plants, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

WESLEY MISSION CIRCLE

The February meeting of Wesley Mission Circle was held at Mrs. Ray Campbell's. After the opening hymn, the Lord's Prayer was repeated in unison. The scripture lesson was read by Miss Pearl Scilley. Grace Cook and Lorne Campbell gave interesting readings and Mrs. Harold Cook took charge of the chapter of the study book entitled "The Tide Comes In." Business was dealt with and plans for the February meeting were discussed. For the forthcoming March meeting Alvin Lockridge is to prepare the program, while Ellen McKeown will have charge of the study book. The Mizpah benediction closed a profitable meeting.

GRACE CHURCH W.M.S.

The Easter Thank-offering meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of Grace United Church was held in the Sunday School room on Thursday afternoon with a good attendance. Miss Meta Mellow, president, presided for the business period. Mrs. Aubrey Pringle took charge of the devotional and was assisted by Mrs. Percy Sharpe. Mrs. C. D. McLellan, referred to the Battle River Hospital, and a donation is to be given by the local organization in memory of the late Mrs. Kemp, by all the auxiliaries. The guest speaker was Mrs. H. B. Herrington of Newburgh, who gave a most interesting talk on systematic giving. Mrs. James Haggerty introduced Mrs. Herrington, and a vote of thanks was extended to the speaker by Mrs. Alex. MacGregor, and was unanimously carried. In the absence of Mrs. Perry Vine, treasurer, her report was read by Miss Olive Hambly. Mrs. James Haggerty was appointed alternate delegate to the Presbyterial.

The meeting closed with a hymn and the Mizpah benediction.

SILLSVILLE W. A.

On March 25 the Sillsville W. A. held a war work meeting at the home of Mrs. Laura Smith, which was well attended. The meeting opened by singing a hymn, followed by repeating the Beatitudes and the Lord's Prayer. A quilt was quilted. The top was donated by Mrs. Harold Young. Several aprons were sold. The sum of $37 was realized from the euchres held in the hall through the winter months, in aid of the war fund. An error was made in the report in The Beaver, two weeks ago. It was all of the members of the Sillsville W. A. who donated the sum of $5.00 to the Belleville relief fund and not the treasurer alone.

A hymn closed the meeting and a delicious lunch was served by the hostess and the Misses Dorothy Cuthill and Mary Crichton.

SPRING FEVER FOR HOUSECLEANING !

Hello Homemakers !.. As Spring draws near, we are eager to tackle our housecleaning — to be "up and at it." This year the house cannot be ripped apart but that needn't worry us for it was never really necessary. Then, too, you know that certain renovations are out until "Johnny comes marching home." Perhaps you have a scheme of your own ? There's the bit-by-bit method, with your housecleaning systematically spread over a period of months. Walls, floors, furniture and accessories are dealt with a spot by piece, or room by room, etc. This does not upset the whole house.

In pioneer days there was just one type of floor and one method of cleaning it — with sand (or strong soap) and water, plus plenty of elbow grease. To-day there are many types of floors and finishes, each requiring special care. This is true, too, of all our home furnishings.

Below, we answer some of the questions most often asked about cleaning, since it is impossible to deal with all of them. But do write us about your own special housecleaning problems and we promise to answer immediately.

CEILINGS AND WALLS

Care depends on the finish. Clean them a little at a time. Calcimined and papered surfaces are dusted. Painted and wood-panelled surfaces may be carefully washed. Use a small portion, then dry it thoroughly. Many women apply self-polishing wax to clean dry-painted walls to prevent fingerprints and soil.

SPOTS

Crayon — Sponge lightly with a clean soft cloth dampened with carbon tetrachloride; blot and repeat. Do not rub.

Smudge — use a dough type of wallpaper cleaner or art gum eraser.

Ink — blot immediately. Then apply a paste of fuller's earth. Inkbleaches are apt to remove colours — apply cautiously.

Grease — hold a clean white blotter over spot and apply a warm iron; or apply a paste of fuller's earth and when dry, clean off with a cloth dampened with carbon tetrachloride.

Water stains — apply a paste of fuller's earth and carbon tetrachloride. Leave on overnight.

Tears — tear a piece of wallpaper to match; apply paste carefully; then press piece into place with a clean blotting paper.

WOODWORK

Painted woodwork should be cleaned with a cloth wrung lightly out of clear, softened water; then dried off thoroughly. If heavy soil has collected, use a paint cleaner made of half cup soap flakes dissolved in one quart hot water. Cool until jellied and stir in half - cup whiting. Apply cleaner with a damp cloth, then polish with lemon oil. Always apply a thin film of oil. Let remain for fifteen minutes then take away excess with soft cloth. Black marks may be rubbed with fine pumice. Do not rub around spot.

WASHABLE SHADES

Take them down one at a time; dust thoroughly and place on flat surface. Prevents omissions. Wash with a soft brush or sponge with thick suds. Use water sparingly. Rinse off with cloth wrung out of clear water. Dry. Hang, but do not roll up until thoroughly dry.

PICTURES

This year you'll want to change them around to make rooms look different. Frequent dusting behind pictures prevents omissions. Wash with a soft brush or sponge with thick suds. Use water sparingly. Rinse off with cloth wrung out of clear water. Dry. Hang, but do not roll up until thoroughly dry.

LIGHTING FIXTURES

Dust on light bulbs and globes reduces the amount of light, so keep bulbs and lights clean to get the amount of light you pay for. Before cleaning fixtures, turn off the electric current and remove shades, bulbs, etc. Then use the dusting attachment of the electric vacuum to go over fixtures. Wipe bulbs with damp cloth, being careful not to get the metal section wet. Dry thoroughly. If bulbs are extremely dirty, hold by metal end and dip in soapsuds. Dry carefully. If bulbs look very dark after they have been cleaned, replace with new ones. Painted metal bases are wiped off with a soft cloth dampened with one part turpentine and ten parts mineral oil; marble bases are cleaned with raw linseed oil; crystal bases with a cloth dipped in alum and household ammonia, and dried thoroughly. Hand-painted silk shades must be dry cleaned. Linen shades may be carefully washed but may be dry cleaned. Imitation parchment should have the pasted edges reinforced, then clean with turpentine. Genuine parchment is wiped with a cloth sprinkled with a mixture of one part turpentine and ten parts mineral oil.

ANNE ALLAN invites you to write to her in care of The Napanee Beaver. Send in your questions on homemaking problems and watch this column for replies.

LETTERS FROM NICKEY

THE STORY OF LIFE IN THE C.W.A.C.

Dear Babs:

Life in the Canadian Women's Army Corps continues to fascinate me and I have never been more happy. Incidentally, the regularity of the life and the ten-thirty curfew are agreeing with me. Of course, a couple of nights every week I am awakened to a late pass expiring at midnight, but even so, I have never before led such a regular life and I am brimming over with vim and vigor.

I attended my first N.C.O. meeting last night and amazed myself by airing my views thoroughly. As you know, speeches are out of my line, but last night I was really going great guns. Perhaps it would have been more seemly for a little lance-corporal to sit and listen to her betters, but I was carried away. You see, the crowd at Number Seven (our quarters at Kemptville) take a keen interest in C.W.A.C. affairs and they felt that I should represent them. I think I put some of their ideas across, too.

After the N. C. O. meeting, we had platoon drill and I had a wonderful time — my first experience acting corporal at drill. I said "left, right, left, right" fiercely and felt like an sergeant major. Oh, I had a little difficulty, once or twice, in called the step on the wrong foot and put the girls off — I could feel my face turning a rich tomato, but I survived. I may add, that the inmates of Number Seven were not above ragging me about it later when we were having a bedtime snack. Frankie looked at me, her blue eyes dancing and drawled, "well, well, Corporal, haven't you heard ? There is a left foot and a right foot. The right foot when advancing is followed in an orderly fashion by the left . . . " Without waiting for more, I tossed a pillow at her and then somehow everyone was in the scuffle. However, the Orderly Officer chose this minute to nip into Number Seven and we untangled fast.

Dear old Barly has me worried; she has run out of five syllable words. I think I know the trouble. She is visibly pining for her wretched husband. I could cheerfully wring his neck. On completing his course he gallantly presented her with a delicious little tome of a thousand odd pages on the Ancient Aztec Civilization and after bowing many times with his hand on his heart, or rear-guncer, as I call it, he presented the parcel into soundless prairie. So now we have Barly looking like the Lily Maid and all but trailing widow's weeds. Evidently Cuthbert with his enormous words and mental gymnastics made quite an impression.

Well, my dear, I have been putting off the evil moment, but I really must go and do some mending. I find stocking spring holes very quickly in the C.W.A.C. and I don't want the Orderly Sergeant pouncing on me for being improperly dressed.

Take good care of yourself, Duck, and write soon.

Best love,

NICKEY

GRACE CHURCH W.M.S.

The Easter Thank-offering meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of Grace United Church was held in the Sunday School room on Thursday afternoon with a good attendance. Miss Mata Mellow, president, presided for the business period. Mrs. Aubrey Pringle took charge of the devotional and, was assisted by Mrs. Percy Sharpe, Mrs. O. D. McLellan, referred to the Table River Hospital, and a donation is to be given by the local organization in memory of the late Mrs. Knox, by all the auxiliaries. The guest speaker was Mrs. H. B. Herrington of Newburgh, who gave a most interesting talk on systematic giving. Mrs. James Haggerty introduced Mrs. Herrington and a vote of thanks was extended to the speaker by Mrs. Alex. MacGregor, and was unanimously carried. In the absence of Mrs. Percy Vine, treasurer, her report was read by Miss Olive Hambly. Mrs. James Haggerty was appointed alternate delegate to the Presbyterial.

The meeting closed with a hymn and the Mizpah benediction.

SILLSVILLE W. A.

On March 28 the Sillsville W. A. held a war work meeting at the home of Mrs. Laura Suthill, which was well attended. The meeting opened by singing a hymn, followed by repeating the Beatitudes and the Lord's Prayer. A quilt was quilted. The tea was donted by Mrs. Harold Young. Several aprons were sold. The sum of $37 was realized from the quilters held in the hall through the winter months, in aid of the war fund. An error was made in the report in The Beaver, two weeks ago. It was all of the members of the Sillsville W. A. who donated the sum of $5.00 to the Chinese relief fund and not the treasurer alone.

A hymn closed the meeting and a delicious lunch was served by the hostess and the Misses Dorothy Cuthill and Mary Creighton.

INTERVIEW WITH CHAIRMAN

I was at ease just a second after being ushered into his office. Donald Gordon, Chairman of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board at 41 years of age a big, dark man, wearing heavy glasses, but with a twinkle in his eyes and a soft Scotch accent in his speech kinda dominates the room, the big piles of papers and documents on his desk, and you like him right away.

I thought, in this last article, you'd like to know something about the man who pulls the strings that juggle your living these days. But he didn't want to talk about himself. He'd just flown in from Vancouver, was busier than heck and said, after a little plain gossip, "Fire ahead, ask me questions." So I did. I had a few things in my mind that I know you have had unanswered, too. So like his answers, not mine.

"What, in a nutshell ,are the benefits to citizens in general from the Wartime Prices and Trade Board ?" I asked, and he replied. I made actual notes. "The savings to consumers of the country can roughly be estimated at $350,000,000, and to the taxpayers as a whole a similar amount in the costs of the war to date. That's cash, but there is a much greater saving in human terms, for if inflation were to rear its ugly head, money could not measure the human misery, to say nothing of the effectiveness of our part in the United Nations' war against Hitler and the Japs."

Co-operation in Switch From Peace to War

To my questions if disadvantages had cropped up, he admitted some had, but they were inherent in the switch from a peacetime to wartime economy, and none that cannot be worked out with the co-operation of primary producers, industry and consumers.

Maybe I tried to stymie him when I asked if controls, such as price ceilings, would stay after the war, permanent or temporary. "That," he said, "will be matter of government policy, and in the final analysis for the people themselves." I wanted elaboration. Supposing the war lasts two or three years more ?

"Insofar as price control is concerned, it is the creature of government, but it will also depend, largely, upon the future form of the war itself and how Canada can best fit into an effective part in the defensive. If, for instance, parts of conquered Europe should be opened up, we would need to feed starving millions. That might be one thing. If it's tools for an offensive, that's another matter. We can only take such action as may be justified by the day-to-day developments. It's obvious that all of us must be ready to give up much of what we have been used to, and in even measure, if we are to be honest with ourselves in the demands for a total war effort."

"Would you mind answering me if I ask whether there is any political interference in your set-up?" Even his mustache bristled as he answered one word, "None."

What About Subsidies ?

I wanted his say-so on subsidies. You know as people back in the country are liable to think they help the big shot, and are designed for that purpose. He put me behind the eight-ball by saying this:

"As a matter of fact, subsidies are of relatively greater help to the little fellow than to the big shot you speak of. The big fellow is generally in a stronger financial position, and could weather the storms, but if subsidies were not paid to the little fellows they would be the first to fall by the wayside. Subsidies are paid and designed mainly for two purposes: one, to assure a stable cost of living, and secondly to assure a supply of essential goods. These are handled in what can definitely be said in the interests of the entire population. They are paid in no case to increase profits, and the strictest accounting is made throughout."

That dominating figure of a man leaned over his desk as he spoke as seriously and earnestly, I thought, to me as to Mr. Ilsley. Then I wanted to know if his surveys show that more compulsion is necessary or are people co-operating with the administration.

"We have the finest co-operation imaginable from the rank and file of Canadian people," he declared. "In this connection we are the envy of our neighbours and our friends across the sea. True, some selfish interests appear from time to time, but we cannot permit any deviation in the policy laid down by the government. A few others" (said a mighty few, he made it plain) "try to beat the game, but we have one standard remedy for them and that is recourse to the courts of the land. What happens then is the responsibility of the judiciary."

"No amount of compulsion in a democratic country," Mr. Gordon pointed out, "can equal in effectiveness the co-operation of a people such as ours acting of their own volition with enlightenment and understanding."

"We Have Done Our Best"

The chairman assured me he was aware that an organization like the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, run by ordinary human beings, had made mistakes and has its shortcomings; and here he pointed a really big index finger at me. "We have done our best, all of us." He was sure that the inflation policy of the governments has, at heart, the best long run interests of the wage earning class. To wreck that policy, or to make its administration impossible, is an act he considers one of self-destruction. Well, you readers out in the country can take it or leave it.

Mr. Gordon says Canada has made economic history by demonstrating that inflationary effects of war can be controlled. But he is determined as long as he has anything to do with it that to prove it can be done is not sufficient. The policy must be seen through. To do so, in his opinion, there can be no weakening on any one of five points, namely: the fiscal policy (money to you) calling for maximum taxation and borrowing; the price ceiling; salary and wage stabilization; control and rationing of supplies as found necessary, and the direction of manpower to essential uses.

Farmers and Inflation

And here I asked the question important to these articles. How about the belief among some that farmers constitute the one group who could benefit from inflation ? Here is his answer: "Those who hold this belief seldom advocate inflation openly but we hear it argued that under inflation agricultural prices would rise faster than the prices of goods or supplies needed for farm consumption. No one can say positively whether this would happen or not, and I fervently hope we never have the opportunity of finding out. We do know, however, that the last time the experiment was tried, in 1914-1920, everyone suffered eventually and farmers, I guess, the most heavily of all."

The Chairman feels we are not paying a heavy price to avoid the disaster of inflation. It takes only, in his mind, teamwork and organization. And so I left him. 'Twas short as interviews go, but maybe there is a thought for you and I in it.

Guard Your Gasoline Ration Book

KEEP IT ON YOUR PERSON • DO NOT LEAVE IT IN YOUR CAR

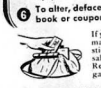
NOW that you have your 1943-1944 gasoline ration book, it is up to you to keep it at all times in a safe place. If it is lost, burned, or stolen, you will be deprived of coupons which will not be replaced. In this regard, the policy of the Oil Controller is as follows:

● If, through negligence, you lose your gasoline ration book before October 1, 1943, you may be allowed no more, and perhaps less, than half the coupons to which you would be entitled if you were making an original application.

● If, through negligence, you lose your ration book on or after October 1, 1943, you may be allowed no more, and perhaps less, than 25 per cent of the coupons to which you would be entitled if you were making an original application.

The new gasoline rationing system, effective on April 1, will be strictly enforced. Under its provisions, the motorist, as well as the service station attendant, is held responsible if any infractions occur. It is contrary to the orders of the Oil Controller:

1. To purchase gasoline with 1942-1943 coupons.
2. To purchase gasoline unless you have the correct category sticker affixed to your windshield.
3. To detach coupons from your own book. (The removal of the coupons is the duty of the attendant.)
4. To have in your possession a gasoline ration coupon not attached to, and forming a part of, a gasoline ration book.
5. To have in your possession a gasoline ration book other than the book issued in respect of a vehicle you own, or in respect of a vehicle driven by you with the full consent of the real owner.
6. To alter, deface, obliterate, or mutilate any gasoline ration book or coupon.



If you sell your motor vehicle, remember that before making delivery you must remove the windshield sticker or stickers. Remember also that after the sale is completed, you must mail to the nearest Regional Oil Control Office in your province the gasoline ration book or books issued for the vehicle.

Canada's FARMS... BRITAIN'S TABLE

In the United Kingdom, millions of brave men, women and children look to Canada's farms for their daily food.

Canadian farmers, who have never failed in times of peace to produce and export the needed table supplies, now are intensifying their efforts to feed the people and armies of Britain.

On Canada's broad acres farmers are fighting a great battle of production so that Britain shall not lack the grains, meats, fruits, vegetables and dairy products essential to victory.

The Bank of Montreal's complete wartime banking service is extended to Canada's farmers through hundreds of branches from coast to coast. Our export department is daily financing shipments of foodstuffs for Britain.

GREAT DEMAND FOR MAPLE SYRUP ON NAPANEE MARKET

The crowds of people around the few cans of maple syrup on the market last Saturday made the market look like the bargain basement in a department store on a sale day. The demand was greater than the supply and the small quantity of syrup offered for sale was soon sold. The price, in tins, was $1.60 per gallon.

Eggs were the same as the previous week: 28c., 32c., and 35c. per dozen. Little pigs sold at $14.00 per pair.

ALICE L. HARSHAW CHAPTER I. O. D. E. RECEIVES CHARTER

Mrs. Mervyn Owen is First Regent

The Historical Hall, Napanee, was the scene of an impressive ceremony last Friday evening, April 9th, when Mrs. M. S. Somers, of Tillsonburg, Provincial Organizing Secretary, visited the newly-formed Alice L. Harshaw Chapter, I.O.D.E. and presented the charter. Mayor D. R. Hall was chairman of the evening and gave a short address, commenting on the work and history of the U. E. L. Chapter, of which Mrs. Harshaw was Regent for many years, and predicted a bright future for the new chapter, which bears her name.

Following the prayer of the Order, Mrs. D. R. Hall, Regent of the U. E. L. Chapter, introduced Mrs. Somers who presented the charter to Mrs. M. Owen, Regent of the Alice L. Harshaw chapter. The standard and speerhead, which had been given by Mrs. Hall and Miss Jean Light, were presented by Mrs. Hall. The beautiful flag, given to the chapter by Mrs. Harshaw, was presented by Mrs. J. F. Cook, who read a message of congratulation and best wishes from Mrs. Harshaw, who now resides in Toronto. The prayer of dedication was read by the Venerable Archdeacon R. J. Dumbrille of St. Mary Magdalene's Church. Mrs. Katherine Powell presented the gavel, which had been made and given to the chapter by Mr. Jack Cook. A picture of His Majesty King George VI, was then presented from the U. E. L. Chapter, through the kindness of Mr. and Mrs. John Diamant.

The address of the evening was given by Mrs. Somers, who touched on the aims and objects of the Order, the past meritorious accomplishments on behalf of the Empire, and the possibilities ahead for this new group. Quoting their motto: "Service for Survival," she urged the members to give their best efforts in furthering all that the Order stands for. Mrs. M. Owen, Regent, briefly and cleverly expressed thanks for the many beautiful gifts which the Chapter received. The Standard Bearer, Miss Margaret Bloomfield, brought forward the flag and the National Anthem was sung. A half hour followed when refreshments were served.

SCAFFOLD FALLS INJURING TWO MEN

The Fourth Victory Loan begins April 26th. The support given to the Third Loan was magnificent. The war is approaching a crisis but needs are increasing and more money must be raised throughout Canada.

Lennox and Addington's objective has been set at $1,200,000. The money is here and must be made available so that it cannot be said that we, on the home front, have failed. Sorrow has come to our citizens already and more will follow before we can say we have Victory.

To all citizens, to our canvassers and to all our many enthusiastic workers we ask you to make this loan your task. If we all do this, success is assured.

VICTORIOUS ALLIES PUSH ROMMEL BACK INTO NORTHERN TUNISIA

Big Battle ImPending Along New Line

WEDNESDAY —

Montgomery's British Eighth Army opened a new offensive against Rommel's improvised defenses at the Wadi El-Akarit, sixty miles south of Sfax. The main objectives of the British were quickly taken.

The Russians made a strong counter thrust on Tuesday and drove the Germans from a position overlooking the Donets River. The Soviet also was able to consolidate some of its gains in the Smolensk area.

R. A. F. and R. C. A. F. bombers made three sweeps over Northern France on Tuesday and bombed railways, power stations and airdromes.

Secretary Knox of the United States told a press conference that the ship losses from U-boat attacks in March were higher than in February.

THURSDAY —

The British Eighth Army under General Montgomery smashed completely Rommel's Wadi Akarit defenses, twenty miles north of Gabes and joined hands with United States troops under General Patton. They continued to pursue Rommel's Afrika Corps.

The Axis lost more than forty vessels in a single week as a result of naval and air attacks on shipping attempting to cross the Sicilian Narrows to Tunisia.

In Burma the British were compelled to withdraw their forces from the Mayu Peninsula above the Burma part of Akyab.

The R. A. F. attack on Vegesack, on March 18, was declared to have been the heaviest blow on Nazi submarine production for some time. Five submarines were badly damaged and the sub yards were put out of commission for some months.

Russian armies crushed two German attacks on the Kharkov front and repulsed the Nazis south of Leningrad, continuing the drive at the Black Sea port of Novorossisk.

FRIDAY —

The British Eighth Army drove forward fifteen miles on Thursday and was within 25 miles of a junction with a second United States force moving east in the Maknassy sector. The British First Army opened a new offensive which carried it to within 27 miles of Tunis.

Only local fighting was reported from Russia, but the Soviet Army made some gains in the Izyum sector which were considered important.

While attacking United States shipping near Guadalcanal, the Japs lost 57 of a fleet of 100 airplanes. The United States lost seven planes.

Eighty German planes were shot down during United States heavy bomber attacks on the Renault Works near Paris.

SATURDAY—

Rommel was reported to have started evacuating some of his key officers and technicians from Tunisia to Messina, Italy. Rommel's forces abandoned Mahares, fifty miles north of Gabes, and left 12,000 troops, mostly Italians, to prisoners of the British at Enfidaville. United States armies, The British First Army still maintained its offensive in the northern part of Tunisia.

There was some activity on the part of the Russians in the area east of Kharkov and 1,200 Germans were killed. The Russians' position around Izyum was also said to have been improved.

Industrial areas in the Cologne districts were pounded again late Friday, by R. A. F. mosquito bombers.

MONDAY —

The British Eighth Army in Tunisia pushed forward 25 miles northward by Saturday night, and Allied troops cleaned out the enemy from Fondouk Pass and threatened Kairouan, thereby flanking Axis forces south of Sousse. In the north, the British First Army threatened the road to Bizga and captured a village 36 miles west of Tunis. The fall of Sousse was said to be imminent.

An Italian cruiser was sunk by United States bombers in the harbor of La Maddalena, in Sardinia, on Saturday.

On Sunday the Nazis tried to cross the Donets, but were again repulsed by the Russians.

Germany was bombed heavily both in the East and West, on Saturday night.

A Jap merchant ship was destroyed and another small ship was set afire, by Allied planes, in New Guinea.

TUESDAY—

The British Eighth Army, after an advance of 75 miles, in two days, occupied Sousse on Monday. The British First Army also took Kairowen and the two British forces joined up and continued to pursue Rommel's army which appeared to be fleeing in haste and disorder toward Northern Tunisia. A final, but much heavier battle, is anticipated in the north.

German troops launched five heavy attacks Monday at Soviet lines 80 miles southeast of Leningrad, but were repulsed by the Russians. Other attacks by the Germans in the Donets area, were also thrown back.

The Allies shot down 23 of 45 Japanese raiders over Oro Bay, in New Guinea.

United States airmen made three attacks on two major air bases in the Solomons and two more on Kiska Island in the Aleutians.

CATTLE DEALER IS FINED $100 OVER BEEF SALE

James Frederick Moore, cattle dealer, of Napanee, was fined $100 and costs in Kingston city police court, Friday morning, for charging more than the ceiling price for beef he sold to John Marshall, Barrie Street, grocer and butcher. Magistrate James E. Davis said Moore was squeezed by the big abattoirs, but explained he had to place a high fine to prevent an appeal by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, and as an example to check black markets.

W. O. Dwyer ,counsel for the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, explained that Moore charged 25 cents a pound for hind cuts, and 22 cents for fronts, which amounted to about $13 above the total ceiling price for 200 pounds.

Moore pleaded guilty to the charge of overcharging, but explained he had to pay 11 cents a pound for beef on the hoof to farmers to outbid offers from the large buyers. He said the dressed beef cost him 22 cents per pound, and he was forced to sell hind cuts for 25 to make a fair profit. He said he bought the beef to accommodate customers, and actually lost money on the deal when he returned $12.90, which represented the difference between the ceiling price and what he charged.

On Friday, "Lucky Six" rolled a record came with a total of 3,211, when they played Percy Balch's "Snapshots." William Markle, the chief of the Sixes trundled an even 600 for three ;301, 304, 195.

CANON C. E. S. RADCLIFFE RECTOR OF DESERONTO 60 YEARS A CLERGYMAN

Will Celebrate Jubilee on April 25th

The following article was written by Rev. C. P. Heaven, Rector of Trinity Church, Shannonville:

On April 25th, in the year 1883, Charles Elwyn Seymour Radcliffe, B.C.L., was ordained Deacon in St. Alban's Church, Ottawa, by the late Archbishop Lewis, the first Bishop of the Diocese of Ontario. At that time, and for many more years, Ottawa was a part of the Ontario Diocese. So, on Easter Day of this present year, Canon Radcliffe, the venerable and saintly Rector of St. Mark's Church, Deseronto, will fittingly observe and celebrate the 60th anniversary of his ordination to the sacred ministry in the Church of God. Advanced to the Priesthood in the Church of St. Mary Magdalene, Napanee, in 1884, it is of peculiar interest that Canon Radcliffe should for the past thirty years, have been Rector of the neighboring parish of Deseronto. Following his ordination, the veteran Priest worked for five years at Maberly and the late Canon Austin Smith served under him as a Lay-Reader. The Diocese of Nassara shared in his ministry from 1888-1893, where he laboured in the parishes of Arthur and Mount Forest, under Bishop Hamilton.

Canon Radcliffe came from a distinguished family which has for many years been in the Ministry of the Church of England, and in the year 1893 he visited his Old Country home in Willshire, where his father, the Reverend Alston William Radcliffe, held a living under the Bishop of Salisbury. An uncle, the Rev. Edward Everett, was vicar in the same parish; consequently our honoured friend served as Curate for several years to his father, and also his Uncle at Manningford Abbotts. With evangelical zeal and a passion for missionary service, characteristic of St. Patrick, an opportunity came to Mr. Radcliffe to visit Ireland, and there we find him working in the Diocese of Dublin, at Kildare and Glendalough. On his return to Canada, apparently in 1896, he found that the Diocese of Ottawa had been established, so he resumed work in his old parish of Maberly, later serving in Montague and Wiltshire. A life-long friend of Archbishop de Pencier, of New Westminster, Mr. Radcliffe interrupted his Ministry in the East again, and from 1907-09 he was Curate of St. Mary's Church, Brandon, Manitoba, under the Reverend Adam Uriah de Pencier, the Rector. This was his only experience in the work of the Church in Western Canada, for he returned this time to his own Diocese of Ontario and has served under all five Bishops.

The parishes of Frankville and Harden Earl marked further steps in his unique career, and for thirty years he has been a faithful Rector in Deseronto. Bishop Lloyd appointed him Canon of St. George's Cathedral, Kingston, in 1908, thus conferring a well-deserved tribute on one who had then given over fifty years of fruitful work in Church of his fathers. Throughout these long sixty years our beloved friend has been the good shepherd of his flock. His enthusiasm, energy, force of character, rapidity of action and continued good health finds him at an advanced age, as active and hearty, a keen student and as strong in the Master's service on Sunday as our assistance.

His brother Cecil is Bishop of the Diocese, and a host of friends across the Dominion will join with us in sending congratulations to Canon C. E. S. Radcliffe. We shall also wish to extend our most hearty greetings and congratulations to Canon C. E. S. Radcliffe, M.C.L., as he celebrates with Mrs. Radcliffe and his congregation on Easter Day, April 25th, the 60th Anniversary of his ordination, and will pray that many years of continued happy life and service will be added to his goodly heritage.

—REV. CHARLES P. HEAVEN, L.T.H.

TAMWORTH PUPILS HEAR ABOUT NEED FOR FARM HELPERS

Dept. Official Addresses Pupils at Continuation School

On Thursday afternoon, Mr. Moran, representative of the Ontario Farm Service Board, paid an official visit to the Tamworth Continuation School. In his address to the pupils and teachers, Mr. Moran stated that the food situation would be serious and that 100,000 people would be needed on farms in 1943. Last year 10,000 boys and 10,300 girls had been placed on farms to help production.

Although the farmers in the Tamworth district had sufficient help to harvest, last year, the many districts the losses were serious. One farmer says in which they may obtain work (1) on the home farm; (2) on a farm owned by the student or his family; (3) by application to the Farm Service Board. Mr. Alex. MacLaren is the head of this department for Ontario. Farms would be inspected before and during the work term. The wage for inexperienced boys is $25 for the first month. Last year, an improvement in health was reported by many of the farm employers. All students are urged to help during holidays.

The camps will be opened during the canning season. The student's fare will be paid one way. The superintendent of these camps is well organized under the Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A. and Red Cross. Students, however, were advised to help in their own community.

The expressing appreciation for Mr. Moran's address. Mr. Millar, the Principal of the Tamworth Continuation School, said that it was our part, as good citizens, to see that in our own district no crops would go to waste. It was our duty also to interest ourselves in gardening, he said.

The Upper and Middle School pupils who are planning to work on farms this season showed a keen interest in Mr. Moran's address.

The Farm Service broadcast is on Wednesday evening, at 7.30, over C.B.J. Those interested will find these broadcasts, which are in dialogue form, both instructive and entertaining.

COLLECTIVE BARGAINING

Four provinces now have collective bargaining laws—Manitoba, Nova Scotia, British Columbia and Ontario. Where these laws are operative it is an obligation on employers to bargain collectively with an organization of employees or their agents. The speed with which these laws have been enacted is a commentary on our changing attitude to Labor-Capital relations. Certainly the war has accelerated the movement towards collective bargaining. In the debate on the measure in the Ontario House, no voice was raised against collective bargaining. The debate centred around details of the Bill. All parties were in support of the general principle.

This is a distinct gain for Labor and is bound to make for better relations between Management and Labor. In Great Britain, the principle has been in practice for years, and it is largely because of this that there has been such a lack of Labor troubles in Great Britain during the war. Working conditions and wages are arrived at by negotiation and bargaining. In The United States and more recently in Canada, the opposition which was so pronounced, even a few years ago, has largely subsided, and now, public opinion is being crystalized into laws.

The next stage in the development of collective bargaining will be the enactment of a Dominion law which will be Dominion-wide. As one after another of the Provinces enact collective bargaining legislation, the time will come when the Dominion will have to act so as to maintain unity of action and practice. Nor need this action be long delayed. Now that four Provinces, all with large scale production enterprises, have declared themselves on the subject, the Dominion Government might very easily anticipate similar action by the remaining Provinces and enact Dominion laws.

The present Ottawa Government has many good things to its credit; it would add immeasurably to its prestige, and gain the approval of large sections of the population, if it were to move, at once, without waiting for other Provinces to act.

BLACKLEG

They have a nice dignified name for the illegal sale of scarce commodities. It is called a "Black Market." There have been discovered a lot of these in operation in recent months. There are rumors of a black market for gasoline. Indeed, the arrest of several persons in Montreal, who had to do with the distribution of gas coupons, reveals the possibility of a sale of hundreds of thousands of gallons on the "black market." Then there is a black market for meat, so we are told, and for coal, and stockings, and all sorts of things. Now it would never do to speak of such operations as bootlegging. That word must, with all care and diligence, be kept for use only when talking of the illegal sale of liquor. It would never do to call a man who peddled gas illegally, a bootlegger, and certainly it would be quite beyond all thought of propriety to call a man who sold meat illegally, a bootlegger. Only the man who sells liquor off the record, is a bootlegger. All others are conducting transactions on the "black market," a rather dignified way of describing the dabbler in illegal practices.

Now, would it not be a good thing to call these men "blacklleggers." Really they should be called "bootleggers" just like those who sell booze after hours, but in a country which is so liquor-minded, there is little hope that the use of the word bootlegger, as applying to all and sundry, would find favor—so we suggest blacklegger. Indeed, the suggestion has fascinating possibilities. We might use the term with certain unmistakable connotations as a "tea-legger", a "gaslegger", a "meatlegger", a "tirelegger", or a "stockinglegger." But, perhaps, we hadn't better pursue the speculation further—blacklegger will be alright so far as we are concerned.

GAINING ON ROMMEL

Events are moving with such rapidity in Tunisia that it may well be before these words are read the climax of the campaign will have been reached. Once General Montgomery and his Eighth Army broke through the fixed defenses of the Afrika Korps, and forced Rommel out into the open, the scene changed with breath-taking rapidity. One after another of the important cities were taken, and Rommel was forced to retreat so fast that the rear-guard were unable to plan booby traps or bombs in the path of the oncoming British Army. In the meantime the American forces pressed down on his flanks and prevented the Germans from taking refuge in the hills to the West, while the Airforce kept up a continuous bombardment of the lines of communication. Not only so, but reinforcements of men and materials which were being flown in to Rommel were shot from the skies, and ships on a similar mission were blasted from the seas. It is an unenviable position for Rommel and his Afrika Korps.

Just what the immediate future holds no one can foretell, but with Sousse and Kairouan in the hands of the United Nations, it is certain that the climax cannot be long delayed, and the Nazi forces compelled to make a last stand at Tunis and Bizerte. General Montgomery, in his latest message to the troops, urged them to make Rommel experience a second Dunkirk. Having in mind the victory over El Alamein, in Egypt, and the Mareth Line in Tunisia, he said: "Let us get on to the third attack. Let us make the enemy face and endure a first-class Dunkirk."

Just how long the Nazis will be able to hold out when once at bay in Tunis and Bizerte is a matter of speculation, even among experts, some putting the time at two weeks, others suggesting several months. But the deciding factor in the situation will be the Air Force. The Allied Nations now have undoubted superiority in the air, and with the constant pounding which they will be able to inflict, and with their vigilance, making reinforcements impossible, it would seem as though the stand of the Afrika Korps will not be as long as the more conservative commentators predict. Longer short the time will come when the Axis will be out of Africa. Then the Mediterranean will be open to the United Nations again, and the way paved for the carrying out of the master plan, whatever that may be. The situation in April 1943 is thus much more hopeful for the United Nations than at any time since the war began. The Allies have wrested the initiative from the enemy, who will be forced, before long, into a defensive position.

POST-WAR IMMIGRATION

Speaking in Renfrew on Saturday, Mr. Bracken is reported to have said to a question "I think we should have in Canada all the people we have jobs for. We seek the development of our natural resources. If we can get more people at fair wages, let them come; if not, then they should not." Mr. Bracken was holding a forum, and one of his audience asked him if he favored a post-war policy which would bring in 10,000,000 new citizens. The answer showed he was non-committal on the subject. Everybody knows that it is not necessary to bring in people at fair wages to produce goods which the rest of us consume. They may do that—but every new citizen besides being a producer is also a consumer. He not only makes shoes for us, but we make clothes, tractors and other commodities for him and his family. They become both producers and consumers.

The question goes deeper than that. There are great areas in this country which, according to European and Asiatic standards, are comparatively empty. We cannot, forever, hold these vast open spaces while others are crowded and scarcely able to eke out a living.

There are powerful forces which will oppose immigration and Mr. Bracken is well aware of that. As one who aspires to Dominion leadership it would not be very diplomatic for him to alienate, at this stage, a large section of the community to which he must look for support. Canada's experience with immigration has not been so happy. We have brought in large numbers of people, spent a lot of money on the project, and yet our population remains practically static. Some investigation into the movement of our emigrants should be made before embarking on another policy of immigration.

It is doubtful, too, whether in the immediate post-war years it would be possible for Canada to get the immigrants she wants. Europe will need rebuilding and those who are left will have plenty of work to do. In Great Britain, not many will want to leave, after fighting and struggling through these awful years. The British people will want to have a hand in rebuilding Britain, and yet the British are the stock we need. There is growing in this country, a very serious minority problem. It will take generations to settle it. In the meantime, if we are to have immigration, it must not be of a kind to aggravate an already potentially delicate racial situation. The immigrants must come from Anglo-Saxon stock, if they are to come at all.

LETTER FROM ENGLAND

The following is part of a letter received recently by Mr. and Mrs. William Sawyer, from their son, Percy, who is on active service in England :—

Somewhere in England,
March 12, 1943.

Dear Mother and Dad:—

Well, Jerry has paid us a visit twice this week, and it's no fun to see him so close, but he got marked up himself, so that evens things for his visit. The shell fire sure looks nice in the sky at night, but you get a very queer feeling up and down your spine.

I wish you could be here for a couple of weeks so you would like it awfully well, as it's really nice and the places so quaint. I had to escort the lady that runs the canteen, home with the money, so she invited me in to have a drink of beer at her place. I was so surprised at the size of the place with a large fireplace and with armchairs that I just looked everything over to satisfy myself, and she got a big kick out of it. Everyone rides bicycles here— from 7 to 70 years, and it's funy to see old and grey-haired lady riding down the road. Most of the boys have received sweets and parcels from home, but me, but I'll get mine one of these days. (P- I haven't died for the want of a smoke by then, as cigarettes are more important than eats.

I hope you are all keeping fine and I'd like to see The Beaver, as it keeps one better informed as to what's going on at home.

I will be glad to get back home again and look things over, as it seems a long time since I left. I will never forget the morning about 2:00 a.m. that I had passed through town on my way out of Canada.

Your son,
Percy.

FREE ENTERPRISE — HOW FREE ?

What is the future of free enterprise? We all want a free enterprise but many see no place in it for free enterprise.

The trouble is that enterprise has never really been free. Certainly, it has had little opportunity to flourish at the expense of others, and to run in cut-throat competition with them. For all the time it has been privileged — bound by all the fears which competitiveness brings. Fear of failure, fear of loss of markets, fear between management and labour. Sometimes these fears have led to practices which, in turn, would hardly bear scrutiny, with the further fear of discovery. Greed, too, as well as fear, has had enterprise in its deadly grip. Are not recurring slumps and booms alternate waves of fear and greed ?

Enterprise, to be truly free, must break these shackles, which are far more binding than any government controls. This can happen only when the men who run it are fear-free and greed-free, and their motive is service to meet the need of the people, and not profit first.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

This column is sponsored by the Regional Office, Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Questions on price control, ration regulations and other Wartime Prices and Trade Board rulings should be mailed to: Information Branch, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, Victoria Building, Brockville, Ont.

Q. Why do your insist upon canning sugar applications being received by April 15 when the official homecanning season does not open until June 1st?

A. Arrangements have been made for the manufacture of sufficient stocks of sugar to meet home canning demands and these stocks have to be distributed. By learning well ahead of time how much sugar will be needed all preparations for the canning season will be made.

Q. I am so confused about the rentals regulations that I don't know what to do. Where can I get the necessary information?

A. Call at or write to the nearest office of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, where complete information is available. Most of these offices have specialists in rentals on their staffs.

Q. Does the Wartime Prices and Trade Board ration only sugar, tea, coffee and butter?

A. There are other things rationed under its direction upon an essentiality basis. These include farm machinery, new and used bicycles, standard railroad watches and small arms ammunition. Under the direction of the Rubber Controller, automobile tires are also rationed in Board offices. The rationing of meat will shortly be added to the list.

Q. Why do the selling prices of the same articles vary as between stores in the same community and often in the same block?

A. Before price control was introduced, there was often a similar variation of prices and retail merchants were are required unless authorization has been granted by them to maintain their price ceilings of the basic period of October 11 - September 15th, 1941, continue this difference in pricing under price control.

Q * We intend to leave our home here in Syracuse, N.Y., for our summer place on the Bideau Lakes early in July. Will we be allowed extra sugar for home canning while there?

A. Yes, residents of the United States who come to this country as summer visitors will be allowed to qualify for extra sugar for home canning. They will complete special applications and if their stay is longer than eight weeks, sugar will be granted them on the same basis as it is granted Canadian citizens.

Q. As a farmer, I have been in the habit of using ammunition to shoot crows. Can I still get it under the new rationing policy?

A. Yes, provided you complete a certificate of essentiality in triplicate and secure the endorsed approval of your Local Ration Board.

Q. Why is the proposed rationing of meat regarded as a necessity in this country, where so much of it is usually produced?

A. Canada's domestic consumption of meat has visibly increased and, in addition, this country must export large quantities in order to feed Canadians in the armed forces and the people of Britain. The purpose of the meat rationing regulations is to assure adequate supplies being available for reasonable civilian requirements.

Q. I simply cannot understand the difference between Ration Offices and Local Ration Boards. Will you please explain?

A. Ration Offices are largely supervisory establishments and relatively few in number. They deal with the more complicated processes of consumer rationing. Local Ration Boards, on the other hand, have been established in numerous centres where one in your own community and it is to them that you should turn in connection with your simple consumer rationing questions and problems for which purpose they have been established as voluntary organizations.

Q. I have a little girl only three months old. Will she be able to qualify for meat rations when they go into force?

A. Yes, it has been stated that children, however small, will get the same weekly ration of two pounds carcass weight as adults.

Q. Will you please repeat the coupon ration allowances, as I find it extremely difficult to keep them in my head?

A. Each sugar coupon is good for one pound and each butter coupon for one-half pound. Each tea or sugar coupon is good for the purchase of two ounces of tea or one-half pound of coffee.

Q. I am arranging to re-rent my summer cottage for the coming season. Are there any regulations that I should observe?

A. Yes, your rent must not exceed that charged last season, unless authority for the increase has been granted by the local Rentals Committee. It is also necessary that you provide your new tenant with a copy of R.C. 40 when he takes possession. A similar copy of R.C. 40 should be filed at the nearest Regional Rentals Office.

Q. My husband, who is in the Air Force, often comes home for week-ends. Can I get extra rations for him?

A. I am afraid not. Temporary ration cards are issued to members of the armed forces only if their leave is of five days or longer.

Sugar for Canning Needs Will Be Met According to Supply

No decision has yet been reached as to the amount of sugar which will be available for the home canning program, this year, L. B. Urwin, Administrator of Consumer Rationing, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, declared recently. Mr. Urwin made the statement when questioned regarding current stories of a set poundage for rural dwellers and for urban residents.

"Local ration boards are busy working on the applications for canning sugar in their possession and when the figures for the Dominion are completed they will be considered in relation to the available sugar supply," he said, "and such a reasonable amount of sugar will be assured for the purpose, the supply may not be adequate to meet all requests in full. It this should be the case, the available supply will be allotted as fairly as possible among the applicants.

"Of course, if supplies are large enough to go around all legitimate requests for canning sugar will be met in full," he stated.

CHANGES MADE IN NEW TELEPHONE DIRECTORY

To economize paper and type metal in wartime important changes have been made in the latest issue of Napanee's telephone directory, which is being distributed this week.

The list of long distance rates to points most frequently called is now to be found on the inside front cover, and instructions on how to use long distance service are on the inside back cover. All marginal advertisements are being removed from the top and bottom of pages in the alphabetical section, effecting still further economies.

In view of the large number of new and changed listings in the new directory it is important to discard the old book promptly on receipt of the new one. Subscribers are being asked to mail their old copies to a central collecting point for salvage. Other cities in the district have returned to the telephone users the last of hoarded-up salvage for another of the new residence articles.

Co-operation in the new directory campaign is being emphasized because of war conditions. Subscribers who are receiving overlaid telephone books should take their telephone books with them instead of asking for another at the new residence.

No longer can anyone sit back calmly with the knowledge that Canada is a great storehouse of food — that one fighting forces and we at home are sure of ample food supplies. The brief shortage and the rationing of foods are evidence that supplies are growing scarce.

There are two reasons for present and threatened food shortages. First, our nation is exporting more food than ever before in her history. Second, our farmers are short-handed. They need help because agricultural workers have left them, to join the armed forces and to work in munitions plants at wages higher than the farmer can pay.

Because of the nature of his work, the farmer's greatest need for help comes with seeding in the spring and ends with late harvesting in September. There are two very difficult peaks to get over with having and harvesting in the Summer when the demand for manpower on the farm is tremendous.

Experience or no experience, YOU CAN HELP. There's an Ontario Farm Service Force Brigade in which you can serve regardless of age, sex or occupation. Five of the Brigades are outlined here. Study them now and fill in the coupon below for further information today!

Farm Commandos Brigade

Members of the Farm Commando Brigade are men (or women) who are regularly engaged in urban occupations but who will give an evening time, a half day or a day a week to farm work. Spring seeding, having, fall seeding, threshing, silo filling and other types of farm operations which require substantial hired assistance in man power. Over 12,000 people in Ontario actually undertook this work as spare-time farm hands last summer—merchants, clerks, professional men, mechanics, salesmen and others from all walks of life and of all ages. Over 12,000 needed this year. Many more may in twenty-five cents an hour and those who feel charitably inclined may donate their earnings over to their farmer-employers. Write for information.

Farmerette Brigade

This gay and colourful Farm Service Force Brigade attracts thousands of girls in 21 years old and up from Ontario High Schools and Collegiates every year. For the first 2 weeks of July, they are trained in the basic farm skills in the four and Farmerettes, for the most part, work in the fields and orchards of the province. By the end of August preference they work on vegetable growing areas of the Province. In the Farm Service Force, as small a farm of their own there, a farm where they live in the Farm Service Force, as small groups of specially selected camps, or from their parents' operated camps or farms. NEW BOOKS AT THE PUBLIC LIBRARY

Montreal—Seaport and City, Leacock.
Montreal, a thousand miles from the sea, is nevertheless one of the most important seaports in the world—a maritime centre whose activity will grow as the volume of traffic on the Great Lakes increases. This teeming town on the St. Lawrence is brought to life by the pen of Stephen Leacock who lets his affection for it show in every sentence. Montreal becomes a colorful and exciting place.

Suez to Singapore — Brown
Grim warfare in the desert and the Malayan jungles — the sinking of the Repulse and the Prince of Wales — the fall of Singapore—the last days of the Indies — Australia today — by the man whose on-the-spot broadcasts from these vital fronts have made history. Suez to Singapore will make crystal clear to you the true scope of the task that lies ahead of us in this people's war.

Our Hearts Were Young and Gay, Skinner & Kimbrough
Cornelia Otis Skinner and Emily Kimbrough went abroad together. This was in the early twenties, and they were not quite in theirs. This book is the record of their experiences. They were every young American girl on her first trip abroad.

See Here, Private Hargrove, Marion Hargrave
A happy combination of naivete, humorous information about camp life perfectly timed to meet an enormous public demand for inside and informal reports on army life. Here's Canadian, whether he is in the Army, Navy or Air Force or his heartthrobs, will get a great kick out of this book.

The Unrelenting Struggle, Churchill
Mr. Churchill's speeches have become one of the most revealing records of the War. They relate the facts with the presence and dramatic keenness of journalism, and coming from the interested secrecy of war leadership, they are both vivid and freshly informative.

Alaska—The Last Frontier, Clark.
The first story of Alaska from its discovery and the early settlers down to the days of the Matanuska Valley experiment, told by a man who was born there. It is the fascinating story of an unbiased, keen observer of industrial and agricultural development, and of the most part only the summer playground of thousands of Americans.

The Rat, Trumbull
The story of three navy fliers who "ditched" in the sea for thirty-four days while they drifted in a rubber raft without food, equipment, and for most of the time, even water. They survived to land, weak and spent, on a strange island. It is a tale that gets at the very heart of the nerve-racking drama that characterized Escape Artist Farmer's former novel.

Little Man — Sallans.
Little Man is a powerful and unforgettable chronicle of our own age —boom and depression, floodtide and ebbtide, war and peace and war again. It deserves an important place as a genuine social document, a true and biting commentary on our own times. It won the all-Canada Fiction Award.

The Just and the Unjust—Cozzens.
The Just and The Unjust is a full-scale modern novel of a whole community. Rich in characterization and large in scope, it is a major work.

North to Danger — Gill
A powerful novel of Canada and the great fur country, and of Colin Rae, whom the primeval women bowed, and on whose broad shoulders there rested, for a terrible instant, the fate of a continent.

The Gaunt Woman— Gilligan.
This enthusiastically thrilling novel of the sea and warfare against U-boats is the story of "that red devil of a man," Patrick Haydon, and of his fight against spies and traitors and Nazi murders, who sailed the Gaunt Woman and who fed on her supplies.

Mrs. Parkington— Bromfield.
Louis Bromfield has written a charming love story a long, nostalgic novel which covers one of the most exciting, multi-colored periods of American history. A mercurious age, flashy fantastic, corrupt, it was also an age of giants, strength, and growth and great visions. He has filled a dramatic and richly crowded panorama with people who are unmistakably of their era, whether it is the world of the 19th century, the pre-war period, or the confusing revolutionary world of today. And in Mrs. Parkington he has created his most unforgettable character.

Crooked Adam—Stevenson.
This is a very exciting spy story, but, unlike the quick-paced thriller which seems now to divorce its characters from life, Crooked Adam has much of the quiet charm, the warm understanding of Scottish ways and people which mark Miss Stevenson's earlier novels.

All the Trumpets Sounded Hardy.
A lusty novel of pagan Egypt in the time of Moses. There are two methods of approach to an historical novel, the intellectual and intuitional. A blending of the two is rarely attempted, but in All the Trumpets Sounded, the two methods are almost perfectly fused, and the result is just about the best and most stirring Biblical novel to be published.

The Case of the Careless Kitten, Gardner
A racing, baffling Perry Mason murder mystery—full of human interest—climaxed by one of Gardner's famous and breathless courtroom scenes.

The Man Who Could Not Shudder, Carr.
An inimitable mixture of terror, mystery and detection of which John Dickson Carr is undisputed master.

FATS AND BONES

NOT ONE INDUSTRY IN CANADA CAN CARRY ON WITHOUT THE USE OF OILS AND FATS

Broadcast given by Mrs. Phyllis J. Turner over the C.B.C. network, on the above subject.

Due to the loss of supplies from the Pacific and other areas under Axis control, Canada has made efforts to meet the deficiency in three way: FIRST, by the increase in the production of oil-bearing crops such as flaxseed and soya beans, and Canadian farmers have responded magnificently to our appeal; SECONDLY, by the curtailment of non-essential uses of oils; and THIRDLY, by the Campaign for the salvaging of waste fats and bones.

There are three outlets open to the householder whereby she may dispose of waste fats and bones. She may dispose of them through the local salvage committees in areas where committees have been taken on such work, or she may leave her contributions of fats and bones for the garbage collector to pick up on garbage collection days in any municipality which has authorized such collectors to render salvage service. If neither of these outlets is available, she may bring her fats and bones to her local meat dealer who has agreed to handle these materials at no small inconvenience. I should like to say how deeply we appreciate the co-operation of the meat dealers throughout Canada in agreeing to take on this task at practically no profit, and I know that housewives will co-operate with meat dealers and show them their appreciation.

I have tried to think of all the questions which housewives might ask in connection with the Campaign and I'm sure you will bear with me if I am going to recite a "Catechism" relative to the Salvage Campaign for Fats and Bones.

Q. What are waste fats used for?

A. Waste cooking fats are used in the manufacture of glycerine. For instance, two pounds of fat will produce the glycerine required to manufacture one pound of explosive.

Q. Is all the waste fat turned in used for munitions?

A. No. The glycerine content is used for explosives and for other items, such as gun recoil mechanism and floating compasses. After the glycerine is extracted from the fat, the residue is used in the manufacture of soap. Glycerine also has many important industrial and medical uses.

Q. What are bones used for?

A. Bones yield fat for glycerine, animal glue for war purposes, animal feed, and fertilizer.

Q. Should housewives save chicken and fish bones?

A. The answer is no.

Q. What is the price that housewives will be paid for their waste fats?

A. The price will vary according to the amount of freight involved in transporting fats and bones to rendering plants and according to the ceiling prices on tallow and grease in the various areas of Canada. For example, housewives bringing their rendered drippings to retail meat dealers at any point in Ontario and in the Montreal area, will receive 4½ cents per pound; , in other areas the price will be 4 cents per pound. Scrap fat will fetch 1 cent per pound No value can be attached to bones due to the freight incurred in moving them to the processing plants. Since the principal motive for housewife participation in the Campaign is a desire to help the war effort, the price is not expected to make any difference in the quantity of waste fats turned in.

Q. Will retail meat dealers make any profit on the waste fats they buy from housewives and sell to renderers?

A. Their profit will be negligible, since the one cent margin which they will receive will barely cover the cost of handling.

Q. Should housewives go to the trouble of straining their fats through a fine cloth?

A. Ordinary metal kitchen strainers will adequately remove meat scraps and other foreign matter from fats.

Q. Are light fats more valuable than dark fats?

A. Light and dark coloured fats are equally acceptable. Impurities which cause dark colours do not reduce the glycerine content of fat. The same price prevails for all colours and types, whether from lamb, beef, lamb, poultry, steaks, chops, and bacon, or reclaimed lard and vegetable or blended shortening.

Q. Are glass jars and paper containers suitable for waste fat collection?

A. Paper and glass containers are not suitable. Most renderers melt the fat out of the containers by steam, Paper containers break up in the process. Glass jars, if they haven't already cracked and chipped when the hot drippings are poured will certainly do so in the rendering process. Therefore, waste fats should be collected only in clean, wide-mouthed tin cans, preferably of the type used for shortening or coffee.

Q. How extensively should the fats be used before turning in as "waste"?

A. Since the object of this Campaign is to make Canada's supply of fats go as far as possible, each housewife is expected to get the maximum cooking use and food value from her kitchen fats before turning them over to her meat dealer.

Q. Must waste fats and bones be kept in a cool place?

A. There is no set time for turning in waste fats but housewives can relieve week-end shopping congestion at meat counters by taking their collections to the butcher early in the week. Please do not ask your meat dealer to pick up your waste fat. This delivery system is already overtaxed. It is advisable to take your bones and waste fats to your meat dealer frequently in order to avoid decomposition.

All types of grease and other waste fats are needed to make glycerine. We are calling upon you to help us. Millions pounds of these waste fats are thrown away each year; every pound can be used in Canada's munitions factories.

We must reach a collection rate of 35 million pounds of fats annually to overcome the present shortages. Save pan drippings as well as cooked and uncooked fats after you have obtained all the cooking good from them; strain the grease into a clean metal container and when your have a pound or more, sell it to your meat dealer.

Already many appeals have been made to housewives to do their part, on the home front in defeating Hitler. May we add another appeal to housewives to give their wholehearted co-operation in making the Salvage Campaign for Fats and Bones a complete success. Let the women of Canada make a determined effort to keep the fat out of the fire and into the frying line.

BRITAIN KEEPS 2,600 VESSELS ON DUTY AT SEA

600 WARSHIPS GUARD 2,000 MERCHANTMEN AT ANY GIVEN TIME, SAYS LONDON OFFICIAL

Ottawa, Ont., (CP) — Elliot Waterston, of the United Kingdom Information Office, Ottawa, said in a broadcast prepared for delivery before an Ottawa service club that at any given time 600 warships of the United Kingdom are at sea, guarding some 2,000 United Kingdom merchant ships and perhaps 400 belonging to the Dominions. Sailors from Britain, he said, man 90 per cent of the Empire fleets, though Canada's contribution in convoy work is outstanding, amounting to about 13 per cent of all destroyers and corvettes devoted to this service by the United Kingdom, the United States and Canada to date.

NOT ALL DEFENCE

"The Royal Navy has not confined itself to defence. To the end of 1942 it had captured or destroyed more than 6,000,000 tons of Axis merchant shipping, besides battleships, 15 cruisers, 62 destroyers, about 400 submarines and many auxiliaries. Germany's total losses in escort vessels had been more than replaced.

Of the Royal Air Force, Mr. Waterston said 83 per cent of the men and machines in the Empire Air Forces are of United Kingdom origin. The record of all Empire airmen was well known. They outstripped more than 12,000 Axis planes in their ceaseless activity over land and sea, and had been heavily engaged in throwing the Axis powers back on the defensive.

Largely because of the publicity given events in the Far East, the fighting record in Burma was less favorably known. "Because of military weakness," Mr. Waterston observed, "big risks had to be taken somewhere and after Pearl Harbor, we were overpowered in the air, on land and at sea, in the East.

LOSSES COMPARED

"But the whole losses — British, Dutch and American—in area fighting men and equipment in the Far East were less than were the losses in Russia or the Italian losses in Africa, and both of these powers had prepared for war.

Field Marshal Sir Archibald Wavell's campaigns in Africa were too little known, with a very small force he disposed of the Libyan Army of 250,000, the East African Army of 250,000 and the Vichy and Syrian armies. Another feat of arms was Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's Battle of Egypt, in which — as recorded by Marshal Erwin Rommel's armies 1,330 tanks in 91 days.

Few Authorized to Purchase Hunting Ammunition

Among those classed as "authorized purchasers" of small arms ammunition under the rationing order of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board are persons who require such ammunition as a means of protecting live stock and other animals, poultry and other birds, and crops from predatory animals, rodents and birds.

Small arms ammunition will be released to individuals, however, only after they have completed a certificate of essentiality in triplicate and obtained the necessary approval of their Local Ration Board.

Trappers, however, rank as "authorized purchasers" but in settled areas they must first complete and surrender a certificate of essentiality in duplicate to the merchant from whom they intend to purchase their ammunition.

Description Of Victory Loan Bonds

1. Q.:— What is a Victory Loan Bond?

Answer : A Victory Loan Bond is proof that you are lending your dollars to your country to help win the war.

This Bond is your country's promise to return your money to you—and, in addition, to pay you interest on your money every half year until it is repaid. This promise is backed by all the wealth and resources of Canada, and by your country's record for paying every obligation in full.

When you buy Bonds you are not giving away your savings, you are lending them to your country to help win the war.

2. Q.:— When will Victory Loan Bonds be paid off?

Answer : The savings you invest in a Bond will be paid back to you by your country when the Bond reaches its maturity date. In the same way Victory Loan Bonds of the First World War were paid off.

The maturity date of each Bond is clearly shown in the wording on the Bond.

3. Q.:— Can Victory Loan Bonds be sold easily?

Answer : Yes. You can sell your Bonds at any time with-out difficulty and without delay.

All you have to do is to take your Bonds to any investment dealer, bank, stock broker or trust company. The current sales value of the Bonds will be given to you while you wait.

There is always a ready market for Victory Loan Bonds.

4. Q.:— Can Victory Loan Bonds be used as collateral for loans?

Answer : Yes. Victory Loan Bonds are the best security for a loan you can own.

Victory Loan Bonds are acceptable as all banks as collateral for loans, at a reasonable interest charge.

You can borrow money as collateral for a loan, the interest in-come on the Bonds still belongs to you. This means that you are a large part of the interest charges on your loan.

By using Bonds as collateral, it is very easy to obtain a bank loan for personal or business purposes.

5. Q.:— Should Victory Loan Bonds be sold until after the war?

Answer : Your Bonds are your own property. You are free to sell them at any time you wish.

But, to win this war, your country needs all the help you can give. Canada needs not only your "spare" money, Canada needs every dollar you can scrape together. When you buy Bonds you are helping to win the war. When you sell your Bonds you are withdrawing that help.

Emergency needs for money should be met, if at all possible, by using other savings or by using your Bonds as collateral for a temporary loan to be paid back out of your future income.

When the war is over, there will be plenty of time to sell your Victory Loan Bonds. Victory Loan Bonds will pay for their keep—and also will help to meet needs for cash which may arise during the period when we change over from wartime activities to peacetime pursuits.

Unless it is absolutely essential to sell your Bonds—it's your patriotic duty, and in your own best interests, to "keep your savings in uniform"—for the duration.

"The day of reckoning is drawing near." — Eduard Benes.

Out of the FRYING PAN and into the FIRING LINE

GLYCERINE FOR ABOLPH BENITO & TOJO

Save ALL WASTE fats & bones

Canada needs and must have every spoonful of fat dripping from every piece of scrap fat and every bone from every kitchen in Canada. Fats make glycerine and glycerine makes high explosives. Bones provide glue. Also glue for war industry.

Don't throw away a single drop of used fat—bacon grease, meat drippings, frying fats—every kind you use. They are urgently needed to win this war.

Strain all drippings through an ordinary strainer into a clean wide-mouthed can. Save your scrap fat (cooked or uncooked) and all types of bones—cooked, uncooked or dry.

When you have collected a pound or more of fat dripping, take it to your meat dealer who will pay you the established price for the dripping and the scrap fat. Or you can dispose of them through any Municipal or Salvage Committee collection system IN EFFECT in your community.

Be a munitions maker right in your own kitchen. For instance, there is enough explosive power hidden in ten pounds of fat to fire 49 anti-aircraft shells. So—every day, this easy way, keep working for Victory for the duration of the war.

WEDDING BELLS

McKITTRICK—BROWN

Daffodils and blue iris with ferns formed the floral setting for a pretty wedding at four o'clock Saturday afternoon, March 27th, in Alber Street United Church, Oshawa, when Gertrude, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Brown, became the bride of James Grant McKittrick, of Oshawa, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. G. McKittrick, Napanee. Rev. T. H. P. Anderson performed the ceremony. Mrs. J. Willshire was organist, and Miss Helen Hurst vocalist.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, and was attended by Miss Ella Brown, of Hamilton, as maid of honor, Miss Mary Golka as bridesmaid, Miss Thelma Brown, sister of the bride, as junior bridesmaid, and little Miss Mary Walker as flower girl. Robert Townsend, of Belleville, was groomsman, and Earl McKittrick and Earl Rowe, of Whitby, were ushers.

The bride was lovely in a gown of white chiffon velvet, fashioned with a long fitted torso bodice and a full skirt which fell in graceful folds to form a train. Her long veil of embroidered misty illusion net was attached to a pleated coronet headdress. She carried a cascade of crimson roses.

The attendants were gowned alike in pastel chiffon velvet frocks, fashioned with fitted torso bodices and long full skirts. All wore net hats with shoulder-length veils and carried bouquets of crimson roses. The flower girl wore a small cap of green petals and carried a basket of daffodils. The maid of honor wore pale blue chiffon velvet, the bridesmaid pink, the junior bridesmaid daffodil yellow and the flower girl pale green chiffon velvet. White lace gloves completed the attendants' ensemble.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, 528 Cubert Street, where the rooms were decorated with pink and white bells, daffodils and iris. Mrs. Brown wore a chic gown of black lace with a turban of mauve and pink flowers, and a corsage of pink carnations. Mrs. McKittrick, mother of the bride's groom, chose for the occasion a black lace gown, black accessories and a corsage of pink carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. McKittrick left on a wedding trip to Ottawa and eastern points and on their return will reside at 528 Cubert Street. For travelling the bride wore a printed dress, a tweed topcoat and beige accessories.

In Loving Memory

McKEOWN — In ever loving memory of our dear mother, who passed away two years ago, April 12th, 1941.
Two dear bright eyes, a tender smile,
A loving heart that's free from guile
Deep trust in God that all was right;
Her joy to make some other bright.
If sick or suffering helpfulness given
Some gentle act of love she'd do;
No thought of self, but of the dear ones
—I know He said: "Well done, dear mother."
Ever remembered by her

SMITH — In loving memory of Samuel W. Smith, who passed away April 25th, 1940.

The one we loved was called away

ARNOLD — In loving memory of a dear sister, Bessie Arnold, who passed away April 15th, 1942.
It's one year ago to-day, dear Bessie,
Since you left us. And how I miss your loving face;
But you led me to remember
None on earth can take your place.
A star shines on a lonely grave,
Of one we loved but could not save.
The end was sudden, the shock severe,
To part with one I loved so dear.

And my heart is sad with pain;
O, this world would be a Heaven
If I could hear your dear voice again.
Sadly missed by sister Grace, and daughter, Lorna. 15ap

OFFICIAL VISIT AT REBEKAH LODGE

On Monday, April 12th, the Queen of Sheba Lodge entertained the Assembly of Ontario President. Sister Ferguson, of Leamington. In the afternoon, there was a business meeting of representative members of the District Executive. At 8:30, members of the Lodge entertained visitors from Kingston, Gananoque and Yarker Lodges at a banquet in the Lodge Hall. Sister Gladys Reid presided at the evening meeting in such a capable manner that she was awarded the certificate of merit by the visiting President. Likewise, Sister Seymour received a similar certificate for work well done during the past year.

The degree team, under the capable training of Degree Mistress Sister Kathleen Huffman, thrilled the audience with its most efficient degree work and pageants. The address given by the Assembly President was both brilliant and inspiring, and will long be remembered. On behalf of the Lodge, Sister Seymour presented her with a suitable gift. In turn Sister Alam and Sister MacGregor presented Sister Seymour and Assembly Warden Sister Hall, of Kingston, with tokens of remembrance.

At the close of Lodge, light refreshments were served before the guests departed.

BOARD MEETING V. O. N.

A board meeting of the V. O. N. was held Monday, April 12th, with the president Mrs. T. Hunt, presiding. After the reports from the treasurer and Miss Dorker had been heard, the secretary read a report from the District Supervisor, Miss Dawson.

Mrs. M. Taylor, chairman of the Finance Committee, expressed her appreciation for the work of the canvassers for the membership drive.

A motion was passed that in future all V. O. N. members who are interested in the Order will be welcome at the regular monthly meetings, and a notice of these meetings will be placed in the local papers.

It was decided also at the meeting to hold the annual tea, but in view of the rationing of sugar and food, the bridge will be held in the town, and some other changes will be necessary. When the Finance Committee have made the final arrangements, they will be published in the local papers.

WHO'S FIGHTING WHOM TO-DAY

BY FOSTER PARCLAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

"This story is intended for those persons who are interested in who is fighting whom in this war. Inadvertently some errors may have crept under the banner of the United Nations and eight Axis countries. You can't expect to get it right the first barfged and even government officials have been known to change sides from time to time to refresh their memory.

It's hard to believe at first, but a check of the records shows that only three United Nations are Britain Empire, China and Czechoslovakia have declared war on the whole Axis tribe — Germany, Japan, Italy, Finland, Hungary, Rumania, Bulgaria and Slovakia.

Through the rest of the list there are exceptions and some curious ones, of which can be explained by lack of proper time diplomatic relations or by the complications of the war.

The United States, for instance, has declared war on all Axis powers except Finland. America, it was explained, has always hoped that Finland, which never failed to pay its debts to the United States, would make a separate peace with Russia.

How Russia Stands.

Russia still maintains relations with Japan and therefore with the Japanese puppet state of Siam. And the Soviet Union also is at peace with Bulgaria, which joined Hitler with the troops for his eastern front. It would be difficult for the Bulgarian Parliament, which sits in a building faced by a great monument commemorating the liberation of the country by the Russians in 1878, to declare war on Russia.

Belgium and the Netherlands, big colonial powers, have declared war only on the three major Axis partners, Germany, Italy and Japan, which threaten their overseas heritage. Norway, playing an important role in the convoys, and little Luxembourg, have declared war only on Germany.

Greece is content with Germany and Italy as enemies. There was only a token resistance either to the Nazi assault, in Greece when the Germans invaded the Balkans and he was too busy trying to get away to spare time for carrying war-like declarations to the Greeks. Yugoslavia's dismemberment. Yugoslavia, too, is at peace with Finland and Siam.

There is still a Polish representative in Rome as Mussolini, with the Pope looking at his elbow, can't dare to declare war on the millions of Polish catholics suffering under German persecution. The Poles, however, declared war on Japan, as well as be-

FRIENDS HONOUR MR. AND MRS. E. JACKSON ON WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

In honour of their fortieth wedding anniversary, the family, friends and neighbours gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elmore Jackson, Enterprise, on the afternoon and evening of Thursday, April 1st.

During the afternoon a short address was read by Rev. H. E. Pratt and Mr. and Mrs. Jackson were presented with a rose woollen blanket, a bride's book, a silver basket and an enlarged, tinted photograph of Mrs. Jackson's parents, taken on their golden wedding anniversary. The presentations were made by Keith Brown, June and Jean Jackson, and Mrs. Jackson expressed appreciation for the gifts and good wishes.

The dining-room table was centred with a three-layer wedding cake and was decorated with mauve and white streamers suspended from a large white bell. Mauve iris were also used as table decorations. Tea was poured by Mrs. Jackson's four nieces, Mrs. Stanley Wyder, Mrs. William Jackson, Mrs. Ray Campbell and Mrs. Fletcher Clancy. Those who assisted to serve to the guests were Mrs. Milo Jackson, Mrs. George Lockwood, Mrs. Lorne Wagar and Miss Vivian Vansickle. During the afternoon, Mrs. H. E. Pratt sang a solo.

In the evening a number of other friends called to offer congratulations. Mr. and Mrs. Jackson, in addition to the gifts, received a shower of cards from relatives and friends.

Among those attending the reception was Mr. Stanley Wagar, who was a groomsman at Mr. and Mrs. Jackson's wedding. The bridesmaid, Mrs. Byron Cronk, was unable to attend on account of illness.

The enemies of Germany.

Other countries at war with the three big Axis nations are Ethiopia, Cuba, Dominican Republic, Guatemala, Honduras, Mexico, Panama and Salvador. In addition Haiti and Nicaragua also took on Rumania, Hungary and Bulgaria and Costa Rica clashed as well with Hungary and Rumania. Countries which have severed relations with the Axis, but have not declared war, include Venezuela, Colombia, Ecuador, Peru, Bolivia, Paraguay, Chile, Egypt and Saudi Arabia.

Then there's Nazi - controlled France which has no diplomatic relations with most of the United Nations, yet watches Frenchmen outside the grip of the Axis fighting for freedom.

MEAT RATION INCLUDES BONE

Toronto, (C.P.) — Kenneth W. Taylor, foods administrator for the Prices Board, said in an interview that meat rationing in Canada would be on a "very, very simple basis—boy, really a point system at all."

"The meat rationing order is still in the draft stage," he said. "As a matter of fact I have the first draft right here in my pocket.

"The basic point of our meat rationing system as it now stands is two pounds of meat of average carcass weight. The ordinary steer runs to between 25 and 28 per cent. of bone and gristle. The rest of the animal is edible meat. That is the basis from which we start.

"If your taste runs to cooked, boneless ham, you will be allowed less than two pounds per week. If, on the other hand, you prefer meats which are largely bone, you will be allowed considerably more than two pounds a week."

"Progress comes most often from the contemplative mind."—Dr. Simon Flexner.

"The last ten years in Germany must become the dark decade."—Franz Werfel.

Sikorski Says Poles Demand Postwar National Integrity

London — Gen Wladyslaw Sikorski, Prime Minister of the Polish Government in exile, declared in a broadcast address that Poles would unite to the last man" to resist any postwar claims from any quarter which would hurt the sovereignty and integrity of Poland."

The statement was made at a luncheon of the City Livery Club, after Gen. Sikorski declared Polish soldiers had shown their mettle by fighting at the side of Great Britain.

He said losses since the Battle of Britain had been "very considerable." He reported that in more than a dozen Polish air force squadrons fewer than 10 per cent high percentage of flying personnel and pilots decorations and massacres his country is experiencing are "terrible." Gen. Sikorski said, "for the Polish nation is fighting on an unflinching, underground struggle against the invader."

"In view of all this," he continued, according to the official translation of his prepared speech, "I solemnly wish to state here, and with great emphasis, that if at the conclusion of the war our rights are not respected and our long and passionate devotion to freedom taken into consideration, every Pole, irrespective of religious or political creed, will unite to the last man to resist any claims which aim at the sovereignty and integrity of our country, from whatever quarter they might be raised."

Earlier in the speech, General Sikorski suggested that an Allied air force should go to the Russian Front after the fighting in Tunisia is concluded, as an expression of Allied solidarity.

He asserted the German High Command plans to start, "at the earliest opportunity" in 1943, a third offensive against the Soviet Armies. He said the Germans had perfected their weapons and carried out total mobilization on an unprecedented scale during the winter, adding:

"This will allow them to rebuild on a comparatively big scale their depleted reserves and will provide them this summer with a strong basis for keeping the fortress of Europe under their control and for new offensive attempts."

HOW TO ESTIMATE AMOUNT OF FRUIT TO CAN FOR YOUR FAMILY NEEDS

Many homemakers have been wishing us for help in planning how much fruit to can for family use. Of course, you will need to know this before you can fill out your application for canning sugar to be turned in to your local ration board before April 15th.) Many angles to the sugar rationing problem are puzzling our readers. So we have chosen some of the questions most frequently asked and give their answers to help you solve your canning problems.

MRS. C. K. ASKS: "How much sugar will we consider requisitioning for our family of six?"

ANSWER: Canned Fruit Budget For Six:

Allow six to eight servings for each quart of fruit. Six months of the year without fresh fruit, except apples, we've canned fruit six times a week — 144 quarts. Four months of the year supplement raw fruit with canned fruit three times a week — 48 quarts. Four months of the year, no raw apples, serve canned apples once a week— 16 quarts.

Total of canned fruit is 208 quarts. This requires, according to Government order (which is ample) 104 lbs. sugar.

For jam or jelly served four times a week, consider 48 jars jelly which require 16 lbs. sugar.

However, if you have not adequate equipment, don't order more sugar than you can use to advantage — and this waste it. Sugar is too valuable to experiment with at this time.

MRS M. S. ASKS: "Do we requisition for sugar for fresh fruit to be used in the table?"

ANSWER: No, this will be sweetened with the sugar from the usual ration.

MRS. C. D. SAYS: "I had always used heavy syrup for gooseberries, rhubarb, citrus, plums and strawberries — will I be able to obtain corn syrup to assist in canning?"

ANSWER: You will be able to buy corn syrup from time to time. Do not hoard syrup. Although there are some fruits which require a heavy syrup for some taste, you will use a light syrup (half-cup sugar to one cup water) for apples, pears, peaches, etc. The average of half a pound of sugar per quart is sufficient.

MRS. N. L. SAYS: "I have always canned according to my budget. For example: Six quarts of berries or a six-quart basket of cherries. How much will these weigh?

ANSWER: One quart box strawberries, blueberries, red, black and white currants; equals about one and one-quarter pounds, net weight; one (six-quart) basket of cherries, pears, peaches or apples, weighs about six and three-quarter pounds.

MRS P. B. ASKS: "Can I buy sealers and rubbers?"

ANSWER: New quart sealers and synthetic rubber rings are being manufactured. Fruits (but not vegetables) may be canned in quarts.

MRS. S. T. ASKS: "What will require quarts of raspberries, four six-quart baskets of peaches, two six-quart baskets of cherries, one six-quart basket of plums yield?"

ANSWER: It depends upon size of fruit, how tightly they are packed in jars and whether they are halves or whole.

APPROXIMATE TABLE

One 32cl one-half quarts raspberries yields one quart canned.

One six-quart basket of cherries yields four quarts.

One six-quart basket peaches yields four quarts.

One six-quart basket of plums yields five quarts.

TAKE A TIP ON WHEAT GERM:

1 A tablespoon of wheat germ sprinkled over the cereal is the most excellent food in Vitamin B content

2 Real Gift to Energy: Vitamin B, do not cook wheat germ.

3 Adds fill this vitamin—do not use wheat germ in muffin or soda mixtures.

THE QUESTION BOX

MRS. D. E. B. ASKS: How do you make Apricot Pie?

ANSWER: Three cups thick sieved applesauce, one and one-half tablespoons flour, one teaspoon nutmeg two egg yolks beaten, two tablespoons soft butter.

Combine ingredients and blend well. Pour into lined deep pie dish. Criss-cross egg white and bake in electric oven with oven meal or Mg F for forty minutes.

MRS. C. M. B. SUGGESTS: "Add dried sweet cucumber pickle to thick scalloped tomatoes and use as 'au gratin' dish."

LETTERS FROM NICKEY

THE STORY OF LIFE IN THE C.W.A.C.

Dear Babs:—

Your C.W.A.C. correspondent is on the beam again. This time I have a direct steal from Airforce talk, but I am broad-minded.

I regret that at the moment there is a dearth of startling news. It seems that even in the Army, calms are periods when life moves along at an even pace; however, I have had my share of excitement since I last wrote and I must not be greedy. No doubt when I least expect it I will receive my marching orders for Londonderry. In the meantime, I am quite happy to sing along.

The candidates on the present course here at the Army School of Administration are proving very amusing and the librarian tells me that almost every book on her shelves has been drawn. Speaks well for the "admin" lectures, don't you think? Apart from the real and earnest grind of studies, their main interest is the mail and they mill around in droves while it is being sorted. I have come to dread the moment when it all has been distributed and some of them are left empty-handed. When I see their disappointed expression, I could cheerfully throttle the folks back home. The boys put on a very good front and pass it off with a laugh, but I suspect they are homesick. Their stock remark in these areas is bad. Why don't you write me a letter?"

"Probably banter does not altogether conceal their true feelings and I often think that if more people realized the importance of mail in the lives of soldiers, the letters would arrive more regularly. What these men really need in their lives is a trusty correspondent like yourself. I could not get along without you. Many a time your frivolous love-letter has kept me from committing away empty - handed. So keep on coming, Cherub.

Praises be! Cuthbert has written Barry at last and she is wreathed in smiles again. It seems he had some complicated ailment which landed him in the hospital — hence the utter silence. Incidentally, having a certain illness was all that he needed to make him unbearable to live with. I fear to think of the effect of this. Even now, she is perched on my bed studying a ponderous volume on medicine, a wrap expression on her face.

I made a small bid for attention by complaining of a slight headache, tied pain near my heart (always fighting words to Barry!) but she was not having any. "Probably something you have eaten," she snapped and pointedly ignored my symptoms. I was quite annoyed. She can't do this to me after pampering every ache and pain for the last two months. Now that I am quite demoralized, she wants me to be spartan. (Giving away a trade secret, women are inconsistent aren't they?)

Sunday should be a big day for the Canadian Women's Army Corps in Milford District No. 3, a big parade having been planned for the Army Girls in Uniform. It should prove quite an impressive spectacle with all the military trappings and such an important personage to take the salute that I feel quite a bit amateurish at rehearsing an exciting day as "I love rehearsing anything very thrilling, you know, about as exciting as long line of beer, healthy, kinkless hair, well cut, and well pressed and in perfect line. And I am a cog in that machine. It's stimulating thought! The plan is to convey us in trucks to the scene of action, provide us with refreshments, and then march us there with the band leading, away we'll go.

Our Scottie mascots—the dogs that arrived a few weeks ago—have taken complete possession of the Army School Number Seven. They let us live there but only on sufferance, personally I must confess that I am putty with a couple of them pulls the beer on me for a while, but I'm not taking chances, too-tight! I had one large, lascivious Cocker-Spaniel in a few weeks home when one of them trotted importantly into the room, spied the chocolate out of reach and primed his nose inquisitively at it. His eyes were melting and I could not escape them, then just to load the dice, he gave up with his mind ingratiating air.so . . . I gave in to him. You see what I mean?

Well, my pet another ramble draws to a close for my aching bones are interested at the basketball practices are crying out for a horizontal position . . . so to bed.

Ever,
NICKEY.

MORE ABOUT MAPLE SYRUP PRICE

In clarification of its recent maple products order, the Prices Board points out that farmers who process their own maple syrup can ask retail prices for it according to grades if they are in actual business as a retail store or market stall, or if they sell to consumers under any permit or license issued by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board or any municipality.

If the farmer brings his maple syrup into town and uses a retail store or market stall in which to sell it, he is considered a "retailer within the meaning of the order" and may thus charge retail prices for his syrup. But he may not add the retailers mark-up to his producer price if he sells from door to door or at his farm.

In this province the maple syrup processor-farmer is entitled to grade his syrup and thus to obtain higher prices for the better grades, but he must be prepared to assume responsibility for the grading the marking of all containers in accordance with the regulations and also be prepared to undergo inspection.

Every war-worker's TWO-FOLD JOB!

1—Maintaining and increasing production

2—Helping finance the war

WHEN the Allied forces went on the attack, your two-fold war responsibility became greater than at any time during the war.

For on the attack, war materials just seem to melt away. The consumption of the supplies you are making is going on at an unbelievable rate—hastening the day of Victory and Peace.

This means that the production of war supplies must go on; ever faster. It also means that the cost of the war is becoming greater.

A great deal of these two responsibilities must be carried by war workers like yourself. Only you can maintain and increase the flow of essential war materials. And you, in common with every loyal citizen of Canada, can help finance the increasing cost of the attack.

Your purchase of Victory Bonds is an essential part of the Allied war strategy. Bonds are intended to be purchased by anyone. They are not reserved for financiers, merchants, bankers or people of wealth only. You and I, and all of us can and should own Victory Bonds.

The fourth Victory Loan will open soon. The millions of workers employed in Industry—war and otherwise—are counted upon to loan a definite part of the amount required in the biggest loan yet asked of the Canadian people. To reach it, more men and women and children must become bond purchasers, and it will be necessary for those who have purchased bonds in previous loans to buy more bonds.

When your fellow worker calls on you to buy Victory Bonds BE READY. Give him two orders. One for cash, and the other for the very limit that you can buy out of earnings, on the Payroll Savings Plan. Plan now to do your part to sustain the attack!

BOY SCOUTS AID IN CAPTURE OF CAR THIEF

On Saturday last, about noon, two car thieves wanted in Kingston, were arrested by police officers and were taken back to Kingston to stand trial.

Word was received by the Napanee police during the morning that the two men driving the stolen car were headed toward Napanee. After the car was spotted, Chief Moore and Provincial Officers Taylor and Morgan gave chase and caught up with the men near the Napanee Golf Estate, where the car was abandoned. Chief Moore and Constable Taylor were able to apprehend, one of the men, but the other ran through the fields toward the town in the Petry Hill district.

A troop of the Boy Scouts, in charge of Fred Lehr and John Simpson and including Richard Knapp, Rad Ayer, Bob Ayer, Cameron Gillott and Ray Adams, were called out by Constable Morden and largely due to their assistance the fugitive was discovered in a barn on Water street. When the boys located their man they blew their scout whistles furiously and Constable Morden arrested him.

Constable Morden speaks very highly of the service rendered by the Scouts; whose thoroughness in making the search assisted so much in the capture of the car thief.

The two men arrested were members of the R.C.A.F. from Toronto.

Memorial Service For Sergt. W. G. Roney Held Last Sunday

On Sunday evening at St. Mary Magdalene's Anglican Church, a memorial service was held for the late Sergt. W. G. (Jimmy) Roney, a wireless air gunner with the R.C.A.F. who was reported missing about six months ago, and later reported dead.

Jimmy Roney was the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Roney, Napanee. He was born 27 years ago at Deseronto and had lived most of his life in Napanee until he enlisted in 1940. He went overseas in 1941 and took part in three great air raids on the German cities of Cologne, Essen and Hamburg. His plane was shot down while in action over Germany.

The memorial service was conducted by the Venerable Archdeacon H. J. Dumbrille, rector of St. Mary Magdalene's Church. A large number of friends of the family, including several members of the Air Force attended the service in addition to the family of the late Sergt. Roney.

He is survived by his parents, two brothers, Vernon in the R. C. A. F. and Donald at home, and two sisters, Marion, and Mrs. Vernon Mowers, Napanee.

Rural Mail Couriers Ask Co-operation Of Box Holders

Rural mail couriers are frequently asked to mail letters for box holders and in many cases only three cents is still being left in the box for the postage. The new postal rates came into effect April 1st and the postage was raised to four cents on letters which formerly required only a three cent stamp.

The couriers are consequently put to extra bother through the failure of the box-holders to include the right amount of postage with their letters.

IDEAS WANTED

Here is a challenge to all communities in Lennox and Addington to combine patriotic duty with a chance to win prizes offered by the National War Finance Committee in connection with the Fourth Victory Loan Drive. A nationwide Contest has been started and awards will be made for the best promotional ideas supporting Canada's Fourth Victory Loan.

Now is an excellent chance for all individuals to show their own originality on publicity matters.

Most of us carry a fair share of enthusiasm for Canada's war job, but the trouble is that too many carry it bottled up. They are willing to buy bonds when they are asked; but they let it go at that.

There is no corner on ideas held by any citizen, any particular group of citizens or any community. So put on your thinking-cap. You may evolve something which will help. In any case, it will be good exercise which will stimulate your interest in the Loan and contribute to its success.

A fine example of a thought-provoking scheme is the Victory Loan School Quiz which was originated in Lennox and Addington.

Contact Victory Loan Headquarters for further particulars or submission of ideas.

LOAN CANVASSERS HEAR ADDRESSES AT DINNER MEETING

Large Objective for County Will Require Much Effort to Achieve Quota

Salesmen for the Fourth Victory Loan, publicity officials and several others connected with the War Finance Organization of the County of Lennox and Addington, attended a dinner meeting on Monday evening, in the Superior Restaurant. Mayor D. R. Hall, the County Chairman, presided and several short addresses were given emphasizing the needs for an all-out effort in the county to reach the quota of $1,200,000.

Squadron Leader Gibson, who is in charge of the No. 1 Instrument Flying School at Deseronto, the first training school of its kind in Canada, spoke briefly urging the salesmen to make every effort possible to sell bonds. Squadron Leader Gibson spoke of the increased air strength of the Allies and the tremendous cost of building planes and training the personnel. Squadron Leader Gibson, who before the war was a commercial pilot enlisted the day after the war broke out and has seen service in England, over the Continent and at Malta. He was introduced by Flying Officer Tucker and was thanked on behalf of the guests by W. A. Grange, the honorary chairman of the County War Finance Committee.

J. B. Elliott, the chairman of the County Agricultural Committee, in a short address, spoke of the problem facing farmers and their desire to do the best possible to produce foodstuffs. He assured the salesmen that the farmers in the county would be willing to subscribe to the Fourth Victory Loan to the limit of their financial ability.

Mr. Jack Young, the district organizer for the Victory Loan, said that it is up to the salesmen to bring it home to the Canadian public that we really are at war and that the war is at a crisis, which will require the full financial support of every citizen. He said that those who subscribed to the Victory Loan will not be giving anything away. They will get in return for their money bonds yielding twice the interest the banks give and the security behind them is the best in the world. Mr. Young also referred to the prospects of Canada after the war as being the brightest in the world. Money from Europe and the United States will undoubtedly pour into Canada for investment and the country will expand in every field.

Other short addresses were given by W. J. Wiggins, Ray McPhee, the county organizer, Ted Saunders, assistant organizer, and W. A. Grange.

Following the addresses motion pictures, depicting Canada's war effort were shown for the entertainment of the guests.

TRIED AND FOUND WANTING

It ought not to be necessary to suggest that a policy of appeasement in international affairs is bound, in the long run, to fail. We have had abundant evidence of this during the years immediately preceding the war. It was appeasement to Hitler and to Italy which strengthened those nations, gave them confidence in themselves and enabled them, finally, to challenge The United Nations. We might reasonably have expected the United Nations to disavow any further experiment in that realm.

But we are not so sure but that the United Nations may still have to learn that appeasement to Franco and Spain will have the same result as was experienced with Italy and Germany. Spain has been given huge quantities of oil and other commodities which are stacked up in Spain. Spain has been permitted to ferry men and munitions to Spanish Morocco, where the army of Franco and the 20,000 or more German tourists are ready to stab the Army of the United Nations in the back, should the occasion arise.

To cap this all, Franco openly and in the presence of The American Ambassador to Spain avows his allegiance to Hitler and condemns the Russian Nation and the Russian way of life. Franco has a little debt owing to Hitler, who sent aeroplanes and personnel to Spain to help Franco crush the Democratic movement in that country. Hitler may have suggested to Franco that he make his position clear, and his association with the totalitarian movement unmistakable.

At any rate, it is a fair assumption that Franco is heart and soul with Hitler, that he is opposed to the Democracy of Russia, and that he is ready, when the time comes, to throw the weight of his armies into the fray on the side of his totalitarian master and benefactor. In view of this, it seems incredible that the United Nations should continue the policy of appeasement which has been tried and found wanting.

There can be little doubt but that the progress of the American forces has been hindered in their campaign in Tunisia because so many of them had to watch the border of Spanish Morocco. It may be too late now to make a change of policy, but, at any rate, we ought to keep our eyes open to the dangers ahead.

THE WAR IN TUNISIA

The war has reached a final stage in Tunisia. There is much speculation as to the way in which Rommel and General vonArnim will elect to meet the thrust from the British and American forces. They may decide on a second Dunkirk in an endeavour to save the most of their 170.000 men and some of their munitions. Should this be the decision the odds against a successful withdrawal are greater than those that faced the British at Dunkirk. The British Army was saved by a thousand boats, big and little, which had only forty miles of warter to navigate on a day on which the weather was especially favorable. The German Army would have approximately a hundred miles of water to cross, in which there are many submarines waiting for them, and over which the United Nations Air Force, now in undoubted superiority, would cause great havoc. It would be a great hazard, but one which Rommel may attempt.

If, on the other hand, they elect to defend Bizerte, as Stalingrad was defended, they would be helped by a terrain favorable to defense, and by the stupendous fortifications which have been erected, especially during the past year. The end in this case would be inevitable. But it might be longer delayed. By electing to make a last stand, Hitler may decide that the loss of men and munitions would be worth the time gained. For what Hitler needs more than anything else now is time to enable him to fortify the south coast of Europe.

In the meantime, we are in one of those times of suppressed emotions, when everybody expects something to happen, but when nobody has any idea of what will take place. Whatever moves are made, of this we may be sure, we will witness one of the greatest struggles of all history.

THE NEW LOAN

Soon we shall be asked to contribute to a new War Loan. The amount aimed at is $1,100,000,000. That is a lot of money, no matter from what point of view we look at it. But it is needed to carry on the war effort. After the large loans already floated, it might be assumed that it would be impossible to hope for such a large amount, this time, and yet there is more money in circulation than there has been for a long time. The factories are working full time. Generous wages are paid, and farm produce is coming into its own. The farmers are receiving more for their products than they have done for years.

Then, too, there are less ways in which to spend money. Gasoline is restricted: purchase of cars and tires is reduced to the lowest minimum. Food is being rationed, luxuries of all sorts are curtailed. To be sure the cost of living has gone up some, but with the large amount of money in circulation, this is a burden only to a certain small section of the community, notably the professional and salaried classes. The result is that there is money in the banks. Opportunities for investment are few. So the money is available.

In addition to the availability of the money the necessity of supporting the war effort is a dominant factor in the situation. We are face to face with a well organized, well directed and well generalled enemy. To meet the threat to our civilization, our way of life, the total resources of the nation, material, financial and spiritual, are needed. The men and women have enlisted in great numbers. They must be maintained. The best we have must be available for them. There are endless quantities of guns, trucks, tanks, planes and ships to be manufactured and paid for. Of course, taxes pay for a lot, but taxes, in spite of their unprecedented size, will only meet slightly over half the amount needed to pay for the war effort this year. The rest must be received by borrowing.

There should be no holding back. The security of the nation is behind every bond. There is no greater security in Canada than that.. Napanee and the County of Lennox and Addington can be depended on to do its share.

EASTER, 1943

Easter is late this year; so is the Spring. Strange that these two events which are so inextricably woven together in men's minds, should synchronize so definitely in respect to time, and with respect to the chief ideas with which we associate them—rebirth and promise of future life.

The promise of Spring and of Easter, each from its own angle, bring hope to a world darkened and distraught by war and the shadow of death. Always after the cold dead days of Winter, Spring, with its warm days, melting snows, running sap, and early blooms brings new hope in its promise of growth, harvest and food for man and beast. While Easter, which touches the deeper things of the spirit comes to renew in men, the hope of life eternal.

To-day the world is passing through its Rethsemane, the darkness of a great tragedy broods over all, while a death, destruction, carnage and suffering stalk the land. Thousands upon thousands, the flower of youth from a half-hundred nations, are facing danger and death. Millions have been killed, homes disrupted, families scattered and hospitals filled.

With death hovering over us and ours, the meaning of Good Friday becomes more real, more intimate, more vitally associated with each of us. Nobdy knows from one day to the next just what he may be called upon to bear.

But if Good Friday becomes more real in a world which is enshadowed in death, the promise of Easter breaks through the gloom bringing hope and encouragement and renewed faith in the future of our race and of man's ultimate conquest of the evil. Death is not the last word. The death of Winter gives way to the life of Spring. The death of war and destruction gives way finally before the innate desires of man for peace and goodwill. Good Friday is always followed by Easter. And in the light of history, it is comforting to know that Good Friday and Easter are not so far apart.

O song of sunshine through the rain,
O Spring across the snow,
O balm to heal the hurts of pain,
A peace surpassing woe.
Lift up your heads ye sorrowing ones
And be ye glad of heart
For Calvary and Easterday
Were just one day apart.

Oh! when the sound of tongues is loud
And the heart of hope beats low,
When the prophets prophesy of ill
And the mourners come and go.
In this sure thought let us abide
And keep and stay our hear—
Earth's heaviest day, and happiest day
Were just one day apart.

HARD KNOCKS AHEAD FOR JAPS

The Allied air offensive against the Japanese in the Southwest Pacific can be regarded as having begun with the battle of Kavieng, the successful conclusion of which was announced by General Douglas MacArthur's headquarters.

With the destruction of three warships and one cargo craft and serious damage to at least eight others out of a concentration of ten warships and six merchantmen — in waters selected by the Allied air forces and not by the enemy — comes the inevitable indication that the first tangible indication that the Allies are prepared to take the initiative which they have held, in the air, for some time and to strike out against enemy positions hitherto considered immediately adjacent ones.

More and equally devastating attacks will follow, whenever opportunity presents, and eventually Allied troops will follow the lead of the planes into the areas now held by the Japanese. It will not be an easy path and stiff fighting lies ahead, but the tide is beginning to turn.

The importance attached by general headquarters to the three-day attack on the New Ireland base is indicated not only in the 30-word announcement on the subject in the communique — unusually long for a headquarters announcement — but in the detailed tabulation of results of the battle released separately to correspondents.

A New Word Appears

Also in the communique, but quite overlooked in the excitement of the moment, was a word which had never appeared before in any releases from MacArthur's Headquarters. It was the "offensive," used in connection with attacks by American A-20 attack bombers against enemy positions in the Mubo area of northeastern New Guinea. The planes were described as "continuing their offensive" against enemy positions in the Mubo area, these positions, which along with Wau, Lae and Salamaua, have been under almost daily attack since February 21st.

Significantly, the communique used the term "enemy defence perimeter" in referring to Japanese positions along the Markham valley, just outside of Lae, and this revealed for the first time that the Allied command believes that the enemy in that area is now definitely on the defensive against the continuous and persistent punishment which the Allies have been administering from the air.

What reasons can be assigned for the impressive victory accomplished by the Allied airmen in the Battle of Kavieng must remain to be determined, but it can be ascribed largely to the fact that the element embraced in an attack upon shipping which the Japanese apparently thought was well out of bomber range and the use of what headquarters described as "special battle technique" developed especially for this attack, which had been carefully planned, when it became evident that the Japanese were assembling warships and merchant vessels near Kavieng.

Range Increased

What this "special technique" was cannot now be revealed, but it effectively increased the range of the flying fortress bombers employed and contributed greatly to the surprise element. Darkness also was used as a screen and to prevent interception simultaneous attacks were made on enemy airfields from which attacking fighters might have come. As a result, there was no attempt at interception during the entire three days of battle and there was only slight anti-aircraft fire from the ships.

Only ten American bombers were used in the first attacks and eight Flying Fortresses on each of the two succeeding attacks. Another remarkable tribute to the planning and efficiency of the Allied air command and the fliers in this area.

Tying in with the significance of this action was the growing importance of Kavieng as a Japanese base, perhaps as a substitute for Rabaul, New Britain, which has been badly battered by the Allied air forces for the last three months. There is no indication that the Japanese are preparing to transfer from Rabaul, which is 200 miles northwest of Kavieng, but it is known that activities have been increasing at the latter place. But for the last ten days there have been no allied attacks on Rabaul, the longest period in which it has gone unattended since December, except for the period of the Bismarck Sea Battle, when the planes were otherwise occupied.

Never before have Fortresses gone farther than Rabaul, which is slightly under 500 miles from the nearest Allied base in the Battle of Kavieng they successfully went considerably more than 500 miles one way or a round trip flight of almost 1,200 miles.

On this basis alone, considerable optimism might be applied to the future of air warfare in the Southwest Pacific, but there are other reasons for being optimistic — some of which can be given and some of which cannot.

One of the former was the enthusiasm displayed by Major-General Harold L. George, commander of the Air Transport Command of the United States Army air forces, who in a press interview at headquarters said he had just visited New Guinea and described the accomplishments there of the Army Air Transport as "exceptional." Without being too specific in his references to equipment and methods in use there, he indicated that what he had seen had pleased him immensely.

What has been accomplished there would have been impossible without the use of air transport, he felt, and he certainly displayed no pessimism regarding the scope of its future employment.

Services Offered

He had gone to Australia, he said, on an inspection tour and to ascertain what the needs were for air transport as well as to offer the services of his command to General MacArthur and Major General George C. Kenney, Allied air chief in this theatre, for any use they might make of it.

If what were regarded as insufficient planes were reaching any area, he said it was [illegible] plans had been [illegible] board of strategy [illegible] being transferred to [illegible] Mr. and Mrs. Mackenzie, called on [illegible] Mrs. M. Foster, on [illegible]

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON, APRIL 25TH, 1943

"THE RISEN LORD"

Lesson Text: John 20: 1-17

The belief in immortality is a venture of faith. But it is a venture which the bravest in every age have not hesitated to make. There is no logical proof for such a belief. None was returned to tell us of a life beyond. The evidence which searchers after proof adduce, cannot by any stretch of the imagination be admitted as historic evidence. It would not be accepted in a court of law. Immortality is a faith, knowing which is as real and as genuine as any natural deduction or proof.

The belief, the hope, the faith, in a future life implanted in us by a Father God, must be true or else He mocks us all.

'Tis must be so—Plato thou reasonest well!

Else whence this pleasing hope, this fond desire,
This longing after immortality?
Or whence this secret dread, and inward horror,
Of falling into naught? Why shrinks the soul
Back on herself and startles at destruction?
'Tis the Divinity that stirs within us;
'Tis Heaven itself that points out a hereafter,
And, intimates eternity to man."

The body of Jesus was buried before sunset on Good Friday. Nothing could be done the next day, which was the Sabbath. But early the following morning Mary and the Disciples hastened to the tomb to perform their last tender rites over the body of their Lord. The stories in each of the gospels differ as to what happened. The details conflict, and there is no way of reconciling these differences, nor would there be much value in attempting to do so.

To debate whether there were two angels in the tomb or only one, or whether Peter or John got to the tomb first, is quite beside the point. To do so is to rob the narrative of all its beauty, its imagery, its mystery. The heart of the matter is that, in some way, the men and women who were dear to the Master, when he was on earth, were made aware that Jesus was not dead. He had broken down the barrier of mortality and had demonstrated Himself and to the world His victory over all life.

It was this conviction which, in the early disciples out into the world apostle-down. In a very short time the word of the Master was proclaimed in all the then known world. And entrenched customs broke the spell, old and venerable systems tottered into ruins when the triumphant marched on conquering and to conquer.

A scientific and sceptical age through which we have sought to believe nothing that could not be proved by science. The faith in Jesus has wavered and become dim in consequence has been a weakened church, a church which has something of the spirit of Jesus, a church which has the evangelistic crusading spirit are evidences of a church that is death all around us, but the spirit to view it in a realistic and materialistic manner. The more people are examined by the convictions and reality rising in the indestructability of life. When that faith regains its power, preliminary conditions being awaited revival will be achieved.

A. Write to the Consumer Branch, Arcade Building, Ottawa, for a copy of the two-act play "Counter-Attack", which is distributed without charge. It is easy to perform and amusing and instructive to watch.

Q. My grocer was quite short with me when I questioned him about the price of potatoes. Should I report him?

A. Not unless you suspect that he is overcharging you and not observing the price ceiling law. You must remember that nowadays many merchants are operating under severe strain. They have many precautions to observe and they often have difficulty in procuring sufficient help. Due allowance must be made for this by consumers dealing with them.

Q. I am thinking of a private tea or dinner party and would like to get a permit for extra sugar. Can you tell me where to apply?

A. No such tea or banquet permit is now considered essential.

Q. My grocer refused to sell me a jar of jam unless I bought other goods in the store. Is this legal?

A. No. Merchants may not impose any customer to buy any quantity of goods before selling articles that have become difficult to obtain.

OTTAWA PLANS MEAT CHARTS

Ottawa. — The Prices Board said, last week, in a statement that deciding what kind of meat to buy under the forthcoming rationing plan won't be a "complicated problem" for Canadian housewives — comprehensive charts are being prepared by the board for display in every meat store when rationing begins.

"The charts will show exactly how much of every type of meat and every kind of cut can be had for ration coupons," the board said. They'll be the official guide for both butcher and customer.

"Preparing the charts are men with long years of experience in the butchering trade, who have the benefit of experts in every field to assist them. It is no mean task. The charts must include all the information necessary for buying hundreds of different cuts of meat."

The weekly ration of meat is to be about two pounds per person, but the coupon value of different cuts has still to be announced.

What The Canadian National Institute Does For The Blind

Next Monday, April 26th, the Canadian Institute for the Blind will open its annual campaign for funds in Napanee. This campaign is being planned and conducted by the Institute's Napanee Committee of which Mr. Mark P. Graham is chairman and Mr. G. Norman Gray-Treasurer. It will culminate in a Tag Day on Saturday, May 8th, which is once again being sponsored by the United Empire Loyalist Chapter of the I. O. D. E. with Mrs. Raymond Mooy as Tag Day Convener.

The public is entitled to know why it is necessary to conduct this campaign. The answer is simple. It is in order to enable the Institute to carry on its work. It is to provide employment for those blind people who are physically competent to take a place in the industrial or business world. It is to provide Braille books, magazines and talking books for blind people to whom ordinary libraries are no use. It is to send home teachers into the homes of men and women who have lost their sight so that they may learn to read and write Braille, to operate the typewriter and to become proficient at some handicraft, which will occupy their time and their minds and give them a chance to earn a few dollars. It is to sustain services designed to insure that they suffer no added hardship. It is to give them the friendly help of an organization interested in their welfare, to assist them with their social and economic problems.

It is to make certain that they receive competent medical attention so that, if there is a chance of their sight being restored or improved that chance is not denied them. It is to make life worth living for them. It is essential for blind people that The Canadian National Institute for the Blind be supported because there is no other agency in Ontario equipped to give them the services they require.

In Napanee and Lennox and Addington County there are 24 blind persons registered with the Institute and prevention of blindness activities are also carried on. In this district, Through the generous support of the citizens of Napanee, the Institute, in the past, has been able to continue and expand its work in this community. For it to continue to do so, the continued support of the public

Receive New Members At Morning Service In Trinity Church

There was a large attendance of members of Grace and Trinity United churches at Trinity Church last Sunday morning, when the quarterly communion service was held. Rev. C. D. McLellan, the minister of Grace Church, preached the sermon and Mr. McLellan and Rev. G. M. Chidley, minister of Trinity Church, conducted the communion service, assisted by sixteen elders from the two churches.

Mr. McLellan received into membership of Grace church a group of ten young people and Mr. Chidley received ten boys from the Sunday school and two adults who transferred from another church.

Preceding the communion service Mr. Chidley spoke briefly of the death in action of Sergt. Walter Kimmerly, and Donald Smith, son of Dr. and Mrs. H. W. Smith, a boy soprano member of Trinity choir sang as a solo "Rest in the Love."

MAKING PLANS FOR RENOVATION TO GRACE CHURCH

Plans are being made by the Board of Grace United Church for the renovation and rebuilding of the church, which was badly damaged by fire several months ago. The contract for the job has not been let as yet but will be awarded as soon as government approval for the necessary work has been received.

It is proposed to make considerable change in the interior of the church and a new entrance will likely be built. Instead of the present arrangement of seats, there will be a central aisle with seats each side and the floor will be levelled. A chancel will be added and the side galleries will be removed, giving the church a new look.

At the present time the men of the church are removing the galleries and seats and are making ready for the repairs to be made.

Until the church is ready for use again the congregation will continue to meet for church services in Trinity Church.

MELVIN TAYLOR DIED SUDDENLY TUESDAY A. M.

The sudden death of Melvin Taylor occurred early Tuesday morning, April 20th, at his home Thomas St., Napanee. Mr. Taylor was around as usual on Monday and when he failed to rise at about his regular time on Tuesday morning, investigation revealed that he had apparently died in his sleep.

Mr. Taylor was born in Napanee seventy years ago and had lived all his life in the town. He was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Taylor, well-known residents of Napanee. He was employed for many years as a watchmaker and jeweller with Smith Bros. and later went into the jewelery business for himself. He operated his own business successfully for a number of years and retired about twelve years ago.

He is survived by his wife, formerly Mary R. Hunter, one daughter Helen, Mrs. Gilbert Repp, and two brothers, Garnet of Woodstock and Donald of Clarkson. He was predeceased by his sister Mrs. (Dr.) Sutton, and a brother, W. J. Taylor.

A private funeral will be conducted by Rev. G. N. Chidley, Thursday at 2:00 p.m., at the VanLuven & Wartman Funeral Home and interment will follow at Riverside cemetery.

WEDDING BELLS

SCILLEY—GROOMS

On Saturday afternoon, April 17 the home of Mr. and Mrs. Menno Grooms, Mill St., was the scene of a pretty spring wedding when their youngest daughter, Helen Adele, became the bride of David, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Scilley, Newburgh. Rev. H. B. Herrington of Newburgh, officiated.

The fair bride, given in marriage by her father, was charming in a floor length gown of white duchesse with finger-tip veil. She carried pink carnations and bridal roses. Her only jewelery was a double string of pearls, the gift of the groom.

Miss Pearl Scilley, sister of the groom, as bridesmaid, was winsome in a pink organza floor length gown and blue and shoulder corsage of carnations.

Mrs. Barbara Dowdon, niece of the bride made a dainty flower girl attired in pale blue silk and carrying her basket of roses.

The groom was attended by Mr. Orval Scilley, brother of the groom, as best man.

The wedding music was played by the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Martha Robinson, of Deseronto, and Mrs. Ross Nash, of Napanee, presided with guitar accompaniment during the signing of the register.

Following the ceremony a buffet supper was served to 30 guests.

The bride's table was centred with flowers potted plants and pink and white streamers. The three-tiered wedding cake was topped with a miniature bride and groom in a bower of nuptial flowers. She was lovely in her afternoon dress of corsage of carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. Scilley left on a motor trip through Toronto and Sudbury. The bride received the traditional set of luggage. She wore matching accessories.

Description Of Victory Loan Bonds

Q.— Is there any likelihood of regulations being issued preventing people from cashing their War Savings Certificates or selling their Victory Loan Bonds?

Answer: No. Rumours to this effect have set their circulation from time to time. They are therefore unwise. No restrictions on the sale of Victory Bonds are on the recommendation of War Savings Certificates are under consideration and no restrictions have been considered at any time in the past.

Q.— How is interest paid on Victory Loan Bonds?

Answer: Bearer bonds pay interest payable every half year. The dates when interest is due are clearly set out according to the bonds.

Bonds in bearer form and Bonds which are registered as to principal with carve interest coupons. One coupon is due each half year the date of maturity of each coupon being shown on its face. On each interest date you cut off the proper coupon and take it to a bank. Any branch of any chartered bank in Canada will cash Victory Loan Bonds in coupon form without any charge to you for this service.

Bonds with interest coupons are attached to them. Bonds are issued both principal and interest. When the principal is due each half year on these Bonds, the Government of Canada mails you a cheque for the amount due. This cheque is encashed at any branch of any chartered bank in Canada without any service charge.

Q.— In what denominations are Victory Loan Bonds available?

Answer: The current term Victory Loan Bonds which are the kind most people buy are available in denominations of $50, $100, $500, $1,000 and larger amounts.

Bonds for bonds, which are bought for the most part by business firms and corporations are available in denominations of $1,000 and larger amounts.

Q.— What is the difference between a bearer bond and a registered bond?

Answer: Bearer Bonds may be sold at any time by any person holding them and the interest coupons attached to these Bonds are payable to any person who presents the coupons for payment.

In short, bearer Bonds are almost as liquid as a dollar bill.

There are two ways you can have Bonds registered in your own name. First, there are Bonds registered as to principal. And, second, there are fully registered Bonds. Bonds registered as to both principal and interest.

In the case of a Bond registered as to principal the Bond can be sold only if you sign a form known as a "Power of Attorney." However, the interest coupons on these Bonds are payable to any person who presents them for payment.

In the case of a fully registered Bond, the Bond can be sold only if you sign a form known as a "Power of Attorney." But no interest coupons are attached to this type of Bond. The Government pays the interest on these Bonds by mailing you a cheque each half year.

Bearer Bonds, of any denomination, may be registered as to principal. And, in the case of Bonds of $500 or larger amounts, bearer Bonds can be exchanged for fully registered Bonds. Similarly, registered Bonds can be exchanged at any time for bearer Bonds.

The main difference between bearer Bonds and registered Bonds is that registered Bonds give you better protection in the event that the Bonds are lost, stolen or destroyed.

Q.— Since Victory Loan Bonds in bearer form can easily be sold by anybody, what should be done to keep them safe?

Answer: It is best to keep your Bonds in a safety deposit box in a bank. If you do not have a box of this kind, any bank will keep your Bonds for you for a small annual charge.

Safe-keeping arrangements can also be made with many trust and loan companies.

If it is not convenient for you to place your Bonds for safe-keeping with one of these institutions, be sure to keep them in a safe place at home or at your place of business—and be sure to keep a record of the serial numbers of the Bonds in a separate safe place. (These numbers will be valuable should the Bonds be lost, stolen or destroyed at any time.)

In any event, if you keep your Bonds at home or at your place of business, it is safer to have them in registered form.

SEED CLEANING ON THE FARM

Although large, well equipped seed cleaning machinery is now available to farmers at a large number of points across Canada, these facilities are still beyond the reach of many, states Dr. L. H. Newman, Dominion Cerealist. As a matter of fact, the great majority of farmers in most of the provinces are still obliged to clean and grade their seed at home. In such cases the farm sized fanning mill is practically a necessity except on large holdings where a machine of greater capacity may be justified. While the large power unit usually is capable of doing a better job than in the small fanning mill back on the farm, yet the careful operator of a farm mill can make a satisfactory separation of the small from the large seed and can remove the weed seeds present quite satisfactorily except in certain cases.

The labour of cleaning and handling seed on the farm may be greatly reduced where the layout permits the elevation of the seed from the cleaner to an overhead bin. From this bin the seed may be aspouted back to the fanning mill for a second cleaning. It is almost always necessary to run seed grain through a fanning mill at least twice and sometimes three times in order to make a satisfactory job. If a given lot of seed is to be cleaned a third time it may be elevated to a second overhead bin which is within spouting distance of the fanning mill on the floor below. In cleaning seed through any mill either large or small it is absolutely necessary that the grain pass easily over the screens. Otherwise a separation of the small seed and weed seeds cannot be made effectively.

The most important feature of any seed cleaning machine, be it large or small, is the combination of sieves used. The top or scalping sieve should be barely large enough to let the grain through, the larger material being separated off. The size of the scalping screens used should, of course, be determined by the size and shape of the seed being cleaned. In the case of ordinary oats, sieves with oblong openings about one-half inch in length by one-fourteenth to one-twelfth inch in width are commonly used. In some seasons and for some varieties, sieves of different sizes may be required. Information as to where the material for the making of sieves may be purchased may be had by applying to an Experimental Station, Agricultural College, or a Department of Agriculture.

One of the difficulties which confronts many registered seed growers is the uncertainty as to whether or not their seed is going to find a market. This often means that they defer going to the expense of having their seed cleaned at a central plant until spring is well advanced when they have not the time to bother with it. This often means that much good seed is used for other purposes than seeding. Where a seed producer has his own fanning mill, he can clean his seed well before spring opens and thus be in a position to fill any orders which may come in. Where a grower has a mouse-proof room available, he can even have his seed bagged, weighed, and ready for inspection, and if the seed is not all sold it may be kept over.

EASTER—AN IN YOUR RATION BOOK AND AA IN YOUR HEART

Hello Homemakers! There's nothing can gladden a mother's heart more than having the children home for a few days — whether on holidays or on military leave. It means added strain on the ration book and careful planning of your shopping so that only necessary trips are made to the store if you are using the car. What to serve for the Easter week-end need not puzzle us if we choose dishes that intrigue the appetite and delight the eye. Here's an inviting Nutri-thrift menu. Breakfast. Farina porridge with raisins in it, eggs in shells, toast with jelly, coffee. Dinner: Baked stuffed heart, baked potatoes, browned parsnips, cream peach pie. Lunch or Supper: Clear vegetable soup, devilled eggs, grated carrot and cabbage salad. Easter cake. Buning fruit cup, hot chocolate.

RECIPES

Baked Stuffed Heart

One beef heart (about 4 lbs.) one cup brown cereal, one teaspoon salt quarter teaspoon pepper, one teaspoon sage, two tablespoons onion, one egg, milk.

Wash and trim heart. Remove veins and arteries. Soak in cold salted water for three-quarters hour. Drain. Make stuffing of cereal, salt, pepper and sage, onion and fat. Beat egg in cup and fill up with milk. Combine all together. Stir up to moisten. Cool well with seasoned flour and brown thoroughly. Pour tomato juice or hot water to at least half-inch depth. Use a tightly fitting lid and simmer three to four hours on electric element turned to "Low" or "Simmer."

Easter Cake

One half-cup baking fat, half-cup sugar, half-cup light corn syrup, one egg, one egg yolk, two cups cake flour, three teaspoons, baking powder, half teaspoon salt, half-cup milk, one teaspoon of vanilla, strawberry jam, jelly beans.

Cream the fat, add the sugar gradually and cream thoroughly. Stir in the corn syrup gradually. Add the egg, then egg yolk, beating well after each addition. Mix and sift the flour, baking powder and salt and add to first mixture alternately with the milk. Add vanilla and pour into two greased and floured 9-inch layer cake pans. Bake in electric oven (350 deg.) twenty to twenty-five minutes. Spread jam between the layers and cover top and sides with Double Boiler Frosting. Decorate with jelly beans. Make Double Boiler Frosting as follows:

One-third cup light corn syrup, one-third cup sugar, two tablespoons water, few grains salt, one egg-white, one teaspoon vanilla, one egg white.

Combine egg white, corn syrup, sugar, water and salt and heat with a rotary beater until well mixed. Place over rapidly boiling water and cook, beating constantly, for five to seven minutes or until the frosting will stand in peaks. Remove from heat, add vanilla and beat until thick enough to spread. If desired, tint with yellow coloring.

Fanny Fruit Cup

One pint jar of pears, two tablespoons gelatine, half-cup cold water, cinnamon buds, yellow coloring.

Soak gelatine in cold water. Heat one and one-half cups of pear juice and tint with yellow coloring. Stir in the softened gelatine. Pour into slightly greased square cake pan and chill. Before it is set, cut pears into shapes and make pretty edges. Arrange in the shimmering jelly. Mark eyes with cinnamon buds which give an intriguing flavour. Place in the electric refrigerator until firm.

TAKE A TIP:

1 A good dry cleaning will kill moths and their eggs.
2 Use suit boxes for storage. Put clean woollens in and seal with a piece of cloth dipped in egg white.
3 Moth-proof flakes scattered in the folds of garments in closets and trunks will kill moths and prevent eggs from hatching.
4 Sprinkling powdered alum or salt in the crevices of upholstering is also helpful in exterminating moths.
5 Leave no old woollen rags or bits of fur about the house — they attract moths; even polishing cloths might be kept in a tin can with the cover on.

THE QUESTION BOX

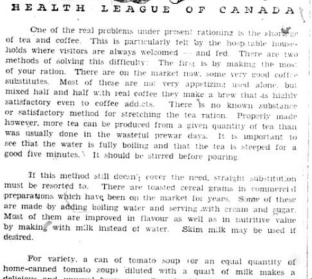
Mrs. G. C. asks: "What can I do to prevent silver on back of mirror from polishing?"

Answer: Mirrors should never be kept in the direct rays of the sun. When washing, do not let water run down back.

Mrs. D. B. asks: "How can I clean stained rose vases?"

Answer: Rose vases can be cleaned by rubbing with kerosene and then polishing with newspapers. The kerosene and printers' ink on newspapers is a combination that will remove the stains. Scrub out with soapy water and rinse.

ANNE ALLAN invites you to write her care of The Napanee Beaver. Send in your questions on home making problems and watch this column for replies.



One of the real problems under present rationing is the shortage of tea and coffee. This is particularly felt by the hospitable households where visitors are always welcomed — and fed. There are two methods of solving this difficulty. The first is by making the most of your ration. There are on the market now, some very good coffee substitutes. Most of these are not very appetizing used alone, but mixed half and half with real coffee they make a brew that as highly satisfactory even to coffee addicts. There is also a substance or satisfactory method for stretching the tea ration. Properly made however, more tea can be produced from a given quantity of tea than was usually done in the wasteful prewar days. It is important to see that the water is fully boiling and that the tea is steeped for a good five minutes. It should be stirred before pouring.

It this method still doesn't cover the need, straight substitution must be resorted to. There are toasted cereal grains in commercial preparations which have been on the market for years. Some of these are made by adding boiling water and serving with cream and sugar. Most of them are improved in flavour as well as in nutritive value by making with milk instead of water. Skim milk may be used if desired.

For variety, a can of tomato soup (or an equal quantity of home-canned tomato soup) diluted with a quart of milk makes a delicious and unusual beverage. Served with cheese sandwiches or cheese dreams it makes a good and economical late supper for evening visitors. Soup in this dilution needs a little extra salt and some butter if you can spare it. Just before serving sprinkle chopped green onion, chives or parsley over the top.

LETTERS FROM NICKEY

THE STORY OF LIFE IN THE C.W.A.C.

Dear Babs:—

Such exciting news! For a few days now the grapevine has been humming with all sorts of wild rumours but I have paid very little attention as I despise gossipmongers. Besides, every time I look up from my desk, I can see a poster facing me on the opposite wall entitled "Loose Talk." That poster has always given me food for thought. Moreover, there's a dash of canny Scotch in my makeup which makes me reluctant to give away anything. All this boils down to the fact that I am inclined to be close-mouthed. However, this time the news is authentic published, and if I choose, I can about it to the four winds.

Poor Babs, I can imagine how you must be fuming. I can hear you saying, "Nickey, why don't you get on with it . . . the suspense is killing me. . . ." Well, I won't procrastinate any longer. Babs, I have received my marching orders. Several of us are being transferred to a site high in the mountains which, I understand, was, in peacetime, a favorite haunt of the idle rich. I hear, and this is fact, not fiction that we will occupy a large hotel, lodge, community centre and log cabins built only a few years ago, as part of a giant project to create a new playground for wealthy tourists. It is right in the heart of the lake country. Probably the two most excited girls in the camp when the news was released were Pte. Helen Barr, of Kingston, and Pte. "Dolly" Frost of Peterborough, who have long had a yen to see this fabulous spot.

Isn't it a fantastic situation, Babs? I am sure a man in the middle of a dream, but don't wake me up. One simply does not, put on khaki to serve one's country and then find ourselves transported to a scenic fairyland with mountains, tall pines, log cabins hugging the edge of a lake.

It can't be, can it? The wearing of khaki, as I have heard of it, entails hardships—sun, sand and gravel, great, army camps miles from civilization, black army huts in the marsh country. But never before have I heard of such enticing surroundings as there. You know, ever since I joined the Canadian Women's Army Corps, my pre-conceived ideas of army life have been receiving constant jolts. It all started away back when a first arrived here and found my mouth of my empty kit bag so unexpectedly facing me. By the way, only last month, I packed Frankie's kit for her when she was leaving on a ninety-six. I wonder . . . think I'll look Frankie up. Yes, I know—don't say it.

Cheerio,
NICKEY.

Agr. Representative Speaks to Pupils Tamworth School

On Thursday afternoon, April 15, Mr. Buchanan, Agricultural Representative for the Napanee district, paid an official visit to the Tamworth Continuation School. The visit may also be called one of friendship for on the one hand the boys and girls of the farms have got to know Mr. Buchanan through the school fairs, year after year, work that necessitates careful organization and infinite patience, and on the other hand, as a result perhaps of this work, last year some students of the Tamworth district won provincial and Dominion championships in the potato judging contests. In introducing the speaker to the students, Mr. Millar, the principal, spoke of the high character of Mr. Buchanan's work in dealing with the problems of agriculture and in training students for club and competition work.

In his address, Mr. Buchanan spoke of the pride he had in the Tamworth district. He then described his work with the Lions and Rotary Clubs of Napanee. In the Potato Club project there are twelve or fourteen boys to whom the Lions loan the potatoes. In the Fall two bags must be returned to the club. Most farmers do not know the exact cost of growing a bag of potatoes as the cost may vary from year to year. The boys are required to keep records to help determine this. It should be worth something to a farmer to know the exact cost of raising a pig, a chicken or a calf.

About thirty boys are enlisted in the Chicken Project this year. The Rotary Club loans fifty baby chicks to the boys. In the Fall five fatted chickens are given back to the Club. The price of the baby chicks is ten or eleven cents as the club feels it is better to choose the eggs from advanced registered stock. The average of this stock is 200 eggs per year, while the average for Ontario is far less choice grades, is less than 100.

In Girls Club work about the first of May, sewing groups under the direction of Miss Scott will be organized. Thirty-five packages of vegetable seeds will be loaned for the work on the growing, canning and cooking of vegetables. Mr. Buchanan emphasized the value of a girl being able to make her own dress. On Tuesday, he had attended a meeting of the Women's Institute where eight or ten girls were on parade, each wearing the dress she had made herself.

In selecting vegetable seed there were nine classes to choose from — Ordinary, Certified and Registered, besides the farmers' own seed. Each of the first three has three grades. Some of the girls in the clubs had won provincial honours and more than one parent had expressed appreciation of this valuable training in regard to vegetable growing this year. Mr. Buchanan said that the government is asking us to put forth a special effort in gardening. Vegetables will be scarce. We must realize our responsibility as Canadians in feeding the world. Not only have we to feed ourselves, we must help feed the people of Britain, the soldiers and prisoners of war. Eight million plus are needed for England and there is the submarine menace to contend with. Some boats have a capacity of 100 train loads. Nor should we gamble over rationing. In England only one egg a month is allowed. No eggs in the shell are being shipped to England now. Pupils were advised to visit the Napanee Creamery in order to better understand the process of turning eggs in the shell to powder form.

Mr. Buchanan said he hoped that every boy and girl would help in the effort to produce more and better vegetables this year. The new pamphlet on vegetable growing prepared by the Department of Agriculture, advises eighteen or nineteen varieties, some of which are new. Boys were urged to increase the protein supplement. The seeded for this year were also advised to grow our own vegetable seed, as most of the seed we buy comes from European countries and therefore will be hard to get and much more expensive. We are asked to do this both during and after the war. Boys and girls are asked to do things they have never done before. It is an emergency call. It is almost impossible to get hired men.

In closing, Mr. Buchanan said that even with long hours and hard work farming was a dignified, intelligent and free life compared with many other forms of work. If done successfully, however. It required constant study and research. Speaking of education, Mr. Buchanan told the students not to feel that when they left school, they were finished with it. Education was a life process only begun in our school days.

In referring to Mr. Buchanan's remarks re education, Mr. Millar, the principal, said that in taking the view of study and education he felt that he had touched one of the finest chords of life. In regard to the life of the farmer and its many problems, we would do well to remember the quotation "Man made the city but God made the country." It is a good thing to be engaged in work that compels us to use our intellectual capacity. Leaders will be needed for many post-war projects. Now is the time to prepare for that time.

Sincere thanks were given to Mr. Buchanan for his address on "How we can go on with the War Effort," on behalf of the students and staff, after which the National Anthem was sung.

Today she clearly recalls the early days in the thickly-wooded country to the north, mentioning in particular sugar-making time in the spring and getting lost in the woods while gathering sap with others and having to burn fires throughout the night to keep the wolves away. She also recalled vividly the get-together of the neighbors on Christmas day when they would make enough candles to do through the year.

Speaking of her married life she told of driving oxen, helping to make shingles, spinning yarn, making her cloth, baking bread in outdoor bake ovens and smoking venison for meat during the summer.

With the opening of saw mills in Napanee (Bridge and Millpoint) they moved there and Mrs. Bruyea conducted a large boarding house for a number of years. She lived in the same house on Main street for 43 years.

Housed in the barn were two cows and a bull belonging to Russell Boyce, which were burned to death. Mr. McKeown had turned his cattle out a short time before the fire.

675 MEN NEED OUR BACKING

It costs approximately $4,000 per year to feed, house and care for a man on active service. There are about 675 men in the Services from Lennox and Addington. To take care of these men for one year would require $2,- 700,000, or $1,350,000 every six months. Our minimum share of responsibility is to lend $1,200,- 000 the objective of the Fourth Victory Loan in Lennox and Addington.

This year, 1943, is the critical year — the year of the big push. We have an opportunity now. Let's not overlook this certainty, that if each of us buys all the Victory Bonds he can during the next three weeks, if we push up above that million, two hundred thousand objective, the means will be a heartening message to your boy and mine. They will know our hearts are in the right place, that the money we put up assures them all the reserves they are going to need.

Let's make the Fourth Victory Loan a rousing cheer for our boys overseas! a message of encouragement to them at the hour of attack.

H. AND S. MEMBERS HEAR ADDRESSES ON VOCATIONS

The regular meeting of the Napanee Home and School Association was held April 21st, in the Household Science room of the Napanee High and Public School. The president, Mrs. T. J. Hunt, opened the meeting by reading the "Aims" of the Home and School Association.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. The treasurer's report showed a balance of $12.06. A collection taken at the last meeting, to help with the expenses of the field day to be held in June, amounted to 5.85.

A guest speaker was introduced by Mr. Hill, Principal of the West Ward Public School. Pupils from grades 7 and 8 took part. The questions were taken from the Wartime Questionnaire for the Fourth Victory Loan.

Mr. Jamieson, Principal of the Napanee Collegiate, addressed the meeting on "Vocations". He said boys and girls could be compared to water power. Directed in the right channels this force was constructive but in the wrong channels destructive. In vocational as well as in educational guidance, health and aptitude are tendancy factors in important part. The parents could help in this. He explained that there are two types of people, extroverts and introverts. The extrovert is interested in people and doing things. The introvert is interested in ideas, theories and thinking instead of doing. To make the most of vocational guidance one must study and understand human motives. In closing Mr. Jamieson explained the regulations concerning pupils who are allowed to leave school early, to help on farms.

In the absence of Mr. J. McPherson, Mr. Werk Poole of the Gibbard Furniture Co., spoke on the practical side of vocations. He mentioned the importance of general education. He stressed the change in the attitude towards workers in a plant. This he said was due to the fact that plants were able to offer as large a salary as any of the white-collar professions. Workers had splendid working conditions and their apparel is neat and trim. Many children are forced to go on for higher education by over anxious parents when they would be happier working with their hands.

Mr. J. Diamant of the Napanee Collegiate teaching staff, thanked the speakers on behalf of the association.

Mrs. M. Daly moved the adjournment of the meeting.

SUPERINTENDENT'S REPORT

The following is the Superintendent's yearly review of the work of the Society :—

Another year has passed and it becomes necessary for us to pause and reflect on the work that has been accomplished. If the reflection is favourable, our problems will not be so great, if not, ways and means will have to be found to improve during the coming year. We have, as a staff, endeavored to do our best and on our laurels and let the next year take care of itself. This policy will not be discarded and a more aggressive one formed. We hear the cry of "Carry on, carrying on" and applies to us, but we also must plan for the future.

We are being confronted with problems that we never dreamed of a few years ago, but they are apparently in doubt as to their existence even today. I do not wish to appear an alarmist but conditions will no doubt be worse and we as a Society must be prepared to accept our responsibilities. It is, therefore, our duty to study these problems and, if possible, find a solution for them. It will be necessary for our own Members to become thoroughly acquainted with the aims and objects of the Society so that they may give an intelligent interpretation to the public. Without a complete understanding the work of the Society will be greatly retarded.

Child Care

This phase of our work is one to which we have been devoting the greater portion of our time. At present we have sixty children in care as wards and, approximately 19 more as non-wards. These children, as will be noted in the statistical report, are in various types of homes. It is our endeavour to place a child in a home most suited to him. This is not always possible and it is necessary to make changes from time to time. To make proper adjustment the child must have a feeling of security and this cannot be attained if the placement is frequent.

Applicants for children should consider, among other things, that this child has been deprived of a normal home life and that until he becomes acquainted with his new mode of living he may be a trifle trying. Many seek children simply for what assistance they may receive, financial and otherwise. In this type of home we usually encounter difficulty. The child is like any other child, his desires are the same and he craves affection and treatment as one of the family would receive.

There is a need in this county of a small home that would accommodate six to eight children and possibly be equipped to operate as a welfare centre. It is not an difficult to place children that have been in care for a few months. The difficulty arises on the immediate removal from their own home. Such a home would simplify the making of preliminary reports, examinations, etc., and also to give an opportunity to select a home suitable to the child. This is only a suggestion but I honestly believe it would eliminate the difficulty we are experiencing when children are being accepted into care. Naturally, problems will arise concerning operation but the child will not be affected by this.

Adoption :

The past year has been a record for us in the number of adoptions completed. In preparing for an adoption order it is necessary that your Superintendent make a recommendation as to the character, financial standing, ability to train a child and their home surroundings. This is a responsibility that must not be lightly assumed. A favourable report implies in some cases that is not suitable to the child will, in all probability, have a very adverse effect upon him in years to come. On the other hand, with proper placement and adjustment, the recommendation can give a child the advantages enjoyed by a child in any home.

C. U. P. A.

There has been a marked increase in the number of cases brought to our attention during the past year. The problem of illegitimacy is a serious one and it is suggested that a study be made of this particular phase of our work their earnest attention. In the past we have been mainly concerned with these cases from the legal-standpoint. There is a great opportunity for the extension of our services in this particular department.

B. C. G.

As stated in previous reports, we have had a few cases under our direct care. At this time we wish to express to their Society our appreciation for having opened their homes to these children from across the sea.

War Services

The past year has been an extremely busy one in respect to investigations for D.A.B., D.B.T. and other services rendered on behalf of the Department of Pensions and National Health. Problems arising out of these investigations are numerous and indicate that we must give them very serious consideration.

On behalf of the Society, I wish to acknowledge the assistance and co-operation given by the various branches of the Women's Institutes, The Napanee Rotary Club, Napanee Lions Club, the V. O. N. To the medical and legal profession, the clergy and to all who have in any way assisted us in our important work, we tender our humble thanks.

ERINSVILLE BOY ACCIDENTALLY KILLED BY GUNSHOT

Thomas Francis Garratt, 14-year-old son of Mr and Mrs. Arthur Garratt, who reside about two miles north of Erinsville, died on Monday as a result of a gun shot wound in the chest, caused by the discharge of a .22 rifle when the boy tripped and fell over a log.

With his 16-year-old brother, Joseph, Garratt had just left his father's home to look after some fences on the farm. The young boy was carrying a 22 rifle and the elder boy a shot gun. Joseph, who was ahead of his brother a short distance, heard a gun go off and when he turned saw that his brother had fallen and fell over a log, the discharge entered the boy's breast.

The young boy carried his brother as far as he could but when he became exhausted he laid down and died.

Coroner Dr. T. M. Galbraith of Napanee and Constable Hayes, Tweed, investigated the fatality and decided an inquest was not necessary.

CHARTS TO OUTLINE COUPON VALUE OF EACH MEAT CUT

Stores Will Show Bone Content and Weight Classes

Deciding what kind of meat to spend ration coupons on won't be a complicated problem for Canadian housewives. Comprehensive charts are now being prepared by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board which will be on display in every meat store when rationing begins.

The charts will show exactly how much of every type of meat and every kind of cut can be had for ration coupons. There'll be the official guide for both butcher and customer. Rationed meats are beef, veal, pork and mutton. "Fancy" meats, such as kidney, liver and brain, will not be rationed. Fish and poultry will also be rationed, nor will cuts of meat containing more than 50 per cent. bone.

Preparing the charts now are men with long years of experience in the meat trade, who have the benefit of experts in every field to assist them. It is no mean task. The charts must include all the information necessary for buying all the different cuts of meat. Although the weekly ration of meat is to be about two pounds per person, the coupon value of different cuts has still to be announced.

The ration charts to be displayed in all stores selling meat will divide beef, pork, mutton and lamb into their various cuts, and into their weight classes, to compare with the value of the coupons, so that the housewife may tell at a glance just how much.

PRESSURE ON FINLAND

It is hard not to feel a good deal of sympathy with Finland in her present unhappy plight. Finland has been subject to terrific pressure from the Germans, to keep up her conflict with Russia. The Germans need Finland as a base from which to get supplies over to the north front, and the active participation of Finland on the side of the Axis against Russia leaves the Germans free from the necessity of putting troops into one sector of the long two thousand mile line.

On the other hand, Finland has had a warm place in the affections of the British and especially the United States peoples. This little country is not a very productive country. Its natural resources are not abundant. The people though, are well educated, hard working and diligent. They have succeeded in making payments on debts to the United States when practically all other debtors failed. For this and their stirling qualities, they won the admiration of the Democratic peoples.

But they entered the war on the side of the Axis before the United States came into the conflict, and now they are torn between two desires. They are suffering terribly. They see their resources of manpower and goods being ruthlessly destroyed. There is less food there than there is in other European countries. There is a growing conviction that their Allies may not be able to crush Russia. They see the mounting might of their friends on this side of the Atlantic, and we doubt not that, if left to themselves, they would break relations with Germany and get out of the war.

On the other hand, Germany keeps up the pressure and Finland is not so sure but that Germany would turn on her should she make a separate peace. In either direction, the prospect is not a happy one.

The action of the United States in withdrawing all the Members of the Legation save one, to Stockholm, has intensifed the Finnish anxiety. They fear the United States, always their best friend, is preparing to desert them.

What the result of this action on the part of the United States may be, is hard to tell. But it would seem that Finland's future lies in joining with the United Nations, or if that is too much to expect, with making a separate peace with Russia. Russia is only eighty miles away from the Baltic State of Latvia. This is a real threat to Helsinki. With the invasion of Europe, this threat becomes more ominous. The Finnish people are in a difficult position. They will have to make up their minds soon. Should they elect to go on as they have been doing, much that they have built up through the past twenty years will be lost. Their future happiness would seem to lie in the direction of a separate peace.

If a separate peace could be made with Finland, the psychological effect, particularly on Italy, would be profound. The Italians, now suffering terribly, do not need very much to destroy completely their fading morale. The prospect of an invasion is having a very serious effect on the Italian morale. If Finland were, by making a separate peace, to open a chink in the Axis armour, the Italians could be depended on to widen it in short order, by following a similar course of action.

UNDER-SECRETARIES

The Government proposal to appoint ten under-secretaries, at a salary of $4,000 a year each, met with a mixed reception in the House. Mr. John MacNicol (Davenport) and Mr. T. L. Church, Toronto, both Progressive Conservatives, opposed the suggestion on the grounds first, of the expense involved, and second, because of the danger that these appointments would add to Canada's growing bureaucracy. Mr. R. J. Caldwell, Leader of the C. C. F., supported the Prime Minister's proposal, and Mr. Graydon, the House Leader of the Progressive-Conservative Party, in a kindly and sympathetic address, supported the suggestion but asked for a committee which would define the duties of these new appointees.

There are two considerations, at least, which commend the suggestion. The ministers of the Crown have a heavy load to carry. They have many decisions to make, many people to meet and delegations waiting for interviews. While the House sits they are expected to be in their places, ready to answer questions of all sorts which may be asked of them concerning the department for which they are responsible. This burden, heavy enough at any time, is particularly heavy in war time. Prime Minister King has made the suggestion that ten under-secretaries be appointed from among the members of the House. Their duties are not clearly defined, but the general purpose of the appointments is that those selected should be sort of understudies to the ministers, helping them in every way possible and relieving them of much of the work which now falls to their lot.

Another reason why such appointments should prove beneficial is in the way the men selected would be trained for more efficient service. Under the present system or lack of system, men are often pitchforked into cabinet positions without much experience in the duties of the office. The first few years are spent getting on to the job. With a system of understudies in operation, men of gifts chosen for a particular assistantship will be able to serve as a sort of an apprentice to men who have been long in office. If they show ability and gifts of leadership, they may very well be ready for promotion when the time comes.

The Prime Minister made it clear that the money for the financing of the project will have to be voted each year, so that the whole matter will be before the House annually for review. This safeguards the public against a long term policy. It is hoped that the experiment will prove successful.

A POOR EXAMPLE

Some of our Members of Parliament in Ottawa are setting a rather poor example for the rest of us, these days. The country is in the midst of a life and death struggle. We are now in the first week of the Fourth Victory Loan, which is expected to yield $1,100,000,000. Taxes are unprecedentedly high and are accepted by the people with a minimum of grumbling. Indeed, most people are willing to make any sacrifice of money or personal convenience that is asked of them in order to meet the threat to our civilization.

It is hardly becoming, under those circumstances that members of Parliament should spend the time of the House grumbling at the amount of income tax they have to pay. We all have to pay income tax and have to cut our expenses to meet the reduced income, and while the Members of Parliament have quite a heavy burden to carry, yet it is not altogether seemly that they should stage a debate protesting against lack of exemptions on their 4,000 indemnity. Mr. Cruickshank, of Fraser Valley, B.C., was the first to raise the issue. He was followed by A. W. McNeill, (Comox-Alberni). Mr. McNeill put up a very poor mouth. We might almost conclude, after reading what he said, that the work of serving the country as an M.P., was one of great and generous sacrifice. His arguments are those, however, which could be used by anyone else seeking exemption from income tax. There is the expense of living in Ottawa, the cost of travel through the constituency and to and from Ottawa. It is really a very sad story which Mr. McNeill has to tell. Really, the Members at Ottawa must be in a very bad way. Mr. McNeill says that for a time the Members of the local House in British Columbia, were allowed to deduct $2,000 from their salary before making out income tax returns on the rest. The implication was that some such policy should be followed in Ottawa. All we have to say is that the picture of these men, pleading for tax exemption, is not a pretty one, nor does the appeal have a leg to stand on.

We must, however, give both Mr. Cruickshank and Mr. McNeill credit for their frankness. They make no apology for asking exemption, indeed they almost boast of it.

But underlying the whole appeal is a view of public service as special pleading which has been the bane of our public life for years, but which we had hoped would, in the light of the present situation, have been discarded. Mr. McNeill expresses it this way in Hansard's report (page 2442) :

"I remember one gentleman who sat beside me in the local House, many years ago, who sent down and got some office equipment. I asked 'What do you want that for ? You do not need it.' His reply was: 'Well, Neill, I am entitled to that, and, if I cannot be trusted to look after my own interests, how can I be trusted to look after the interests of my constituents.' 'A jest of course,' says Mr. McNeill, 'but with an element of truth'."

That is the spirit which has bedevilled politics in the past and will do so in the future, —look after one's own interests and those of the constituency and you are a good member.

How will we build the brave new world with that philosophy as a foundation ?

ONTARIO I.O.D.E. REPORTS REVEAL WIDE ACTIVITIES

Hamilton, Ont. (C.P.) — Through organized home hospitality, 54 primary chapters of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire in Ontario entertained 175,225 men and women on active service during the last year. It was stated in a report presented by Mrs. W. L. McPhail, of Hamilton, at the annual meeting of the Provincial Chapter of the I. O. D. E.

There now are six service clubs under the I. O. D. E. management where hospitality is given the armed forces, the report says. The two latest are the Kiwanis, I. O. D. E. Active Service Club in Hamilton and the Women's Active Service Club in Toronto. In two months the former accommodated 550 men for one or more nights and the latter has been visited by 9,200 women in uniform in two and half months.

COMFORTS FOR OVERSEAS

Field comforts totalling 103,506 and valued at $73,037 have been sent men in the armed forces in the last twelve months from I. O. D. E. chapters in Ontario, Mrs. C. D. Hickey of Hamilton reported.

Convener of the order's war work in the province, Mrs. Hickey, said that of the total comforts, 37,425 were sent overseas to the army, navy, air force, men on mine sweepers and trawlers, British Red Cross for next-of-kin, parcels to prisoners-of-war, the national fire-fighters' comforts fund and women's auxiliary services.

At request of a United Kingdom Balson officer in Ottawa, large quantities of knitted articles were sent to Royal Air Force personnel in Montrose, Coderich, Picton and Kingston, Ont.

To the Navy League the order, last year, gave 9,663 ditty bags at a cost of $89,296 and an additional 11,213 knitted articles. Included in donations were 3,288 leather and fur-lined jerkins and mittens-cum-mitts sent to the east coast.

Expenditure by the provincial chapter of the I. O. D. E. for assistance of British war guests dropped from $1,500 a year ago to $500 monthly now, Mrs. Lionel Millen reported. The report stated the need for help for the British guests continues, but on much reduced scale, for some have returned overseas, others are receiving allowances from home and still others are working.

From the provincial headquarters two shipments of clothing and bedding a week went to distressed Britons, and from all chapters, 167,053 shipments went, over at a value of $120,476. Included in these were 8,676 blankets, quilts and afghans, 1,299 layettes, containing 45,518 individual pieces, 3,273 personal comfort bags containing 41,432 articles; 1,118 nursery bags totalling 11,653 individual pieces.

At the request of the director of auxiliary services at Ottawa, the Order in Ontario sent relief to 1,500,000 refugees sent into Russia after the occupation of Poland. Last year, 52,609 articles including 2,630 blankets and quilts valued at ..62,387 were sent.

Contributions to the I. O. D. E. national funds from Ontario came to $32,185. Donations to the national welfare fund were $1,650 in addition to $2,215 given to cigarette funds of other organizations, at a cost of $4,669, the troops received 1,254,089 cigarettes.

Mrs. Hickey mentioned the part which Ontario chapters played in presentation of a Hurricane fighter plane to Australia.

Welfare work among service men and their families cost $2,886 and general war work for the armed services occasioned spending of $29,403 for such things as parcels, furnishings and equipment of service centres and gum and candy.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON, MAY 2ND, 1943

CHRIST'S CHARGE TO PETER

Lesson Text: John 21: 15-24

A change had come over Peter—rash, impulsive, warm-hearted Peter. It will be recalled that on the night of the supper Peter affirmed that though everybody in the world should forsake Jesus, yet he (Peter) would never betray Him. And yet it was but a brief few hours after that when, taken off his guard, a servant girl confronted Peter with being a follower of Jesus, and Peter, three times over denied that he knew Him.

Here in to-day's lesson Jesus reminds Peter of his former profession and his former failure, and three times He asks Peter if he will "feed the sheep." We can well imagine Peter's embarrassment. As he had denied his Lord, so now, the Master puts the question to him three times. Jesus wanted, not only to remind Peter of his denial, but to emphasize the quality of the pledge that he was now making, and of the necessity of steadiness and consistency in the Christian endeavour.

There can be no excuse for Peter's denial save the frailty or human nature. Peter was at part, sincere, and devoted to his Master. But he was taken off guard that night in the court yard and made the mistake of his life. And yet the glory of Peter's conduct was that he did not permit the mistake to blight his whole life. He repented of his sin, and set out to rectify his mistake. Peter fell but he rose again. Judas fell but he remained down.

All of us who give the subject a bit of thought must have a deep sympathy with Peter. How many of us are consistent all the time? How many have not compromised a bit here and there? How many of us have failed to find extenuating circumstances in our own fall from grace? Probably nobody who has made a commitment of life to Christ but at times, probably many times, has denied his Master. We must face these facts in '43

THE COST OF WINNING THE WAR is something we can neither escape nor avoid. Victory has to be paid for . . . let us face the price squarely. Canada MUST have Five Billion, Five Hundred Million Dollars for this fourth year of war. Where is this huge sum to come from?

Taxes will yield part of it, but when all taxes are paid we shall still need Two Billion, Seven Hundred and Forty-Eight Millions. And, as a first step towards meeting that need, the minimum cash objective of the Fourth Victory Loan will be One Billion, One Hundred Million Dollars.

True, leading financial and industrial concerns will take up a large portion of this sum. But the amount left to be met by individual purchasers will be very greatly increased. Two things will be necessary:

(1) The amount purchased by each individual will need to be much greater than in the last Victory Loan, and . . .

(2) There must be participation by many more Canadians in every walk of life. In order to reach even our minimum objective, MORE people must buy MORE bonds.

I realize that it will call for a supreme effort on the part of every Canadian to meet this demand, that the Fourth Victory Loan will be the greatest financial challenge we have ever faced. Yet we dare not falter now. Unswervingly and relentlessly, we must work and save together. For the results of this Fourth Victory Loan will be the inescapable measure of our determination, our unity of purpose, to achieve complete and overwhelming victory.

I know the strength, the discipline, and the united purpose of my fellow-Canadians. I am confident that we can, and will, meet this challenge.

LETTERS FROM NICKEY
THE STORY OF LIFE IN THE C.W.A.C.

Dear Babs —

So the pet calls the kettle black! Let us consider this situation for a moment. True, I agree that as a correspondent I have suffered a serious relapse, caused by moving to this mountain resort and all the attendant confusion of unpacking. On the other hand, my unreasonable friend, there have been large gaps in your life lately. A postcard, forsooth! It said "wish you were here" and neglected to say where you were. Really, Babs, you should have your knuckles rapped.

However, I will say 'pax' gladly if you will break down and tell me what you have been doing.

I am thrilled with our present position and pooch myself repeatedly to be sure that I am awake. It is a station out of Alice in Wonderland. Here I am, an eager (and I think, able) member of the Canadian Women's Army Corps, naturally expecting to reside in the Army, or where the girls are housed in picturesque log cabins, redolent of cedar, and equipped with every convenience, adjustable bed controlled by thermostats, hot water hose stops, fireplaces, etc. My bedroom window opens upon a view which makes me catch my breath every morning — a wide expanse of wooded shore, blue skies. This lovely army setting. It sounds fantastic does it not? Yet you know if makes very good sense. All over Canada, coolness, hotels, institutions, progressive people, such as you and myself, which have no part in the scheme of things during wartime are being converted to the needs of the Army. This has its advantages. Since the movement is on a huge scale of building and it suits the white elephants to rush Our military requirements is ideal for the purposes of the army. There is ample accommodation available for Officers' Messes, better suitable for an Officers' Mess, is better for N.C.O.'s, and ample provision others at the community centre. So you can see how well adapted the camp is to function as a self contained unit.

By the way, congratulations are in order again, Princess really is a corker. She has provided every stays with the job. So the army that we're here to recruit Army. Quite my own dignity. I am going to find correct. I am very useful. For some time I have been entertaining a new watch, as the poor old relic I am wearing is slightly more than a little old are so now I can put aside the extra money towards a new one. I feel very happy about the whole thing.

Needless to say the girls are pleased with their new quarters. As the new position detailed all the old gang, Margot, Frankie, Bartie, Smythe, Nora and myself, we are able to be together in the pick of the log cabins. That I confess, took a bit of staff work. While drilling the new O.C. Frankie casually suggested that she and her friends, Margot, Bartie and myself, would be planted. These girls seem to think that all they have to do is sow seeds and reap the harvest. All except Bartie, who waxes so technical that nobody knows what she is talking about. Once we have the separate fanners squelched, I think our plans will take shape and the camp will be whirled down to such dependables as carrots, beets, lettuce, tomatoes and potatoes. Perhaps even celery, as a little dampness. However, I have managed to slip through the sieve so far and still find it so rich and lomay that it should be almost impossible to go wrong, so I have high hope for a bumper crop.

Imagine eating our own home-grown vegetables — tender young carrots and delicious small beets and peas! My mother would call this "counting your chickens before they are hatched," but I intend to revive this "Victory Garden" a success even if I have to bully my chums at the point of a spade into digging.

Well, my dear, I can hear the Orderly Sergeant making her rounds, so it is time for me to turn in. 'Bye now and please bring me up-to-date on your doings as soon as you can find the time. I like bulky letters — not postcards.

Love,
NICKEY.

HOW TO COMBAT Rheumatic Pains
Rheumatic pains are often caused by uric acid in the blood. This blood impurity should be extracted by the kidneys. If kidneys fail, and excess uric acid remains, it irritates the muscles and joints causing excruciating pains. Treat rheumatic pains by keeping your kidneys in good condition. Take regularly Dodd's Kidney Pills—for half a century the favorite kidney remedy.

Canadian Fish Is Available In Spite Of War Difficulties

The fishing industry, even more than many others, has been affected by the war. Deep sea fishermen are exposed to new hazards from submarines; many fishermen and many of the larger fishing boats, have joined the Navy.

In spite of difficulties, a fair amount of fish is available on Canadian markets. Smoked and dried fish can usually be bought even if fresh fish is unobtainable.

For pre-Easter fish days, the Department of Fisheries at Ottawa suggests the following recipes:

Codfish Puff

Shred and freshen in several waters half-cup salt codfish. Cover with cold water, bring to boiling point, drain and flake. Add one cup mashed potatoes, one tablespoon butter, one-eighth teaspoon pepper and a little salt if needed. Beat vigorously. Melt two tablespoons fat in a hot iron frying pan and add fish mixture. Spread evenly and cook very slowly till a brown crust forms underneath. Fold like an omelet and turn on a hot platter. Garnish with parsley. Serves four to six.

Mock Scallops

One cup freshened salt cod; one cup mashed potatoes; one egg; Bread crumbs.

Shred fish very fine, add potatoes and beaten egg, season. Shape in pieces the size of scallops. Dip in bread crumbs and fry in deep fat one minute.

Finnan Haddie and Potato Scallop

Place a layer of cooked, sliced potatoes in a greased casserole; season and dot with butter. Add one-half tablespoon onion juice and pieces of left-over finnan haddie. Cover with cream sauce. Repeat till casserole is full, cover with fine bread crumbs and dot with fat. Bake in a moderately hot oven till heated through and brown.

Baked Kippered Herring

Pour kippered herrings, one and one-half cups tomato juice, half-green pepper chopped (when available) three slices onion, paprika or pepper.

Place kippers, head and tail removed, in a greased baking dish. Saute onion and pepper in a little fat and add to fish. Add tomato juice and sprinkle with pepper or paprika.

Bake in a moderate oven until fish is cooked through.

To remove odor of fish from the hands, rub them with salt and rinse in cold water before washing. Dishes and pots used for cooking fish should be washed in water with a generous quantity of oily material added to remove the odor.

Kingston, April 26. — Lieut.-Col. J. B. BASKETS, HAMPERS BADLY NEEDED

The Used Goods Administration of the Prices Board is appealing to housewives to contribute baskets and hampers from their cellars or store-rooms so that sufficient of these may be available for next season's fruit and vegetable crops.

Due to shortages of man-power and materials, the Administration predicts a severe reduction in the number of new baskets and hampers that will be in readiness for the fruit and vegetable season and, it fears, that some crops may go for lack of these containers. These particularly needed are six-quart baskets and bushel hampers.

The Administration suggests that to facilitate collection of these containers for essential uses during the coming season, arrangements be made to return them to fruit stores, to have children take them to schools, to turn them over to peddlars or salvage collectors or to get in touch with author-ized basket dealers who will pass them on directly to farmers.

—V—

Second Hand Fruit Baskets Under Order

Fruit and vegetable growers have been anxious to buy up all the usable second hand baskets and hampers they can get for reasons of economy.

Previously, growers who wanted to buy second hand fruit and vegetable baskets and hampers were restricted to buying them from authorized dealers handling such second hand goods. Under a new Wartime Prices and Trade Board Order, they will be able to buy direct from anyone who has them. This order also fixes the prices which they are to pay.

Two sets of prices have been fixed. One establishes the prices which authorized dealers are permitted to charge. The other, somewhat lower, fixes prices that other persons will be allowed to charge. As the authorized dealers have a certain investment in an established business, it was pointed out that they should be entitled to a slightly higher return than ordinary persons selling second hand baskets in a casual way.

Canada is believed to be the best of the British dominions for cultivation of the Russian dandelion, a source of rubber. But tests are being carried on all over Great Britain, Australia, India, New Zealand and the United States to discover where the plant may be grown successfully.

Party politics are out for the duration in Great Britain. Party leaders sit in the Cabinet and on all important Government Committees. In the factories, joint labor-management committees work out production problems.

DR. WM. H. METZLER Brother J. W. Metzler DIED IN THE U. S.

Dr. William Henry Metzler, former dean of the Graduate School and College of Liberal Arts, Syracuse University, died Sunday, April 18th, at the home of his daughter, Miss Alfreda Metzler, in Lockport, N.Y.

Author of "A Treatise of the Theory of Determinants," which was published in 1929, Dr. Metzler was formerly editor of the Mathematical Tracker and of the Journal of Physiology.

Born in Odessa, Ont., on September 18, 1863, he was the son of George F. and Nancy Shannon Metzler. Dr. Metzler was an instructor in mathematics at Massachusetts Institute of Technology from 1892 to 1894. He then came to Syracuse and served as head of the mathematics department until 1911, when he became dean of the graduate school.

After serving as dean of the Graduate School for ten years, he was named dean of the College of Liberal Arts in 1921. He left Syracuse in 1923 to become dean of the New York State College for Teachers in Albany. He retired in 1933.

Dr. Metzler was a member of the Mathematical Association of Great Britain, a fellow of the Royal Society of Edinburgh, a fellow of the Royal Society of Canada, and a member of the American Mathematics Association, of the British Association of Advanced Science, of the Societe Mathematique de France, of the London Mathematical Society and of Phi Beta Kappa and Sigma Xi fraternities.

Surviving besides his daughter are his wife, Mrs. Augusta Philip Metzler; another daughter, Mrs. C. H. Fairbanks of Syracuse; a son, Dr. Gerald P. Metzler of Syracuse, and five grandchildren, and one brother, J. W. Metzler, Napanee.

TRINITY W. M. S.

The Easter meeting of Trinity Church Women's Missionary Society was held in the schoolroom, April 20th. The president, Mrs. Switzer, occupied the chair. The meeting opened by singing a hymn and reciting in unison the Apostles' Creed and the Lord's Prayer. Mrs. Switzer extended a cordial welcome to all present and expressed her pleasure at seeing so many present from Grace Church Auxiliary. Mrs. Exley paid a most fitting tribute to Mrs. James Douglas, a deceased member of the auxiliary.

The programme was in charge of Mrs. Exley. After singing a hymn a prayer was offered for the missionaries in Angola.

The subject for the month was "A Mom from Africa Carries the Cross to Asia." The Easter message was given by Rev. G. M. Chidley. His subject was "The Triumph of the Cross." The offering was dedicated by Mrs. Corkill. A very interesting report of the Belleville Presbyterial held in Bridge Street Church, Belleville, April 14th, was given by Miss S. Shorey.

The meeting was closed by Mrs. Chidley pronouncing the benediction.

ST. ANDREW'S W.M.S., CAMDEN E.

The Easter thankofferring of the W. M. S. of St. Andrew's Church was held at the home of Mrs. Geo. Smedley with a good attendance. The president gave the call to worship and read the scripture. Owing to the absence of the secretary, Mrs. Smedley read the minutes. Leaflets pertaining to Easter were read by members and adherents. The offering was taken by Miss Laurie Brown and dedicated by the treasurer, Mrs. Robert Lewis. A very pleasing solo was rendered by Mrs. J. Lewis, accompanied by Mrs. James Mackey, who was pianist for the evening. A very comprehensive address was given by the minister, Rev. Dr. H. G. Brown.

Britain is mobilizing its fields as well as its factories. The home production of food has risen from 40 per cent. to over 60 per cent. self-sufficiency since the outbreak of war. 6,000,000 more acres are under the plough than before the war. Britain is now the most highly mechanized farming country in Europe.

Description Of Victory Loan Bonds

11 Q.:— How much does it cost to run a Victory Loan Campaign?

Answer: Costs of all kinds, on each of the past three Victory Loan campaigns, have amounted to only 1c for each $1 of Bonds sold.

These costs include expenditures for the preparation and delivery of the Bonds, office stationery and supplies, salaries, travelling expenses, advertising and publicity, organization expense, including payments to investment dealers and brokers who give up their regular business and devote full or part-time service to the National War Finance Committee, remuneration for the services of banks and trust companies, and commissions to salesmen.

12 Q.:— Why are commissions paid to salesmen for selling Victory Loan Bonds?

Answer: Salesmen who receive commissions generally give up their regular jobs during the period of the Victory Loan campaign. The money they receive as commission replaces the money they would make otherwise at their regular work—although, in many cases, the amount received as commission is less than the man's regular income.

Commissions to salesmen amount to only a small part of the costs of Victory Loan campaigns. These salesmen do much of the hard work of selling Victory Loan Bonds, in small amounts, to individual investors, by house-to-house canvass in urban and rural areas. Commissions are not paid on orders received from large investors, such as business firms or corporations, nor on Bonds sold to employees in larger organizations.

13 Q.:— Why is so much money spent on advertising and publicity?

Answer: Expenditures on advertising and publicity amount to only about 1c for each $10 of Bonds sold.

In these war days, most of us are so busy or so intent on our own jobs that we do not pay much attention to the wartime financial problems facing our country. Large-scale advertising is necessary during Victory Loan drives, in order to bring these important financial problems before fully before the public eye. If there were nothing else competing for our attention, this could be done easily. But, with the crowding pressure of world-wide war developments, it takes a lot of persistent publicity to get people to realize that a Victory Loan campaign is on, and that everybody must get behind it to make it a success.

Some people are reached best through newspapers, others through radio, others through speeches, and so on. There is no simple way of getting everybody's attention. Every means of publicity must be used — and used aggressively — to make sure the Victory Loan message reaches and impresses every citizen.

Our experience in the First World War as well as in this war has proved the need for large-scale advertising programmes during Victory Loan campaigns.

14 Q.:— How many different ways can Victory Loan Bonds be bought during the period of the campaign?

Answer: There are four main ways to buy Victory Loan Bonds.

First, you can give your order to the Victory Loan salesman who calls at your home or place of business. Second, you can send your order by mail to your local Victory Loan headquarters. Third, you can place your order with any neighborhood bank or with any trust or loan company. And fourth, you can authorize your employer to start a Payroll Savings Plan for you.

You can pay for Victory Loan Bonds in any one of four different ways.

First, you can pay for the Bonds in full by enclosing a money order or bank cheque with your application form. Second, you can pay for your Bonds in full either with cash or by bank cheque when you take delivery of your Bonds at the bank, trust or loan company which you select. These two methods enable you to buy Bonds with the money you have right now.

There are two other ways you can buy additional Bonds with the money you can save over the months that lie ahead.

First, you can make arrangements with your bank to buy the Bonds on an instalment plan. Should the schedule of payments under this plan not be convenient for you, the bank will be willing to put up the money to buy the Bonds you desire, and make arrangements with you to repay the loan within a reasonable period of time.

Next, you can buy Bonds under the Payroll Savings Plan through your employer. The Bonds you buy this way will be paid for by deductions from your pay over future months. This is a very easy and convenient way to buy Bonds.

No matter how you pay for your Bonds, they are available for delivery to you as soon as you have paid their full purchase price.

15 Q.:— Why is the public asked to buy Victory Loan Bonds and War Savings Certificates?

Answer: Your savings are needed to help win the war. Victory Loan Bonds and War Savings Certificates have the same security, and the savings you use to buy either of them help Canada's war effort in exactly the same way.

The important thing is to lend your savings to Canada. It makes no difference to your country whether you choose to use these savings to buy Victory Loan Bonds or War Savings Certificates.

War Savings Certificates are available in convenient denominations and may be purchased at any time without difficulty or delay. Many people like to lend their savings to Canada as fast as they accumulate them and they find the easiest way to do this is to buy War Savings Certificates as their savings accumulate. Other people prefer Victory Loan Bonds. It is entirely up to each individual to choose the investment he likes—or to buy both securities.

Here is one point some people overlook: it does not do Canada any good if you redeem your War Savings Certificates to buy Victory Loan Bonds or sell your Victory Loan Bonds to buy War Savings Certificates. After you have bought your Bonds or Certificates, hold on to them. Turning in one to buy the other merely involves our country in extra expenses.

BROWN COUPONS TO BE ASKED FOR MEAT RATION

The brown spare "A" coupons in the ration books, of which there are four pages, are to be used for the rationing of meat which is to become effective some time during May.

As the green coupons are now used for the purchase of tea or coffee, the red coupons for the purchase of sugar, the purple coupons for the purchase of butter, with No. 1 blue spare "B" coupon, being valid until 0day 31st for the purchase of one pound of sugar for the home cooking of Canada-grown rhubarb, this means that only the grey spare "C" series of coupons will lack value when meat rationing is introduced.

The complete details of meat rationing will be announced before the programme goes into effect. In the meantime consumers are advised to complete their pages of brown spare "A" coupons by signing them and also writing thereon the prefix and serial number of their ration' books and their addresses, as without this information the coupons will be without value for the purchase of meat rations.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

This column is sponsored by the Regional Office, Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Questions on price control, ration regulations and other Wartime Prices and Trade Board rulings should be mailed to: Information Branch, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, Victoria Building, Brockville, Ont.

Q— In our household tea is largely consumed, while our next-door neighbours favor coffee. Can we legally exchange our supplies of these rationed goods?

A— The rationing regulations specifically forbid any exchange of rationed commodities. Is it worth the risk of prosecution to do so?

Q— Can you tell me, as a landlord, how much notice I am required to give a tenant who does not pay his rent?

A— The rentals regulations do not protect any tenant in default of his rent. If the landlord wishes to do so, he may take steps under the laws of the province to have the tenant evicted.

Q — I have heard quite a lot about re-make demonstrations sponsored by your Board. What is their purpose and why are they considered necessary?

A— These demonstrations are designed to familiarize housewives with methods under which used and perhaps discarded garments and other materials may be made over into useful and fashionable articles of clothing. This forms part of the Board's conservation programme which has as its object the removal of strain upon wartime supply by making articles already in the possession of consumers do as far as possible for the duration of the war.

Q— I have to enter hospital to undergo an operation. Must I take my ration book with me?

A— Yes, the regulations require that patients in hospital for a week or longer must surrender their ration books to the management. At the end of a week, one valid butter coupon will be detached and after 14 days, coupons for sugar and tea or coffee will also be detached.

Q— My husband has just passed away. What will I do with his ration book ?

A— Please surrender it to your Local Ration Board without delay.

Q — I have just rented an apartment and think that my landlord should have given me some form or other showing the rent. Is that not correct ?

A— Yes, your landlord must give you a completed form R.C.-40 within ten days of the lease (written or oral) being contracted. If he fails to do so, notify the nearest office of this Board immediately.

THE ROYAL BANK OF CANADA
speaks to its Depositors

FOR Canada's fighting sons the ordeal of offensive battle nears "This year", the Prime Minister has said, "all of our forces will be engaged."

When the hour strikes, ample armour, modern machines, munitions, equipment and food must be theirs in plenty—with assurance of unending supply—to help preserve their own lives as well as to overwhelm the enemy.

Money is needed for these purposes; much money; more money than Canada has ever asked before; money without stint. In the FOURTH VICTORY LOAN campaign, Canada is asking her citizens for at least $1,100,000,000.

The Royal Bank of Canada, as a patriotic duty and opportunity, suggests to all its depositors that they buy the New VICTORY BONDS, withdrawing from their bank accounts to do so, straining for the very largest investment that their circumstances will permit.

VICTORY BONDS are this Country's finest security

VT INCEPIT FIDELIS SIC PERMANET

Come on Ontario!

ONTARIO has done well in her contribution of manpower and resources to the prosecution of the war. Ontario must do still more in providing the sinews of war, by supporting the Fourth Victory Loan to the limit of the ability of every citizen. Our men in the fighting services will give all they have. Our people on the Home Front can do no less.

The Fourth Victory Loan is your opportunity to join with the Navy, the Army and Air Force in an all-out offensive. You cannot be there in person, but your dollars can be there for you, and will provide the materials and munitions so vital to the success of the armed forces.

The Government of Ontario is backing the Loan by the investment of $5,000,000 in the new Victory Bonds. This is Ontario's official contribution towards strengthening the Hands of the Dominion Government in its tremendous task of financing the total war effort that is needed. It is the tangible pledge of the Ontario Government that it will co-operate to the fullest possible extent with the Dominion Government in the drive for final victory.

The action of the Government of Ontario is designed to give practical leadership to all the citizens of the Province, and should be an example and an inspiration to our people to accept this Fourth Victory Loan as a personal challenge to do their part to "Back the Attack" and hasten the day of Victory.

As the old Parish Rector said at the close of the remarkable film, "Mrs. Miniver", "This is the people's war! It is our war. We are the fighters. Fight it, then. Fight it with all that is in us."

We, the people of Ontario, must fight it with our dollars. Your purchases of Victory Bonds will help to send Ontario over the top again in support of our fighting men. They will do their part when the time of attack comes. We must do ours to-day.

Premier, Province of Ontario.

Men who lie in a crumpled heap on desert sands know what that limit can be.
Young knights of the air who give their all can explain. And the dark depths of the ocean hold a thousand answers.

"Yes, there are limits to what a man can do."

Of necessity, our limit is determined by our willingness to forego the things we have come to consider as essentials . . . to use every dollar we can possibly scrape together to the buying of Victory Bonds . . . and then to pledge our future earnings to buy yet another bond.

NEW FROCKS FROM OLD

Hello Homemakers! As inspiration and guidance to new ways of conserving the Wartime Prices and Trade Board have now installed the well-known Mrs. Kate Aitken as National Supervisor of Conservation for the Consumer Branch. The war on waste and needless spending will have a new meaning to homemakers.

At a recent display of new frocks from old ones, we gleaned many practical ideas. Instead of stuffing that old evening dress or flannel dressing gown into the rag bag, it may be made into something useful for yourself or a growing child.

To help yourself — and the war effort — you, too, may consider remaking by one of the following methods:

1 Kiddies' mitts from a pair of dad's toe-holey socks.
2 Mary's felt hat from mother's by trimming it down and twisting it around.
3 Warm, durable overall and jacket from a discarded bathrobe.
4 Consider cutting up the worn-at-the sleeves sweater and inserting the short sleeves and back into a dress that may have faded in the back.
5 When your trim shirtmaker dress has been stained or frayed at the armholes, make a smart jumper out of it. A blouse may be fashioned from a man's shirt, ripped apart and re-made to eliminate the frayed collar, etc.
6 We saw a very glamorous long-sleeved blouse which had been cut out of a striped evening dress. With or without stripes, you can just imagine the "swishness" or crispness of those materials which have not had hard usage.
7 If a dress is too long or the collar is out of fashion, shorten the dress, make corded bows, a new belt, and a hat band; take the collar off entirely and face it or bind it.
8 A black or dark coloured dress may be livened up by panelling the front with a piece of flowered material.
9 If you have an old ensemble suit still wearable, the material should be washed or dry-cleaned. Remake as a two-piece suit to go marketing in.
10 An old skirt, plain or gored, can be cut excellently into a small boy's shirt; shorts may be cut from the worn-at-the-elbows jacket.

(Mrs. Aitken is planning to open "Re-make Centres" in many places. Anne Allan will be pleased to advise you of the centre nearest to you.)

TAKE A TIP:

Care of Your Sewing-Machine

1 If the sewing machine gets dirty or sticky as a result of using poor oil, or from long idleness, oil thoroughly with kerosene (coal oil) at all points indicated. Then run machine for a short time, wipe dry and oil carefully with sewing machine oil.
2 Turn the disc wheel so that the needle is down before you begin to oil; put only two drops in at a time.
3 When winding the bobbin, loosen the disc wheel by turning it counter-clockwise.
4 Although your machine is threaded, do not attempt to sew until you have revolved the disc wheel around so that the needle goes down and comes back up and you can pull the end of the thread to bring up the bobbin thread, too.
5 Never operate the machine when it is threaded without having some scrap of material under the presser foot.
6 Prevent the breakage of precious steel needles by moving the hand wheel so that the needle is at its highest point whenever you stop the machine.

THE QUESTION BOX

Mrs. E. M. asks: Recipe for Canteen Waffles.

Answer:

Two cups flour, one-quarter teaspoon salt, two teaspoons baking powder, three eggs, two cups sour milk, six tablespoons fat, one teaspoon soda.

Separate the eggs and beat yolks until light. Then add one cup of sour milk. Sift together the dry ingredients, add to the yolk mixture and mix. Add the other cup of sour milk and beat again, then add fat, melted, and last fold in the beaten egg whites. Bake in a hot electric waffle iron. You may use sweet milk to which one tablespoon vinegar is added.

Mrs. C. D. asks: "What arrangements are being made to obtain sugar for canning?"

MR. H. A. CARSCALLEN HONORED BY FRIENDS IN ENTERPRISE CHURCH

On Tuesday evening, April 20th, the congregation of Enterprise United Church held an "At Home" in honor of the birthday of H. A. Carscallen, the choir leader of the church for twenty-five years. Over one hundred were present to extend felicitations to Mr. Carscallen.

After a short introductory service led by the pastor, Rev. H. E. Prair, Mr. Carscallen was called to the platform where the following address was read by Mrs. Grover Wagar:

Dear Mr. Carscallen:

We the members of Enterprise United Church have met here to-night in honor of your birthday. At the same time we take this opportunity to express in words, the debt of gratitude that we, as a group of Christian workers owe you for your devoted and faithful services in the support and uplift of the church, from your youth till the present time.

As a choirmaster, in which capacity you have served for 25 years or more, we feel you have been second to none, not only in ability, but in your patient and untiring efforts in training the different members of the choir. The part you took in the choir in both instrumental and vocal leadership was an inspiration not only to the members of the choir but to the congregation as well. Nor have we forgotten the number of excellent programmes you prepared and presented in aid of the church.

You have served as a faithful member of the trustee board and in any other way you could be of assistance, and always liberally responded to any demands the church might make.

As a neighbour you have been ever ready to accommodate and to consider the needs of others.

We now ask you, Allan, to accept this chair as a remembrance of our goodwill and gratitude for your faithful work. We all join in wishing you many more years of health and happiness with your family, and may God's blessing rest upon you the remaining days of life's journey.

(Signed) on behalf of the Congregation, Choir, Trustee Board and the Board of Session.

Mr. D. B. Wagar and Mr. H. M. Jackson presented the chair to Mr. Carscallen, who expressed his gratitude and appreciation for the honor and gift from his fellow workers in the church.

Following Mr. Carscallen's remarks Mrs. R. C. Covert took charge of the recreation part of the programme, till lunch was served.

MORE YOUNG MEN FROM ONTARIO HIGH SCHOOLS ARE NEEDED ON FARMS This Summer

FROM all over Ontario, young men in Ontario High Schools and Collegiates are applying to the Farm Cadet Brigade of the Ontario Farm Service Force — volunteering their summers to help produce essential foods for victory.

And it's a grand way to put on muscle and build up your weight. After a summer on the farm, you'll come back to school in the fall — hard as nails, brown as an Indian and rarin' to go.

You do all the regular work on the farm, and that's an education in itself, but what's more important is that you make one of the greatest contributions to the allied war effort that anyone can make by helping produce food for victory. For certainly, we can't fight if we don't eat.

If you are 15 years of age or older, register now with your High School or Collegiate Principal for work with the Farm Cadet Brigade of the Farm Service Force this summer. DO IT NOW!

GOOD ATTENDANCE SUNDAY SERVICE FOR VICTORY LOAN

The Napanee Armouries was well filled on Sunday afternoon for the Parish Victory Loan dedication service, which was preceded by a parade of the 47th Field Battery and a detachment of three flights from the Instrument Flying School, Mohawk, headed by the P. W. O. R. Bugle Band, of Kingston.

After parading up Bridge Street and down Dundas Street and a march past at the Market Square where Wing Commander McDonald took the salute, the soldiers and airmen marched to the Armouries for the service.

Dr. D. R. Hall presided for the service which included the singing of hymns, led by the choir of Trinity United Church, in charge of Mrs. J. E. Madden, anthems by the choir and a vocal solo by Master Don Smith.

Flying Officer Stubbs of No. 1 Instrument Flying School, Deseronto, gave a short address in which he urged the people of Lennox and Addington to invest every possible cent in Victory Bonds. He spoke of the immense cost of training and equipping the personnel of the armed forces and the expensive mechanical equipment needed for the successful prosecution of the war. Flying Officer Stubbs said that supplies must be kept flowing to the men on active service and it is the duty of civilians to forget any pressures they may have against individuals who are selling the bonds or against the Government.

The ultimate aim of every Canadian should be peace. Flying Officer Stubbs stated, and said that every one should feel happy to have a small part in attaining victory by buying bonds.

Major C. E. Jamieson expressed the thanks of the Armouries officials and the audience to Flying Officer Stubbs.

Seated on the platform besides the choir chairman and the speaker, were two other Flying Officers, Major Jamieson, and Warden of the County E. J. Courneya.

NAPANEE ODDFELLOWS OBSERVE ANNIVERSARY BY CHURCH SERVICE

Large Attendance Last Sunday Morning at Trinity Church

Commemorating the 124th anniversary of the founding of Oddfellowship in America, the members of the Oddfellows lodges in Napanee, including Napanee Lodge No. 86, Argyll Lodge No. 212, Mt. Ararat Encampment No. 6 and Queen of Sheba Lodge No. 234, attended the morning worship service in Trinity Church, Rev. R. M. Chidley, the minister of the church, conducted the service and delivered an excellent address on the subject "Love in Action" based on the parable of the Good Samaritan. The church was well filled with a large number of the members of the lodges and many of the regular members of Grace and Trinity United Churches.

C. M. Sharpe is Noble Grand of Napanee Lodge No. 86, Percy Rose is Noble Grand of Argyll Lodge No. 212, Wilbert McAllister is Chief Patriarch of Mt. Ararat, Encampment and Mrs. Clarence Reid is Noble Grand of the Queen of Sheba Rebekah Lodge.

During the service the congregation sang the following hymns: "Holy, Holy, Holy"; "O Lord and Master of us all" and "Onward Christian Soldiers." The choir, under the leadership of Mrs. J. E. Madden sang an anthem and Mrs. Harold Denison sang "Come Ye Blessed," as a solo.

MR. CHIDLEY'S ADDRESS

Using the parable of the Good Samaritan as the basis of his address, Mr. Chidley said that many of us live our lives to-day as if we had never heard the parable. The meaning and significance of the parable seems not to have penetrated our minds. It has not changed our lives, our attitudes or our behaviour.

From the actions of the Priest and the Levite in the parable, it would seem that men connected with religious ritual are not interested in helping others. This is not a right conclusion to draw, Mr. Chidley said, and added that Jesus wanted to sound a warning lest religion should become a mere system of respectability and smug ritualism.

It is necessary for us all, he said, to renew acquaintance and understanding of this great story. We should hear the Master say, "your neighbour is anyone in the world, anywhere, who needs your help."

The Good Samaritan gave his help without asking any questions of the man in distress. It was enough that he was a human being in distress on the highway. In the face of great human need, no explanations need to be asked. All that is needed is action.

Before we condemn the Priest and the Levite for their indifference, we should look about us in the present day. We have only to look at the way in which the Jews are being treated to-day to find a people who need more than our sympathy. The Jews, being slaughtered by the thousands by the Nazis, need our active help and not the kind meted to befriended and removed from the tyranny under which they are suffering.

Love does not need to have great resources in order to be helpful. Like the Samaritan, it is possible for us to make a triumphant use of what we have. The most needed thing is love of our fellow men and the courage to put that love into action.

The better world for which we are praying, planning and dreaming, needs many things. It requires a vast amount of organization, reorganization, a vast amount of adjustment and readjustment and economic, political and international planning. These are necessary to bring it about. But unless with these there goes the spirit of the Good Samaritan, then the better world will not come.

County's Oldest Man Henry R. Purcell Died Last Sunday

Mr. Henry R. Purcell, the oldest man in the County of Lennox and Addington, died on Sunday, May 2nd at the home of his son, E. F. Purcell, Colebrook, in his 104th year.

Until the past year or so, Mr. Purcell had enjoyed excellent health and was amazingly active both physically and mentally. When he was over 90 years of age he fell and broke his hip, but made a remarkable recovery.

Mr. Purcell was born in Camden East, on October 10, 1839 and his father, an Irish-Scotchman from Bristol, England, was the first doctor in Camden East, where he settled in 1820. Dr. Purcell, who was a cousin of Lord John Russell, was educated at Oxford, and was a classmate of the late Dr. Barkeh, first editor of The British Whig, Kingston. Dr. Purcell's grandfather was a general in the British Army and his grandmother was the sister of Lord Dartley.

Mr. Purcell lived most of his life in the County of Lennox and Addington, where he farmed for many years. He was a Justice of the Peace for many years, and was at one time, Inspector of Game and Fisheries in Frontenac County. He was a member of the Orange Order since 1857 and until recent years never missed a 12th of July celebration. For over sixty years he was also a member of the Masonic Order.

Mr. Purcell is survived by one son, E. F. Purcell, with whom he has made his home for some years. He was predeceased by his wife and one son, Reuben.

His funeral was held on Tuesday afternoon, at Colebrook United Church of which he had been a member for many years.

CANNING COUPONS WILL BE MAILED

Coupons good for the purchase of extra sugar for home canning purposes are being mailed to consumers during the month of May. They are, however, without value for the purchase of such sugar before June 1st, when the first two of them will be good at retail establishments.

The experience of the British has been of value to-the U. S. A. not only in the designing and use of war weapons, but also in tackling defence, blackout, rationing, evacuation and other war-time problems.

Will We Back Their Attack

3000 BACKERS NEEDED IN L. & A. COUNTY

It will require at least 3,000 "Backers of the Attackers" from Lennox and Addington in order to reach the Fourth Victory Loan objective of $1,200,000.

At the end of the first week of the Campaign, subscriptions from 1,000 people in the County totalled $300,000, or 25 per cent. of this objective, with one-third of the time gone.

$800,000 has to be raised by May 15th. It will require the maximum effort of every individual in Lennox and Addington to put this Loan "over the top." It costs approximately $4,000 to feed, equip and maintain a man on active service for one year. There are 675 men from this County in the Armed Forces; to keep these men in fighting trim for twelve months would take the sum of $2,700,000. The money raised to date in the current campaign will maintain 169 men for six months. This leaves over 500 men still without support from this County.

Richmond Township Leading County In War Loan Campaign

Richmond Township is well in the lead for the County with 94.8% of its objective obtained as of Monday night. Subscriptions totalled $65,800 against an objective of $120,000.

South Fredericksburgh and South Adolphustown is in second place with 46.2%, having turned in $30,150 out of an objective of $65,000.

Napanee, with an objective of $475,600, has subscribed $112,650, or 23.6%.

VICTORY LOAN PAYROLL GROUP WELL UNDER WAY

The Groups Payroll Section is moving up in the campaign and the results, as the present, are encouraging. Some of the firms participating are making a concerted effort to win the coveted Honor Certificate. The most surprising feature is to be found in the lower wage brackets, where it is a real sacrifice to purchase a Bond. There, it is, we find the most responsive answer to the canvasser's call.

The Ross-Miller Biscuit Co. are leading the parade with 92% participating, with 87% of their objective. Francis' Bakery and the Napanee Iron Works are running "neck and neck" for second place. The Hydro and Board of Education will be up this week after their canvass gets under way. The Hydro is held up because of an unfortunate break in the Mphawk service.

Two Butter Coupons Come Valid Together

ONTARIO LIBERALS CHOOSE H. C. NIXON PROVINCIAL LEADER

Convention Held in Toronto Last Week-End

Ontario Liberals in convention in Toronto last Friday and Saturday, chose H. C. Nixon as the Party Leader in the Provincial Legislature. The delegates-at-large County Liberal Associations, and the first ballot lead to the Liberal provincial convention showed its vitality and democracy. The balloting gave the former provincial secretary a clear majority on the first ballot, and on the second ballot, the opponents fell in as pledged.

Mr. Nixon's opponents in the voting were Arthur Roebuck, former Cabinet Minister in the Federal field, and now member of Federal House for Toronto Eglinton; T. H. McQuesten, Minister of Highways, and Walter Thompson, Toronto make-up man for the Star, both political outsiders.

Premier Conant, who was to have been nominated by-acclaim as active campaigner, became ill and was taken to hospital suffering from a nervous breakdown. Reports had been circulated that Mr. Conant was reported satisfactory and quite comfortable.

The convention passed a resolution of regret at the Premier's illness and expressed deep sympathy. covers. It likewise went on record with the hope that Mr. Nixon, now party leader could make an early entry into the premiership.

The new Liberal leader was born on the farm and a practical farmer. He studied scientific agriculture at the Ontario Agricultural College and entered politics in the interest of the farmers' political movement that followed the Great War. The movement spread from a convention on the part of the farmers that the Conservative and Liberal parties were no alive to their problems. Mr. Nixon served in the Government that rolled itself into United Farmers, and, later, Progressive.

CONSISTENTLY RE-ELECTED

He sat as a member of the opposition but was consistently re-elected to the provincial house, eventually becoming Progressive leader. He became the most forceful critic of the incumbent Conservative Government.

In 1933, when another western Ontario farmer, Mitchell Hepburn, became Ontario Liberal leader. Mr. Nixon led the Progressive group into the Liberal ranks and became Mr. Hepburn's first lieutenant.

POST-WAR ALIGNMENT

The London Times, which usually reflects Government opinion in Great Britain, has recently published two leading editorials supporting the view that, for the sake of the future stability of the world, there must be close co-operation between Russia and Great Britain. The swing of public opinion, in Great Britain, has been very definitely in this direction. But it is quite a surprise to find "The Thunderer" backing such an arrangement, and coming out flat-footed for unity of action in the post-war world between Great Britain and the U.S.S.R.

This, however, ought not to be such a shock now that Russia has shown the stuff of which she is made. Certainly if any nation has earned the right to the good wishes and enthusiastic support of the Democracies, that nation is Russia. Russia has borne a heavy share of the war burden. She has lost terribly. The price paid in land, materials, and men, is almost incredible. And yet the U.S.S.R. has held back the mightiest army the world has ever produced, and not only so, but has shown that her own military machine is of the first order, and her military leaders the equal of any.

Ever since the revolution in Russia and the establishment of the Socialist State, there has been a great fear in the rest of the world, lest the ideas and the form of government which was the result of the revolution, would make its way into other countries. The capitalist countries laboring under this great fear never quite trusted Russia, and certainly Russia never trusted the Democratic nations. Indeed, right up until last Fall, when the Twenty-fifth Anniversary of the Revolution was being celebrated, Stalin was critical of the Democracies. But in his May Day speech, that suspicion was no longer observable. Indeed, he went out of his way to praise the campaign in Tunisia, commented enthusiastically on the way the British and The United States Air Forces were inflicting punishment on Germany, and expressed appreciation of the help which they had sent Russia, direct.

Now that Great Britain has modified her attitude, as reflected in the editorials of The Times, and Russia is disposed to take a more generous view of the sincerity of the Democracies, the way seems open for a united approach to the terrific problems of reconstruction which will face the world when the war ends.

The attitude of The United States towards Russia is still questionable. There, too, there has been a noticeable swing of popular opinion in favor of the U.S.S.R. and yet there are powerful interests at work in The United States which still are afraid of Russia—afraid of the effect the success of the Russian experiment will have on the economic and social life of the Democracies.

But why should there be any such fear? We can co-operate with people who think and act differently than we do, and certainly, differences in economic organization should be no barrier to united action. And then, too, there will be a certain action and reaction between the two systems. Through the fears, it is conceivable that each will learn something from the other. So long as the welfare of the common people is the aim of both, and so long as they keep that goal in view, they may each reach it, though they travel different roads in doing so.

THE NEW LIBERAL LEADER

The Ontario Liberal Convention has elected a new leader in the person of Mr. Harry Nixon. Gradually, the situation caused by Mr. Hepburn's precipitate action, is being cleared up. The Liberal Party, by the Democratic process, is getting its house in order again. Premier Conant was looked on by many as the natural choice of the Party, and certainly since he has assumed the office of Premier of Ontario, he has worked day and night. He has done a creditable job. A noticeable improvement in the conduct of the House was observable under his leadership. But his case was prejudiced because of the manner in which he was made Prime Minister. It may be debatable whether or not Mr. Hepburn was within his constitutional rights in handing over the reins to Mr. Conant. But it was a procedure which antagonized a great many people. No wonder then that Mr. Conant cracked under the strain and had to go to the hospital. There is a limit to the endurance of even the strongest. His withdrawal from the race for top position in the Provincial ranks, made Mr. Nixon's election almost inevitable.

Mr. Nixon has had a long and varied experience in Parliament. He has been a Cabinet Minister for many years, and holds the respect and confidence of all parties. He is a farmer, and a graduate in scientific agriculture. He is a genial, easy to meet public man. These qualities fit him for the tasks which he will have to assume.

One gratifying feature of the change in the political situation in Ontario, is the improved relations that will come between Ottawa and Ontario. Mr. Hepburn was a man whose course of action was never capable of being determined. Nobody could guess what he might do next. He was, as a political leader, consistent in one thing and that was in his bitter dislike of Premier Mackenzie King and the Ottawa Government. Day and night, week in and week out, he carried on his vendetta against Ottawa. In a time of national strain and stress through which we are passing, when unity of action is a prime necessity, this lack of co-operation was a great handicap. Mr. Nixon has the confidence of Ottawa. On more than one occasion, he has demonstrated his dislike of the lack of unity between Ottawa and Ontario. It is worth noting that Premier King lost no time in sending to Mr. Nixon, a telegram of congratulation.

THE COAL MINERS

It would be difficult for anyone listening to President Roosevelt, Sunday night, not to be moved by the sincerity of his appeal, his depth of feeling, his assurance of his sympathy with the common man, and his frankness in the face of a very difficult situation.

The Soft Coal Miners in The United States have had a very bad and very trying experience. They have been through terrible years of depression. They have been underpaid. They work in dangerous and hazardous conditions. The families of these men have suffered probably more than most people because of the lack of markets for their commodity, and the general management of the mines. It is not to be wondered at that there should be discontent and an effort to meet the rising tide of living costs.

But while all this is true, yet there are three things which condemn the miners in their determination to strike. In the first place they had promised that there would be no strikes while the war was on. In the second place they refused to negotiate their differences on the ground that the Labor Board was prejudiced. And then there is the third reason that the present crisis makes it imperative that production be kept at its highest pitch.

Quite probably it was this which weighed most heavily with the miners, as it ought. Here we are in the midst of the greatest struggle that the world has ever known. Every ounce of energy, every cent of money, must be consecrated to the cause of defeating the enemy. The war is not won, by any means. There will be dark days ahead, days that will tax the nations to the utmost. It is not pleasant to contemplate; but there is no way out. There are some things worse than low wages and hard work. Against these we are throwing all we have. We are confident that the miners, in their saner moments, will not let the united effort fail, for any lack of devotion and labor on their part.

There is one way in which, both in Canada and The United States, we might learn from Great Britain. The British Prime Minister, early in the war, took labor leaders into his cabinet. He placed on them national responsibility, and as a result there have been no labor troubles in the Mother Country since the outbreak of the war. There are a lot of things we can still learn from England.

WHO'S A HERO?

Today heroes are in style. When we read about the boys we knew back home, crowding in the foxholes, or taking that last chance in a thousand in a ragged, battered plane, or facing miles of salt water with undaunted determination — everyone of us raises a silent cheer for them.

Heroes don't just happen.' They are made. It's the way we've lived and thought and acted for years that makes us what we are in a crisis. Heroism is something inside you. It's the determination to fight for the country—not for personal glory; the willingness to do the dirty, dirty, routine jobs as well as the showy ones. It means being honest enough to admit you're wrong sometimes; and having a sense of humour about your tough luck, instead of grousing.

A hero doesn't have to boast because actions speak louder than words. He's working while the others loaf. He learns his job, instead of skimming through the easy way, and tries to learn more instead of grudging because he has so much to do. He helps the other fellow who does not work or think as quickly as he does.

Above all—a hero has courage—the kind of courage that comes from a faith inside himself that there is something to life worth making sacrifices for, something more important than his skin and bones.

People don't always recognize heroes. They have no special jobs or special uniforms. You can be one whether you wield a gun or a pick-axe; fly a Fortress or drive a truck; whether you drop "eggs" over Germany or hot rivets in the shipyards. The hand may not come out on parade for you, but you have the satisfaction of knowing that you and thousands of patriots like you are winning this war, and building a world that is clean and honest and square.

Heroes come in any size or style. They may be young or old, short or tall, handsome or just plain, but anyone can be a hero and Canada needs more of them.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON, MAY 9TH, 1943

PETER AND JOHN, LEADERS IN THE EARLY CHURCH

Lesson Text: Acts 2: 37-41; 3: 1-8; 4: 13, 18-21

In a recent statement given to the people of Great Britain just before Easter, the Archbishop of Canterbury said that the great need in Britain was that men and women should turn from the kind of life they had been living to a new and more deeply spiritual life. They must repent, he said. Well, that is exactly what these people here, in today's lesson, were told by Peter — they must repent before they could enter the new way of life which Jesus had come to set forth. This they did and three thousand were added to the Church in that one day. The significant fact about this is the way in which Peter appealed to the people, and the effect which his appeal had on their lives. Peter it will be remembered, had made mistakes, but he had learned his lesson, and now filled with enthusiasm for the cause he exhorted others with telling effect, and secured definite results.

One of the most devastating weaknesses of our religious life is a lack of enthusiasm for its way of life. Rarely do we find men and women enthusiastic about their religion. If perchance there be those who are concerned enough about their religion to engage others in conversation, and to enthuse over it, a sophisticated generation regards them as cranks and fanatics. And yet it was just that type of man who laid the foundation for the Christian Church. Not infrequently, those whom one generation denounces as cranks and fanatics are received and honoured by the next for their vision and pioneering spirit. The Church needs more Peters, both in the pulpit and in the pew, men who are not ashamed to become enthusiastic about their faith and who feel deeply the burden of other's sins and needs.

The next section tells of a miracle of healing done by Peter. The lame man sought alms at the temple gate. "Silver and gold," says Peter, "have I none but such as I have I give unto you," and he bade the lame man walk. Here again Peter took advantage of an opportunity which was presented to him to exercise his ministry. He was missing no chance, whether to preach or heal. This man needed help. Peter could give no social assistance but he could give what he had, the touch of a living fellowship of suffering, the touch of the spirit.

In the next section the Jews married at the Temple, which Peter and John, like all their eyes ignorant even of such influence. The Jewish thorough training in the scriptures. They had looked but were unable to understand men without that could speak and heal with such power. But they supplied the lack in their own mental equipment. They took knowledge of facts they had been with God, which makes the difference between mere learning, and real knowledge. But an educated man, that is an educated crook or murderer. The education must be an asset or a liability. It all depends on his motivation, on the spirit which guides and gives direction to his ability and training. On the other hand, plenty of people with little or no education have been the instruments of God's grace because of their devotion, their enthusiasm and their veneration. The important thing is that all the gifts and natural endowments with which we have been blessed need to be consecrated with the spirit of service to the cause of the Master. If they are not, we are to the full in line for the judgment of God's place for us.

One other point is worthy of note in the concluding section. Peter and John were ordered to desist from their preaching. But Peter and John said that they could not but speak the things that they had heard. Here we have the secret of the martyrs. Having heard the voice of duty, the Voice of God, they must go to the ends of the earth and obey it. They must be obedient to the Heavenly Vision. The world is in need of such men and women so convinced of the things they believe in that they will die rather than deny them.

These are the kind of people who are the kind of leadership which the world stands in need of today. Such men and women are the hope of the world, since conservation of the old is not enough. We must go forward, and only those who are willing to go forward, and only those who are willing to go forward, and only those who are willing to

The London Times, which usually reflects Government opinion in Great Britain, has recently published two leading editorials supporting the view that, for the sake of the future stability of the world, there must be close co-operation between Russia and Great Britain. The swing of public opinion, in Great Britain, has been very definitely in this direction. But it is quite a surprise to find "The Thunderer" backing such an arrangement, and coming out flat-footed for unity of action in the post-war world between Great Britain and the U.S.S.R.

This, however, ought not to be such a shock now that Russia has shown the stuff of which she is made. Certainly if any nation has earned the right to the good wishes and enthusiastic support of the Democracies, that nation is Russia. Russia has borne a heavy share of the war burden. She has lost terribly. The price paid in land, materials, and men, is almost incredible. And yet the U.S.S.R. has held back the mightiest army the world has ever produced, and not only so, but has shown that her own military machine is of the first order, and her military leaders the equal of any.

Ever since the revolution in Russia and the establishment of the Socialist State, there has been a great fear in the rest of the world, lest the ideas and the form of government which was the result of the revolution, would make its way into other countries. The capitalist countries laboring under this great fear never quite trusted Russia, and certainly Russia never trusted the Democratic nations. Indeed, right up until last Fall, when the Twenty-fifth Anniversary of the Revolution was being celebrated, Stalin was critical of the Democracies. But in his May Day speech, that suspicion was no longer observable. Indeed, he went out of his way to praise the campaign in Tunisia, commented enthusiastically on the way the British and The United States Air Forces were inflicting punishment on Germany, and expressed appreciation of the help which they had sent Russia, direct.

Now that Great Britain has modified her attitude, as reflected in the editorials of The Times, and Russia is disposed to take a more generous view of the sincerity of the Democracies, the way seems open for a united approach to the terrific problems of reconstruction which will face the world when the war ends.

The attitude of The United States towards Russia is still questionable. There, too, there has been a noticeable swing of popular opinion in favor of the U.S.S.R. and yet there are powerful interests at work in The United States which still are afraid of Russia—afraid of the effect the success of the Russian experiment will have on the economic and social life of the Democracies.

But why should there be any such fear? We can co-operate with people who think and act differently than we do, and certainly, differences in economic organization should be no barrier to united action. And then, too, there will be a certain action and reaction between the two systems. Through the fears, it is conceivable that each will learn something from the other. So long as the welfare of the common people is the aim of both, and so long as they keep that goal in view, they may each reach it, though they travel different roads in doing so.

THE NEW LIBERAL LEADER

The Ontario Liberal Convention has elected a new leader in the person of Mr. Harry Nixon. Gradually, the situation caused by Mr. Hepburn's precipitate action, is being cleared up. The Liberal Party, by the Democratic process, is setting its house in order again. Premier Conant was looked on by many as the natural choice of the Party, and certainly since he has assumed the office of Premier of Ontario, he has worked day and night. He has done a creditable job. A noticeable improvement in the conduct of the House was observable under his leadership. But his case was prejudiced because of the manner in which he was made Prime Minister. It may be debatable whether or not Mr. Hepburn was within his constitutional rights in handing over the reins to Mr. Conant. But it was a procedure which antagonized a great many people. No wonder then that Mr. Conant cracked under the strain and had to go to the hospital. There is a limit to the endurance of even the strongest. His withdrawal from the race for top position in the Provincial ranks, made Mr. Nixon's election almost inevitable.

Mr. Nixon has had a long and varied experience in Parliament. He has been a Cabinet Minister for many years, and holds the respect and confidence of all parties. He is a farmer, and a graduate in scientific agriculture. He is a genial, easy to meet public man. These qualities fit him for the tasks which he will have to assume.

One gratifying feature of the change in the political situation in Ontario, is the improved relations that will come between Ottawa and Ontario. Mr. Hepburn was a man whose course of action was never capable of being determined. Nobody could guess what he might do next. He was, as a political leader, consistent in one thing and that was in his bitter dislike of Premier Mackenzie King and the Ottawa Government. Day and night, week in and week out, he carried on his vendetta against Ottawa. In a time of national strain and stress through which we are passing, when unity of action is a prime necessity, this lack of co-operation was a great handicap. Mr. Nixon has the confidence of Ottawa. On more than one occasion, he has demonstrated his dislike of the lack of unity between Ottawa and Ontario. It is worth noting that Premier King lost no time in sending to Mr. Nixon, a telegram of congratulation.

THE COAL MINERS

It would be difficult for anyone listening to President Roosevelt, Sunday night, not to be moved by the sincerity of his appeal, his depth of feeling, his assurance of his sympathy with the common man, and his frankness in the face of a very difficult situation.

The Soft Coal Miners in The United States have had a very sad and very trying experience. They have been through terrible years of depression. They have been underpaid. They work in dangerous and hazardous conditions. The families of these men have suffered probably more than most people because of the lack of markets for their commodity, and the general management of the mines. It is not to be wondered at that there should be discontent and an effort to meet the rising tide of living costs.

But while all this is true, yet there are three things which condemn the miners in their determination to strike. In the first place they had promised that there would be no strikes while the war was on. In the second place they refused to negotiate their differences on the ground that the Labor Board was prejudiced. And then there is the third reason that the present crisis makes it imperative that production be kept at its highest pitch.

Quite probably it was this which weighed most heavily with the miners, as it ought. Here we are in the midst of the greatest struggle that the world has ever known. Every ounce of energy, every cent of money, must be consecrated to the cause of defeating the enemy. The war is not won, by any means. There will be dark days ahead, days that will tax the nations to the utmost. It is not pleasant to contemplate; but there is no way out. There are some things worse than low wages and hard work. Against these we are throwing all we have. We are confident that the miners, in their saner moments, will not let the united effort fail, for any lack of devotion and labor on their part.

There is one way in which, both in Canada and The United States, we might learn from Great Britain. The British Prime Minister, early in the war, took labor leaders into his cabinet. He placed on them national responsibility, and as a result there have been no labor troubles in the Mother Country since the outbreak of the war. There are a lot of things we can still learn from England.

WHO'S A HERO?

Today heroes are in style. When we read about the boys we knew back home, crouching in the foxholes, or taking that last chance in a thousand in a ragged, battered plane, or facing miles of salt water with undaunted determination — everyone of us rates a silent cheer for them.

Heroes don't just 'happen.' They are made. It's the way we've lived and thought and acted for years that makes us what we are in a crisis. Heroism is something inside you. It's the determination to fight for the country—not for personal glory; the willingness to do the hard, dirty, routine jobs as well as the glamorous ones. It means being honest enough to admit you're wrong sometimes; and having a sense of humour about your tough luck, instead of grousing.

A hero doesn't have to boast because actions speak louder than words. He's working while the others loaf. He learns his job. Instead of skimming through the easy way, and tries to learn more instead of grousing because he has so much to do. He helps the other fellow who does not work or think as quickly as he does.

Above all—a hero has courage—the kind of courage that comes from a faith inside himself that there is something to life worth making sacrifices for, something more important than his skin and bones.

People don't always recognize heroes. They have no special jobs or special uniforms. You can be one whether you wield a gun or a pickaxe; fly a Fortress or drive a truck; whether you drop "eggs" over Germany or hot rivets in the shipyards. The hard may not come out on parade for you, but you have the satisfaction of knowing that you and thousands of patriots like you are winning this war, and building a world that is clean and honest and square.

Heroes come in any size or style. They may be young or old, short or tall, handsome or just plain, but anyone can be a hero and Canada needs more of them.

BILL SPROULE'S ASSAILANT NOW IN AFRICAN PRISON

WEARS MASCOT GIVEN TO HIM BY SPROULE

(From The Brantford Chronicle)

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sproule, of Brantford, have this week received a very interesting letter from Capt. H. W. Bottrill, the commandine officer of the Divisional Provost Company, with the British North African force. Captain Bottrill explains in his letter of a German fighter pilot who had been shot down and taken prisoner. And it turned out when the prisoner was being interrogated to be the German who was responsible for shooting down "Bill Sproule". The letter is self-explanatory and reads:

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Sproule:

Yesterday afternoon we shot down a German fighter pilot, who escaped by parachute and was captured. He informed me that he was responsible for your son, Sergt. Pilot Sproule, being shot down and captured in 1941. He said that your son is very well and he has visited him at the P.O.W. Camp in Germany, as I am passing this information on to you as I am sure that you will be pleased to have some outside news of how your son is getting on.

The German pilot, Lieut. Moller, was wearing a mascot round his neck of a funny little fat man about two and a half inches long and he told me your son had given it to him to give it to me so that I could send it on to you, but he would not part with it.

Lieut. Moller is only 21 years of age and has the Iron Cross, first class, an enthusiastic young Hun who fed us a chap of three miles before we caught him just as he was getting to the German lines. He had great respect for your son, like we all have out here for the R. A. F. who are doing a grand job.

Before I close I would like to mention that we are all very confident out here, and feel sure that the Jerrys are going to get such a hiding this year and the war will not last much longer. We are doing our best to bring you and your son together in the very near future.

If you would care to write in reply to this hastily scribbled note, would you write to my wife as my movements are somewhat erratic and she will let me know if you have received this letter or not. Her address is: Mrs. Betty Bottrill, "Avalon," Blakes Lane, New Malden, Surrey, England. With kindest regards,

Yours sincerely,
H. W. Bottrill, Captain,
O.C. 46 Divisional Provost Coy.,
C. M. Police,
British North Africa.

Jack, who was spending Christmas with his aunt, struggled manfully with the meat on his plate. "Shall I cut your meat for you?" queried auntie. "No, thank you, auntie," replied Jack, "we often have it as tough as this at home."

Amateur Performer: I can pick up a cent with my toes.

Bright Spectator: That's nothing. My dog can do that with his nose.

RED CROSS NEWS

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of the Napanee Red Cross took place in the work rooms on Saturday afternoon. At the time Mrs. Ralph Hum, recent delegate to the Ontario Division Red Cross convention, gave a very interesting report of her trip. She said she examined much of the work being done at the other branches and found from this the same work as the Napanee branch, e.g. quilts, sheets, pyjamas, wheelchairs, hospital supplies, etc, and came to the conclusion that Mrs. Sneath has by untiring effort kept our department working on a basis equal to any. In reference to the Women's War Work Committee, Mrs. Ham said that Mrs. Fraser, chairman of the committee, expressed great appreciation to the women whose work made it possible for her to make such a wonderful report in view of the fact they were all voluntary workers and had other duties to perform and have to donate hours or days' work to the Red Cross at various times.

Mrs. A. F. Reid and Miss Marian Miller were hostesses on Saturday afternoon in the workrooms.

A quilt was received from the Hawley Women's Unit and the Wilton Unit sent in 12 quilts ,1 nightie and 3 little girls' dresses.

WEDDING BELLS

STINSON - VANDERVOORT

St. John's Anglican Church, Newburgh, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Monday, April 26th, when Canon B. W. Spencer united in marriage Doris Mabel Vandervoort, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Vandervoort, Newburgh, and John Taylor Stinson, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Stinson, Napanee.

Given in marriage by her mother, the bride entered the church to the strains of the Bridal March played by Mrs. Dewey Vandervoort. She wore a floor-length gown of white sheer crepe en traine lines, with matching jacket. Her finger-tip veil of white embroidered silk net was held in place by orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of red roses. Miss Beatrice Allred, cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid, wearing a very pretty gown of pink sheer crepe with lined bodice and long full sleeves. Her small matching hat had a short veil and she carried a bouquet of pink roses.

Little Miss Deanna Vandervoort was flower girl, daintily dressed in pink with matching hat. She also carried a basket of red roses. Mr. Dean Vandervoort was best man.

During the signing of the register, "O Perfect Love" was played as an organ solo.

A reception at the Richelieu Hotel in Napanee, followed the ceremony.

You know a lot of people these days are buying Bonds with a definite aim in mind for the money after the war is over. They say, for instance, that the Bond will cover the fine, few inducements of a new car; or that the Bond will pay for that model kitchen, or a recreation room they intend installing in their home, or a sunroom they look forward to building.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

This column is sponsored by the Regional Office, Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Questions on price control, ration regulations and other Wartime Prices and Trade Board rulings should be addressed to: Information Branch, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, Victoria Building, Brockville, Ont.

Q— I wish I could convince my husband, who has always been a heavy meat-eater, that he will not suffer under the quantities which will be allowed him when meat is rationed. Can you help me?

A— Canada's leading authorities on nutrition are unanimous in declaring that a ration allowing only about two pounds of meat a week is ample to preserve health, even for those engaged in the heaviest occupations. As a matter of fact, some of the world's most active men subsist upon a much lower consumption. I am certain your husband will find that his rations are quite adequate and he will have the additional satisfaction of knowing that his reduced consumption of meat will facilitate shipments to the troops overseas and the heavily-rationed people of the United Kingdom.

Q— Will you please repeat the instructions regarding obtaining extra sugar for cooking rhubarb?

A— Until May 31st any consumer who presents his No. 1 spare "B" blue coupon to his supplier will be entitled to purchase one pound of sugar for the home cooking of Canada-grown rhubarb.

Q— We are about to move to Washington, D.C., where my husband has received an appointment. What will I do with our ration books?

A— Any consumer leaving Canada to reside elsewhere must forward his ration book to his Local Ration Board.

Q— Does a false statement or return to the Prices Board about stocks of rationed goods, etc., constitute a violation?

A— Most certainly it does. A restaurant proprietor was recently fined $150 for making a false statement about his stocks of sugar, tea and coffee and a hardlord was also fined $150 for unlawfully increasing his rentals and for making a false statement to his local rentals committee.

Q— The firm of dry cleaners with which I do business used to offer a two-for-one special, which it has now discontinued. Is that not a breach of the prices regulations?

A— Of course it is, provided that the custom of the firm to offer such a special during the basic period of September 15 - October 11, 1941. It has been ruled that such firms must continue that service since it forms part of their regular price structure.

Q— Can you tell me if the restrictions upon deliveries now in force are really proving beneficial to our war effort?

A— There can be no doubt whatever about it. It is estimated that the total saving made by curtailment of wholesalers' deliveries will amount to 200,000,000 miles a year, which represents a marked saving of gasoline, rubber and motorized equipment, while one large department store estimates a saving of as much as 200,000 gallons of gasoline a year because of the delivery regulations.

RATION COUPON CALENDAR

(REVISED)

BUTTER—Purple coupon 8, good for the purchase of one-half pound of butter, fell due April 29 and will expire May 31. Purple coupon 9, possessing the same value, will fall due May 6 and also expire May 31.

SUGAR— Red coupons 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, and 6, each good for the purchase of one pound of sugar are now valid and without expiry date. Coupons 7 and 8 will fall due May 27.

TEA OR COFFEE— Green coupons 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6, each good for the purchase of two ounces of tea or one-half pound of coffee, are also valid and without expiry date. Coupons 7 and 8 will fall due May 27.

RHUBARB SUGAR— No. 1 spare "B" blue coupon is good until May 31 for the purchase of one pound of sugar for the home cooking of Canada-grown rhubarb.

MEAT— The brown spare "A" coupons will be used for the purchase of meat under rationing, as directed by the Ration Administration. Each of these coupons will be good for the purchase of approximately one pound of meat. All four sheets of brown spare "A" coupons should be completed now by holders in readiness for meat rationing. No coupon sheet may be legally used unless it has been fully completed in ink with the prefix, serial number and address. The bookholder's name must be written on the stub.

The Local Ration Board has been advised that Butter Ration Coupon 9, which will fall due on Thursday, May 6, along with coupons 10 and 11, which will fall due on Thursday, May 13, will remain valid until May 31, after which date they will lose value, for the purchase of butter.

Coupons 6, 7 and 8, which became valid earlier, will also expire on May 31, along with blue coupon No. 1, which is now good for the purchase of an extra pound of sugar for the home cooking of Canada-grown rhubarb.

Coupons for canning sugar, to be distributed this month, will begin to fall due on June 1st.

It should be noted that, beginning May 13, two butter coupons will fall due every second Thursday, instead of one each Thursday, and this procedure will continue for the period of the present ration books.

ONTARIO EXTENDS BEER RATIONING

Toronto, (C.P.) — An individual beer rationing system will become effective in Ontario on or about May 17 with coupons allowing an estimated limit of 36 pints or the equivalent a month, Hon. St. Clair Gordon, chairman of the Liquor Control Board of Ontario, announced in a statement last week.

Each coupon will be good for one unit, six small bottles, and the maximum quantity purchasable at any due time will be twelve quarts or the equivalent, the statement said. The coupons will be issued to resident consumers without charge and prior to their issuance every citizen will be compelled to submit his national registration certificate. In the case of already curtailed supplies to public beverage rooms. These have an obligatory closing time of from 2 to 4 p.m. in the afternoon and through the legal closing time at night — 11:30 p.m., most places shut down early in the evening when supplies run out.

Magistrate's Court

Charles McConnell, Odessa, charged with an indecent act, was remanded indefinitely by Magistrate Marvin in Napanee Court last Thursday. Counsel for the defense, W. S. Herrington, and the Crown Attorney agreed that the charge was the result of a feud between families and that the ends of justice could be met if all parties were bound over to keep the peace. Consequently the Magistrate remanded the case sine die on the understanding that it could be reopened by counsel for the Crown giving ten days' notice to the counsel for the accused.

Maximum Potato Production Important This Year

Potato production in Ontario must be substantially increased this year if maximum purchases by other nations and climatic conditions are adapted to the potato crop. Maximum production close to consuming centres would assist in overcoming transportation difficulties.

It should be remembered that potatoes produce more food nutrients per acre than most farm crops. British authorities, in comparing food values and urging increased potato production, state that ten acres of wheat would maintain 21 persons for the year; ten acres in potatoes would maintain 42 persons; ten acres in milk producing pasture would maintain four persons, and ten acres grazed by beef cattle would maintain one person.

Considering the scarcities of labour, machinery and seed, present indications are that the overall Provincial potato crop may not equal that of last year. However, increased yields per acre can be obtained if proper attention is given to the crop, particularly by way of building up soil fertility with readily available abundant supplies of plant food, use of good seed, and providing protection for the growing crop against pests and disease.

All available potato machinery should be used to capacity by arrangements made by neighbours on either co-operative or custom basis for planting, weeding, spraying, dusting and harvesting.

While Ontario potato production has been on the decrease during recent years, consumption has been increasing at a faster rate, because more people now realize and appreciate the full food value of potatoes.

CIVIL SERVANTS END SESSION

REMOVAL OF PERMANENCY RESTRICTIONS SOUGHT

Ottawa, (C.P.) — At the closing session of its 22nd annual meeting, the Professional Institute of the Civil Service of Canada considered, last week, resolutions urging the removal of the permanency restrictions from certain departments, a cost-of-living bonus for civil servants, salary increases for those receiving more than $3,000 a year, and study of the possibility of establishing one organization or joint council for all civil servants.

All but one of the resolutions — that dealing with permanency in the Navy — were referred to the Institute's executive. The resolution on permanency, which was passed, said that in various government departments where nearly all positions were permanent, the restriction limiting 20 per cent of the staffs to permanency should be done of them on that basis for years.

VETERANS' CASE CITED

The resolution claimed that some temporary employees were veterans of the First Great War and unable to afford having their pensions or superannuation plans further delayed. It urged the Institute to bring "all possible pressure to bear" on the Government to have this restriction rested.

W. N. Keenan, past president of the Institute, said the civil servants should have an opportunity to submit their views on legislating affecting them in advance of its enactment, and advocated the appointment of some minister as the intermediary between the civil servants and the Government.

Of the resolution calling for the restoration of salary increases for civil servants granted from time to time, Mr. Keenan said: "Our opinion is that we are being penalized compared to other workers."

OFFICERS NAMED

R. C. Berry, of the Secretary of State's department, was elected first vice-president of the Institute, B. R. MacKay, of the Mines and Resources Department, was named second vice-president and W. H. VanAllen of the Transport Department, third vice-president.

Must Report Terms Of Housing Leases

The rentals regulations administered by the Prices Board require that when a new lease of an accommodation is contracted or an existing lease renewed, full details shall be furnished the Regional Rentals Administration within ten days on a Form R.C.-40 which may be obtained at any office of the Board. A second copy is to be handed to the tenant forthwith and a third retained by the landlord. Heavy penalties are provided for failure of landlords to observe this regulation.

HISTORY REPEATS

A quarter of a century ago some Canadian soldiers who had lost their sight in the First World War came back to Canada. As a result, The Canadian National Institute for the Blind was founded, and, for the first time in Canadian History, there is a Dominion-wide organization devoted to the interests of the adult blind, and to champion their cause.

Now, twenty-five years later, a new generation of Canadian soldiers is in the world's battle-line. A few of them have already been blinded. It is almost inevitable that more will suffer the same misfortune. Two or three have already returned to Canada. One is in Germany.

In one respect, history does not repeat itself. When the first blinded soldiers came home in 1916, they discovered that there was no organization in the Dominion devoted to the welfare of the adult blind. The men who are coming back now, find that Canada has one of the finest Institutions for the care of the adult blind that there is anywhere in the world.

This fact is recognized by the Dominion Government, for The Canadian National Institute for the Blind has been charged with the retraining and after-care of Canadian soldiers who lose their sight in the present war. This is attributed not only to the efficiency of the organization, but to the public-spirited men and women who, through their generosity, have made it possible to create and maintain the work of The Institute. For ever half the funds necessary to carry on the work. The Institute must look to the public.

The annual campaign for financial support is now in progress in Napanee. It is being conducted by the Institute's Napanee Committee which is made up of a group of public-spirited citizens under the chairmanship of Mr. Mark P. Graham.

Two very interesting figures appear in the Annual Report of The Canadian National Institute for the Blind. One is 2,844; the other is 2,765. The first is the number of blind people to whom The Canadian National Institute for The Blind was able to render some service during the year.

In some cases the service rendered may have been only a friendly call to see what help could be given; in others it meant that permanent employment was provided. Whatever help can be given is given by The Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

RAISE BETTER CALVES AT LOWER COST

Indisputable tests show that, by feeding calves "Miracle" Calf Meal, and selling the milk they would otherwise need, there is an actual feed saving. The milk brings more than the feed cost. And when calves are fed on "Miracle" Calf Meal they are free of rickets, grow stronger and faster. "Miracle" Calf Meal shortens the time when calves will pay their own way as milkers. And this feed in the dotted bags starts them on the way to higher milk production.

THE BLIND AND THE WAR

In dozens of war plants across Canada, blind men and women are taking their part along with sighted workers in the manning of drilling and milling machines, gauging shells assembling fuses, smoothing aeroplane parts — doing a day's work; getting a day's pay; widening the path towards victory.

It is because The Canadian National Institute for the Blind proved in times of peace that capable blind men and women were competent factory workers, that so many of them are now being employed in war work.

Frequently, in recent months, many Canadian papers have published pictures of blind workers in war plants. The interesting thing is, of course, that men without their sight can do a useful job, but it is also of interest that, almost without exception, these blind workers were placed in their remunerative employment by the placement officers of The Canadian National Institute for the Blind. There would be mighty few blind people working if it were not for the C.N.I.B.

The provision of employment and the finding of jobs is not the only important work of the C.N.I.B. After all, only a comparatively small proportion of the blind population can be regularly employed and for the others The Institute provides a variety of services which are designed to make life tolerable for them.

Everything that The Institute does and every service which the blind receive, depends on the financial support obtained from the public. The tremendously important and humanitarian work of The Canadian National Institute for the Blind can be developed if men and women blessed with sight, express their gratitude for their good fortune by making a small contribution. The opportunity to do this comes on Saturday, May 8th, when a Tag Day, under the auspices of the Napanee Committee of the Institute is being held in Napanee.

FLOOD CONDITIONS IN NAPANEE

Flood conditions in a section of Napanee, Tuesday night and Wednesday morning came as a result of the heavy rains in the past few weeks, which were climaxed by the torrential rain of Tuesday night.

The natural water course which runs down through the district just west of the Old Belleville Road and west of West Street, below Bridge St., was unable to carry all the water and broke through the surface just back of the residences of Dr. C. M. Stratton, W. R. Eppes, and Ben. Hicks, on Dundas Street.

Throughout Tuesday evening, continuing through the night, and still on Wednesday morning, water was running around both sides of Dr. Stratton's house and the house just east of it. When the rain was at its worst on Tuesday evening the water on the surface must have been two feet deep. The whole road from West to Robinson streets, on Dundas street, was flooded, and town employes were busy signalling motorists to slow up and proceed through the water carefully.

Cellars in the district were flooded almost to the first floor level and gardens and driveways were washed out.

Just south of Bridge street, in the vacant lot, opposite the Masonic Temple, the ground caved in over the drain, leaving a large hole through which the water could be seen racing southward.

In other parts of the town cellars which are generally perfectly dry had several inches of water in them in some cases.

TAG - DAY FOR THE BLIND NETS $186.50

The tag day for funds for the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, held in Napanee last Saturday, brought in the sum of $186.50, which was about $13.00 less than last year. The weather last Saturday was very unfavorable, so the results were considered exceptionally good.

Arrangements for the tag day, which was sponsored by the I. E. L. Chapter, I.O.D.E., were under the convenorship of Mrs. Ray Moore. Assisting Mrs. Moore were Mrs. A. S. Hudson, Mrs. W. V. Webster, Mrs. Gerald Pollard, Mrs. Claire Chambers and Mrs. D. R. Hall.

There were 45 boys and girls from the Napanee Public Schools and Collegiate engaged in tagging throughout the day.

JUDGMENT GIVEN IN SIMMONS CASE

Judge Reynolds of Kingston, who heard the evidence in Napanee on April 30th in the actions of Stuart Simmons of Ernesttown against the Township of Ernesttown, Austin Fraser, the Treasurer of Ernesttown and the Treasurer of the County of Lennox and Addington, delivered his judgment last week.

Judge Reynolds found that the taxes on the farm of Stuart Simmons, in Ernesttown Township, for the years 1933 and 1934 were still owing to the amount of $355.66, plus interest and penalties. The judge also declared Mr. Simmons entitled to judgment for an order restraining the county from offering the plaintiff's lands for sale and damages against the township for $50. Mr. Simmons had claimed damages of $500 from the Township.

CAUSE OF ACTION

In this action, Stuart Simmons, plaintiff in the case, sought to recover damages against the defendants for improperly listing his farm for sale for arrears of taxes, and for an injunction restraining the county treasurer from offering his property for sale, and an alternative claim for arrears of salary as a tax collector of Ernesttown Township.

Simmons was engaged as a tax collector for Ernesttown in the years 1929 to 1934 inclusive. In 1935 an audit disclosed that Simmons was short in his tax accounts. The audit fixed the amount at $3,144.37. Simmons executed a chattel mortgage, prepared by J. M. Simpson, solicitor for the township, in the sum of $2,969.37 to secure his indebtedness to the township. The difference in the amount of shortage found by the audit and the sum of the chattel mortgage was explained by the township as $130 allowed Simmons by the township for sales killed by dogs and $45 for his salary as tax collector for the year 1935.

Simmons, at the trial, contended that the chattel mortgage was given for a sum of $200 in excess of the amount found to be owing by him to the township, based on a later audit made in 1936 and further that at the time of the settlement of the amount due under the chattel mortgage in October, 1936, the amount of his taxes and the amount due him for his salary as tax collector were taken into account by the solicitor for the township. Simmons further contended at the trial that he was unaware of any outstanding taxes against his farm until the fall of 1941 when the alleged arrears were included on his 1941 tax bill.

In his judgment, Judge Reynolds stated: "Simmons as a tax collector was without question, careless and incompetent but the township officials were not entirely free from blame for the unfortunate financial position that arose in regard to the township's affairs."

The judge continued that he accepted the evidence of the township treasurer, Mr. Fraser, that Simmons had paid the treasurer $190 in 1937 to be applied on Simmons's arrears of taxes for 1933 and 1934. This indicated that Simmons at that time did not consider his 1933-34 taxes paid by the settlement made in 1936 with J. M. Simpson.

The judge finally stated that counsel agreed at the trial, that if which was received on behalf of the employees by Miss Betty Brown and Mr. Sept. Booth.

Ross-Miller Biscuit Company Limited, which was received by Mr. Bruce Wegar.

The Napanee Iron Works Limited, and The Sawyer Stoll Lumber Company, of Massanoga, have attained their objectives and will, also, receive Honour Certificates.

The above presentation Dr. Hall called the three children, Ronald Sloper, Hugh Sharp and Betty Warner, winners of the County Quiz contest, to come to the stage, and each received a War Saving Certificate for their splendid success in making a clean sweep of the Victory Loan School quiz, Eastern Division finals, held in Brockville on May 3rd. Each of the children made a short speech and got a big hand.

Dr. Hall introduced the speaker for the evening, J. M. Simpson, K.C. Mr. Simpson made a very strong address and minced no words in telling the assembled people where their duty lay, in regard to the Fourth Victory Loan. His remarks were delivered with great clarity and force and were received with close attention.

L.A.C. Jones, lyric tenor, sang two numbers and it was obvious they were greatly enjoyed. The whole show was under the accomplished and experienced guiding hand of Flying Officer Ellis, who also conducted the male voice choir.

The show personnel was composed, with the exception of Danny Arnold and the lady artists, entirely of R. A. F. men from the Norman Rogers Airport, Kingston. Their appearance here was only possible because of their own unselfish interest and the fact that they had devoted much of their spare time in preparing for the show. Group Captain C. LeFleur Trench, Commanding Officer at the Airport, gave his kind permission for these men to appear here.

VICTORY LOAN SHOW SATURDAY NIGHT DRAWS LARGE CROWD

There was a large and enthusiastic audience at the Napanee Armouries on Saturday night to see the R. A. F. concert group in its stage production "Show Time." The foundation for the whole show was the male voice choir. The choir sang several numbers and each one was received with tumultuous applause. Danny Arnold from the Army supplied the comedy relief like an old trouper and had the audience in a state of laughter with two or three very clever comedy acts.

L.A.C. Whitwell played several numbers on the piano and showed himself to be a very accomplished artist. L.A.C. Poole completely baffled the crowd with a clever display of conjuring tricks. Miss Margaret Davis played two beautiful solos on the violin. L.A.C. Godley also played violin solos later in the performance and received tremendous ovation.

The first half of the programme was brought to a close with the choir and audience singing "Buy War Bonds" which is heard frequently over the "Happy Gang's" programme.

Dr. D. R. Hall, County Chairman of the National War Finance Committee, took the chair in the interests of the Fourth Victory Loan. Dr. Hall called on Mr. W. A. Grange to present the Honour Certificate to Squadron Leader Gibson who received it on behalf of the I. F. S.-Desoronto, which had attained 20% per cent. of its objective. Squadron Leader Gibson then presented Honour Certificates to the following business concerns:

Gibbard Furniture Shops Limited.

A finding was made to the effect that Simmons' taxes were not paid by virtue of the alleged settlement in 1936, the plaintiff's claim for arrears of salary is barred by the Statute of Limitations, and the counter-claim of the defendant township is similarly barred.

WATCH THE POLITICAL FRONT

The focus of Allied attention at the moment is the military front. Naturally so. Great military movements are in the making. The great victories in the field of General Eisenhower's American, French and British Armies, have captured the centre of attention. As one campaign closes another or perhaps a half-dozen others are in the offing. Naturally, organs of news and opinion are concentrating their efforts on describing the present victory and speculating with respect to future military objectives. All of this is more than justified. We have much to rejoice over. The achievement of Montgomery and his Eighth Army in driving Rommel and the Afrika Korps for fifteen hundred miles, and the successful co-operation between the French, British and American Armies in their final push through Tunisia, is without doubt a most brilliant achievement, and one which may well go down in history as one of the greatest of all military accomplishments.

We have to be careful, however, not to let military successes blind us to other struggles. In a war there are always two fronts at least, the military and the political. As the signs of success on the military front increase, activity on the political front becomes more active. After all, it is quite possible to win on the military front and lose on the political one. It is for this reason that we should watch with care what lies behind much of the news from the political front which appears in the papers, from time to time. There are powerful political and economic influences which are operative all the time, but at the present time they are particularly active. An Associated Press report, on Monday, told of an editorial by "Spartacus" in the (London) "Reynolds News" which said: "Anti-Soviet cliques in the United States encouraged the Polish Government-in-Exile were responsible for the Russo-Polish break." He said that, "months of officially opposed hush-hush have wrought nothing but near disaster. So," he said, "Let's be outspoken for a change." He then went on to say that certain American interests had attempted to block the opening of a second front until the political problems in Europe had been settled. The most important was that Russia should not be allowed to extend her political domination into Europe if her armies moved westward.

It is quite well known that there are great interests who are still opposed to what they call Russian Bolshevism. Hitler knows that and has tried to stir up trouble by declaring that he is the saviour of Europe against the menace of Bolshevism. So far he has not succeeded in driving the wedge in between the different groups in the Democratic Countries, very deep, and yet we must not lose sight of this tendency on the part of many, to do all in their power to prevent Russia from having any great influence in the post-war councils. "Sparticus" has done us a service by coming out into the open and warning British and American readers against a movement which, in the flush of military victory, they might overlook.

DUNKIRK — CAP BON

By the time these lines are read the fate of the once proud Afrika Korps will be known. Up to the present, it is estimated that fifty thousand German and Italian prisoners have been taken by the armies of the United Nations since the capture of Bizerte and Tunis. Another eighty thousand Axis soldiers are squeezed into a small peninsula which juts out into the Mediterranean. Rommel, the gifted leader of the Axis African Army has left for duties elsewhere, along with other high ranking German officers. Other lesser lights of the German Headquarter Staff, and Italians, have been left to face the final thrust of the United Nations. What the proportion of German and Italian troops left to face the climax is, is not known, but judging from past experience it is a fair assumption that the bulk of the Army will be Italian.

Events moved so rapidly, last week, that they were breath-taking. Most military experts looked for a long siege of Bizerte and probably of Tunis, as well. But the United Nations have learned their lesson well. They have mastered the art of attack under modern conditions. That was amply demonstrated at El Alemein and the Mareth Line. In preparation for the final break-through the Axis positions, last week, a United Nations bomber dropped its load of bombs every fifteen seconds, for nine hours. Nothing could stand up to that. The Axis forces broke and retreated in disorder. They surrendered in thousands, while the main army sought shelter in the ever narrowing confines of the Cap Bon Peninsula. But in that there is no sanctuary. They are pressed relentlessly by the United Nations, and there is no final place of resting save the beaches of the sea.

The withdrawal of the bulk of the British Army from France in 1940, was probably the greatest successful military retreat in history. A number of factors contributed to its successes—the weather, the number of volunteer boats available, and the protecting Navy and Air Force. In Tunisia, there can be no Axis Dunkirk. The United Nations have superiority in the air and are blasting away at the sea coast. The British Navy stands by to keep a watchful eye on an attempt of the Italian Navy to come to the rescue of the Axis troops. Ports from which embarkation barges might set out are being subjected to continual bombardment. There seems only two alternatives, surrender or annihilation, and either may have been accomplished by the time this is in print, so rapidly are matters moving.

Thus, no African Dunkirk seems possible. The forced withdrawal of the British from France, in 1940, has been avenged by the situation in Tunis and Bizerte, in 1943.

PROOF

The arrests for drunkenness in Toronto are down by twenty per cent. for the first three months in 1943, over what they were for the first three months in 1942. That is significant. There have always been those who will argue that there is no relation between the amount of liquor sold and the amount of arrests for drunkenness. But the official figures are against such general statements. The present decline in drunkenness is in keeping with the reduction in the amount of liquor which is released for consumption. At a time when every ounce of manpower is needed in the national war effort, these facts are significant, and should encourage the government in its endeavour to prevent absenteeism and to keep up the national morale.

Significant, too, is the change in rowdyism and boorishness on trains, which had reached a point where it was quite objectionable at times. In recent months that condition has been quite perceptably improved. We have no facts or evidence with respect to the effect of rationing of alcoholic beverages on absenteeism, but if what has taken pplace in connection with arrests and travel conditions is any criterion on which to base a judgment, it is quite probably true that fewer days are being lost now than before the Prime Minister made his radio address on the necessity of curtailing consumption of alcoholic beverages.

V

THE LATE SEASON

The weather conditions which have delayed spring work on the land seem to be fairly general throughout Ontario and New York State. Misery, it is said, likes company. If there is any comfort in knowing that others as well as ourselves are suffering from the wet weather, then we are entitled to it. In a trip across the Niagara Peninsula and over most of Western New York, recently, we encountered rain and wet weather most of the time. Water lies deep on the land all across the northern strip of New York State, where little or no work has been done on the land. The same is true of the Niagara Peninsula. The Municipal Garden at Hamilton, which at this time of year is usually showing signs of growing vegetables, is largely under water—in some places no land is visible, the whole looking like a lake.

The situation takes on a rather serious aspect for there are not so many growing days, and unless early crops can be got in, recourse will have to be had to later ones. This does not do so much harm to field crops, but it will seriously affect the roots and vegetables, of which there is so much need this year. The only remedy is for everyone to jump in and help when the weather breaks.

FOR THE FINAL THRUST

BY LOUIS F. KEEMLE

The Allied aerial plastering of western Europe is beginning to spell the doom of the Axis in the final struggle which is scheduled to begin this year and probably end in victory in 1944, as far as European operatiofs are concerned.

The effect of overwhelming air superiority and the use which is being made of it, is not immediately obvious. It is of course playing its part in North Africa and the Mediterrean, where the issue is likely to be decided in coming months.

It is when the major land fighting starts on the European continent that the full value of the long aerial campaign waged by the British, increasingly aided by the Americans will make itself felt.

The aerial offensive is disrupting Germany's war output and keeping her overburdened communications system in a state of chaos. The effect is cumulative.

German production long ago passed its peak and is rapidly diminishing as an inadequate supply of manpower struggles to keep supplies flowing from factories partly destroyed or, in the case of subsidiary plants, crippled by the shedding of all essential materials from blasted key industrial centres.

The resources of Europe have been drained and can no longer bolster the German war machine in the critical hour. Run-down and partly crippled communications facilities may not be able to meet the strain of getting materials to vital fronts as the fighting spreads in a widening arc from Russia and North Africa to western, southern and southeastern Europe.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To The Editor of
The Napanee Beaver.

Trenton, Ontario, April 6, 43.

Dear Sir:— Recently I heard of the deaths of P.O. Donald Reid of Napanee and Serge. Pilot Ross Hubbard of Montreal, during the course of their duties over here.

Both of these boys were held in high esteem by everyone who knew them and I know how deeply their loss will be felt by their families.

The other day, in a quiet English town I chanced upon a book of verse. One of the poems was written for a mother in Warwickshire, but it applies to all mothers whose sons have given their lives in the Air Force.

I am enclosing this poem in the hope that you can find space for it in your paper.

Walter W. Exley, Capt.,

"THE VOICE"

We could not keep you when the sky was calling—
You who rose laughing with the mounting stars;
You who swung skyward when the stars were falling,
We could not hear the Voice that called you, son.

Or we were deaf or were uncomprehending,
But, once unshackled from the earth and free,
When steel wings failed on other wings ascending
You soared, we knew it said: "Come unto Me."

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON, MAY 16TH, 1943

Lesson Text; Acts 8: 14-25

PETER AND JOHN PREACH TO SAMARITANS

Peter and John were Jews, and the Jews had no dealings with the Samaritans. But Peter and John, under the power of the christian motive, did not hesitate to go to these so called inferior people to offer them the gift of the Gospel.

One of the greatest causes of world unrest is racial prejudice. The white race has, for generations, assumed an air of racial superiority. This has, of late, been rudely shaken. The pride of the British was shattered at Singapore and Hong Kong, while that of the Americans received a bad jolt at Pearl Harbour. The Japanese exclusion act, and other restrictive legislation based on race, rankled in the breasts of the Japanese and contributed to the difficulty which led to war.

In the religion of Jesus all men are brothers. We preach that, and we believe it, at least, theoretically. And yet, when it comes to actual practice, very often the church members, who are the avowed followers of Christ, are among the bitterest in their attitude towards others. If the world we are building now is to be a world of our dreams, the principle of universal brotherhood must receive more general and more concrete recognition than it does at the present time. Church people have a larger responsibility resting on them than might sometimes appear. Certainly if they took their religion seriously, if they practised what they believe, all the social ills of our day would be on the way out, and wars would soon become a thing of the past.

Prejudice in our western civilization is not, however, confined to race. It has a very definite class connotation. Here we set class against class. And those of one class are bitterly at odds with those of another. While political self seekers play upon these for their own benefit. In a sound society, a society where love, and brotherhood is practised by men and women, would result in tendencies to war against each other with determination, even class differences are exercised in a well ordered society.

When Peter and John began their ministry of healing in Samaria were approached by one Simon who offered them money if they would show him how to do the things which they were doing. He discover, as many have done since, that there are some things for which cannot be bought. In the religious men have been known to offer for a man's vote, powerful positions are brought to bear on politicians through lobbies and pressure groups. And even in church circles a gold pro quo has often been demanded for favors. But these things not be bought. In the religion of the Mount, great men, those who were offered, and He refused through the ages since then have been those who, refusing the easy Quislings, have gone to the stake, faced the firing squad, or gone into exile rather than submit to the ridicule of the world, whose good will they were not willing rather than sell their souls. Whatever of progress, whether political or christian, advance has been made, has been brought about through the years, has been made possible as a result of these pioneers, these visionaries, those men of strong character.

The heart of the whole matter is found in the Golden Text. "Look not up your eyes, and work in order that they are white, already to harvest." Never, in our day, was the text more applicable, never were opportunities, for the church and for the individual so many, as at the present time. The challenge so insistent, the stakes so high, or fateful.

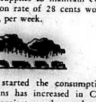
"My husband is away so much I want a parrot for company. Does this one use rough language?"

"Lady, with this bird in the house you'd never miss your husband!"

THE STORY BEHIND MEAT RATIONING

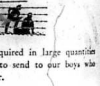
Food is a weapon of war, and we must share our supplies with those who are fighting to keep the war from our shores. After all special wartime demands are taken care of, only one half of the meat produced in Canada will be available for ordinary domestic consumption at home.

Meat supplies for our Armed Forces must be maintained at all costs.



Great Britain has to depend more and more on Canada for supplies to maintain even its present low ration rate of 28 cents worth of meat per person, per week.

Since the war started the consumption of meat by civilians has increased in Canada. Great defense projects such as the Alcan Highway and the Shipshaw Power Development have created new and large demands for meat in areas where practically no demand existed before.



Canned meat is required in large quantities by the Red Cross to send to our boys who are prisoners of war.

Places like Newfoundland and the West Indies, which previously secured their meat from other sources—must now depend to a great extent on Canada.

The many extra ships of the United Nations now calling at Canadian ports, must be furnished with meat.

RATIONING IS INTELLIGENT FORESIGHT — INTELLIGENT PLANNING

Coupon rationing is the only way of ensuring equal sharing of the meat available for civilian consumption in Canada. Those with lots of money will not get more than their share—and those with less money will be assured of getting their fair share.

Rationing will help prevent local meat shortages such as occurred last year from becoming widespread and continuous throughout the whole Dominion. The incentive for panic-buying which empties butcher shops early in the day, will be eliminated.

THE MEAT RATION WILL BE AMPLE FOR HEALTH AND NUTRITION

Fortunately, our meat production in Canada has increased. So, although only half our production will be available for civilian use, it wil mean a reduction of only about 15% to 20% in the average household consumption.

The proposed ration of 2 lbs. (carcass weight) per person, per week, has been approved by the country's leading food and nutrition authorities, as ample for the health and nutrition standards of everyone—regardless of age or occupation.

ADDRESS BY MR. MILTON

On Tuesday afternoon a representative of the Canadian Institute for the Blind called at the Tamworth Continuation School. In a brief address to the teachers and pupils, Mr. Milton gave an interesting account of the work of the Institute. Its founding dates from the first World War, 1918. Blind soldiers, who had been helped at St. Dunstan's, in England, on returning to Canada found that there was no school for blind adults. So, through the efforts of Col. Baker, the Canadian Institute, in Toronto, now is doing a wonderful work in service to the blind. They are taught to read the Brailles type, to operate a typewriter, to weave make brooms, brushes and aprons. They also learn to overcome the handicap. Four hundred and one blind persons in Canada are self-supporting. Most industrial plants can employ three. In Canada the number of registered blind is 12,600. Much is being done in the prevention of blindness. Of those registered, 2,000 need not have been blind. In the Napanee district the number of blind is 24.

As in former years it was arranged to hold an annual tag day. Miss Jean Courneya was appointed Convener, and a committee meeting was held the following day to arrange for the boxes and tags. The members of the committee are Doug. Ryan, Valorie Allison, Gladys Renaud, Betty Mitchell, Shirley Mitchell, Verne Wagar. The Tamworth, Brinsville and Marlbank districts will be included in the canvass.

In referring to Mr. Milton's address, the Principal, Mr. Miller, spoke of the sincerity, courage and resourcefulness of the speaker, who has been blind since the age of 11. Mr. Milton thanked the girls who had assisted in the tag day last year, when a collection of $20.00 had been made.

Marlin acted as chairman, and also conducted the auctioning of the large number of nicely decorated boxes. Coffee was served by the committee in charge. Several selections of music were given by Mr. W. Henderson and Verna and E. Badgley. Amount made, $15.64.

"The Poem" was recited by Lillian Burd. The offering was taken by Bruce Somerville and Paul Burd. The address on "Mother" was well given by Mrs. Seaton and was much enjoyed by a large congregation. As the close the service a beautiful flower service, honouring mothers, was conducted. Mrs. W. P. Allen, the oldest mother present, occupied the chair of honor. Mrs. Allen will be 77 years of age this month. The following junior girls and boys of the Sunday School, Joyce and Edna Benn, Dorothy and Madeline Young, Yvonne York, Nellie Simchcomb, Ray Young, Bobby Stout, and Gordon Holler, each said a verse and placed a wreath on a flower pot, which was then presented to Mrs. Allen, with the best wishes of the congregation for a happy birthday. Much credit is due Mrs. W. G. Burd for her efforts in making this Mothers' Day service such a success. The collection, amounting to $5.90, was in aid of the Religious Education Council.

Confusion Develops Over Observance Victoria Day

Ottawa. Some confusion is developing over the observance or non-observance this year of May 24. Many inquiries are being made.

By an Order - in - Council last September, suggested by the Labor Department, Victoria Day was not abolished as a holiday but its observance, as between employer and employee, was done away with for the duration. Later it was eliminated as a bank holiday.

Now, as the former holiday approaches, a number of cities including Ottawa, Toronto and Hamilton are proclaiming its observance, whereas, under the Federal order, there would be no observance.

Several large employers in war and other industries are asking for rulings as to what is their position with the Dominion Government ordering one thing and the municipalities another. No change at the Ottawa end is indicated. Parliament will sit on May 24 as usual and this year the army of Government employees will work — unless the order is modified.

One of the main objections is that for 106 years in Canada May 24th has been the first "out of door" holiday of the year. After the most strenuous winter for half a century it is urged that it will be missed this year more than usual.

No one in Britain is making a profit out of the war. Excess profits are taxed 100 per cent (with a small refund promised after the war). Income Tax is at the rate of 50 per cent. Surtax starts on income of $8,000 a year, and brings the rate up to 97½ per cent on all income over $80,000.

Scholarship Won By Granddaughter Mr. Albert Bartlett

The following article about Nancy Wales Bartlett was copied from the East High School Journal, Rochester, N.Y., and was sent to her grandfather in Napanee, Mr. Albert Bartlett.

"We are pleased to announce that our pupil, Nancy Wales Bartlett, has been awarded the Rush Rhees Prize Scholarship at the University of Rochester, N.Y.

The Rush Rhees Scholarship is granted only every four years and carries a stipend of $500 for four years. It is a great honour to receive it, as it is awarded on the basis of high scholastic ability, character and leadership ability. Miss Bartlett was interviewed on Tuesday, April 27th by the committee and final announcement was made at the Alumnae dinner on Sunday night, May 2nd.

One of the stipulations of the scholarship is that the winner must live on the campus.

WEDDING BELLS

WALSH — CRAIGEN
The marriage of Miss Sadye Craigen, Toronto, Ontario, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Craigen, Newburgh, Ontario, to Staff Sergeant George F. Walsh, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Walsh, Rochester, N.Y., took place in Blessed Sacrament Church, on Oxford Street, Rochester, N.Y. at 10:00 o'clock on Saturday morning, May 1st.

The Right Reverend Thomas Connors performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride wore a tailored wool Chartreuse suit with matching accessories and a corsage of gardenias. The matron-of-honor, Mrs. William Buffan, sister of the bride, wore a grey wool suit with navy accessories and a corsage of red roses. Mr. Louis Schneider, of Rochester, N.Y., was best man.

Following the ceremony the wedding breakfast was served at Locust Hill Country Club. The reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Buffan, 46 Rowley Street, Rochester.

The bridegroom is a member of the United States Army Air Corps and is stationed at Florida, where the couple will later make their home.

Magistrate's Court

George Derrett, Havelock, who is employed in Brockville, was arrested about 2:00 a.m., on Sunday, May 9, on a charge of being intoxicated while in charge of a motor car. He appeared in the Magistrate's Court on Monday afternoon, where he pled guilty to the charge. The Magistrate sentenced him to seven days in gaol, impounded his car for three months, and ordered him to pay $17.50 and costs.

Constable Cook discovered Derrett on the market, in charge of the car. In attempting to arrest Derrett he backed his car into another car, damaging the fender of the latter.

Paul Blute pled guilty in the Magistrate's Court on Monday, to driving a car while intoxicated and also to careless driving. On the first charge he was sentenced to serve seven days in gaol and his car was impounded for three months. Costs in this case, payable by Mr. Blute, amounted to $20.00. On the careless driving charge Blute was fined $5.00 and costs of $13.50.

Constable Morden, in his evidence, stated he was called to an accident on the Deseronto Road, west of Napanee, on Saturday evening, where he said that Blute while driving eastward, had crashed into a hydro pole, breaking it off. Constable Morden stated Blute was intoxicated and was later examined by the gaol physician, who found him under the influence of liquor.

Gordon Sagriff, Napanee, was sentenced to serve three months in gaol last Monday, for being intoxicated in a public place. The case against Sagriff was the fourth of its kind in the past few months.

In the huge raid on Cologne on May 30, 1942, the bombers employed, which numbered over 1,000, were all British made.

WEDDING BELLS

HUGHES - McKEOWN
A very pretty early spring wedding was solemnized Saturday, May 1st, at 12 o'clock, at the bride's home when Ellen Ordacle, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Ross McKeown, Newburgh, became the bride of Robert Augustine Grant, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hughes, of Kingston. Rev. H. B. Herrington officiated.

The dark-haired bride looked lovely as she entered the room on the arm of her father. She was beautifully attired in a white street-length dress of moussoline-de-soie with inserts of Irish lace. Her tulle veil caught with a wreath of orange blossoms was worn by her mother on her wedding day, and she carried a large bouquet of American Beauty Roses, Baby's Breath, and Fern.

Miss Helen Hughes of Kingston, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid and wore a street-length dress of blue moussoline-de-soie and carried a nosegay of pink sweet peas and fern.

The groom was attended by Mr. Robert Weese, Centreville, cousin of the bride. The Wedding March was played by Mrs. Robin Fluke, Newburgh, who also played softly during the signing of the register.

Immediately after the ceremony a wedding dinner was served the guests. The table was beautifully decorated with pink and white streamers, caught with a wedding bell and centred with a three-tier wedding cake.

The gift to the bridesmaid was a gold bracelet; to the best man a gold tie and collar clip; to the organist a cut glass fruit dish.

Later, amid showers of rice and confetti, the bride and groom left for Toronto and Ottawa, the bride travelling in a smart navy tailored trifocine suit with navy accessories.

Upon their return they will reside at Newburgh.

ELLIS - ELLIS
A quiet wedding was solemnized at the Manse Parsonage, Napanee, on Tuesday, May 4th, when Mary Wilford Ellis was united in marriage to Edith Jennetta Ellis, both of Belmont Township, Peterborough, Ont. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. A. C. McCallum. Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Van Allen, of the Sand Hill district, Napanee, signed the register.

The newly married couple will reside at Peterborough, where the groom carries on farming operations.

GREEN - BONE
A quiet wedding was solemnized at the home of Rev. R. D. Spencer at Camden East, on Saturday, May 1st, at 8:00 p.m., when the Rev. Mr. Spencer united in marriage Evelyn Bone, daughter of Mrs. Raymond Miracle, and Gordon Wesley Green, son of Mr. Levi Green, and the late Mrs. Green all of Shannonville.

The bride looked lovely in a street-length dress of Queen's blue, with matching accessories.

The bride was attended by Mrs. James Green, who wore a Royal blue dress with matching accessories. Mr. James Green, brother of the groom, was best man.

After the ceremony the bride and groom left on a motor trip to Eastern Ontario. On their return they will reside in Shannonville.

The latest British bombers, the Stirling, Halifax and Lancaster, carry heavier loads of bombs than any other bombers in service in the world. The Stirling can carry eight tons of bombs — much more than even the bomb load of the huge American Boeing Flying Fortress.

NEWS ITEMS ABOUT MEN AND WOMEN IN THE ARMED FORCES

Mrs. James Davis received a telegram for Mother's Day from her son, Bruce, H.M.C.S. Cornwallis, Halifax, saying he is still in hospital, but much better, and hopes to be out soon.

Selby United Church Mother's Day Services

On Sunday, May 9th, Mother's Day was fittingly observed, both in the Sunday School and in the evening service. In the Sunday School, with 175 present, the prepared program was followed, with all taking part. An exercise, entitled "Our Mothers", was very nicely presented by members of the Mission Band. The story, told by Mrs. D. Weese, was very interesting; also the special number of instrumental music given by Mr. Geo. McKnight and Mr. Homer Jackson was very much enjoyed. The concluding number of the special program, entitled, "Tell Mother I'll be There", was contributed by the Sunday School choir, and provided a very appropriate closing.

In the evening a large congregation, approximating 200, assembled, paying tribute to "Mother". The special music included three numbers, which were impressively rendered by the Grandmothers Choir, including a beautiful solo by Mrs. Will Jackson. An added feature of the service was the baptism of the infant sons of Mr. and Mrs. James Vankoughnet and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Nugent. The pastor's message was based upon St. Matthew, 20th chapter, verses 20, 21, emphasizing the importance of praying mothers.

RAY MOORE DIED SUDDENLY ON FRIDAY

Ill only a few hours, after being stricken with coronary thrombosis Raymon Moore died at his home Richard Street, early last Friday morning. On the evening before he and his wife had attended a dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Walters, at the Superior Restaurant and at that time was apparently in his usual state of good health. About 7 a.m. on Friday, he became ill and died about 7.00 a.m.

The late Mr. Moore had been a resident of Napanee nearly all, his lifetime. He was born in Idaho Springs, Colorado, about 50 years ago, but came to Napanee with his mother, the late Mrs. Helen Herring Moore when about two years old, following the death of his father, H. N. Moore.

He attended Napanee schools and when a young man he was employed by the Seymour Power Company. Together with Bert Beaubien and P. U. Laidley, two other employees of the same company, he enlisted on August 12th, 1914, with the 3rd Field Battery, Cananoque and was on active service for the duration of the First Great War. He was gassed at Paschendaele, after which he was sent to England where he acted as instructor on Lewis guns for a year. He returned to Canada in January, 1919, and immediately took a position with the Hydro Electric Power Commission in Napanee, and since then had been one of the most valued employees of the Commission. Part of his work consisted of meter reading and in that capacity he became well known to a great many people, both in Napanee and the surrounding district. He had a keen sense of humor and a genial manner which made him popular with all who knew him.

In June 1919 he married Lucy Clancy, who survives him, together with a twin son and daughter, Billy, who has been overseas for two and a half years with the 4th Light Anti-Aircraft Battery, and Miss Helen, at home. He also leaves two brothers, in Napanee; George and Charles, a brother-in-law, Harry Clancy in Ottawa, and a nephew, Kenneth Moore.

His funeral was conducted by the Venerable Archdeacon R. J. Dumbrille, rector of St. Mary Magdalene's Church, of which Mr. Moore had been a lifetime member. The service was held at his late residence and interment was made in River view Cemetery. The pall-bearers were Messrs. Bert Beaubien, John Hayes, Harold Derby, Earl Loucks, George Reid and Mel Lowry.

The Late Mrs. T. D. Scrimshaw

After an illness of three years, Mrs. T. D. Scrimshaw died on Tuesday, May 4th, at the home of her son, Leo Scrimshaw, Newburgh Rd. Mrs. Scrimshaw had been a resident of Napanee since 1905, when with her husband and two sons she moved to the town, from Gretna. Before her marriage she was Ena Catherine Fields, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Fields. She was born about 72 years ago at Gretna and lived there until her removal to Napanee.

Since coming to Napanee, Mrs. Scrimshaw was actively associated with her husband in the grocery business and after his death, with her son until her health failed.

She is survived by two sons, Roy in New York City, and Leo in Napanee, and by one sister, Mrs. John E. Lee, of Long Island, Dowland.

Her funeral was conducted at the residence of her son, on Thursday afternoon, by the Rev. D. McLellan, minister of Grace United Church. Interment followed at River view Cemetery. The pallbearers were Messrs. Fred Bunnett, Milford Hawman Fitchett, John Porter, Harold Johnston and G. F. Smith.

The Late Mrs. Walter Plumley

Mrs. Walter Plumley died last Thursday, May 6th, at Kingston General Hospital, where she had been a patient for three weeks. She had been in ill-health for the past two years and was removed to the hospital when her condition became serious.

Mrs. Plumley was born at Strathcona, about 52 years ago and was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John T. Howell. Following her marriage she had resided in Napanee.

She is survived by her husband, one son, Clarence of Kingston, and two daughters, Dorothy, Mrs. Harry Clark, and Ruth, Mrs. Jack O'Grady, both of Kingston. She also leaves three sisters, Mrs. A. Cunningham and Mrs. J. P. Ferris, Kingston, and Mrs. Thomas Wood, Manitoba.

Her funeral was conducted at her late residence, Mill Street, Sunday afternoon, by Rev. C. D. McLellan, minister of Grace Church, which Mrs. Plumley had attended for many years. Interment followed at Riverview cemetery.

The bearers were Messrs. R. I. Wales, Fred Thompson, Walter Storey, Jos. Lewis, Mark Maracle and William Kirkham.

The British people have gone in for war savings in a big way. Over $15,000,000,000 has already been taken, an average of $920 per head. Over a third of the total sum has been raised in small savings.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

This column is sponsored by the Regional Office, Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Questions on price control, ration regulations and other Wartime Prices and Trade Board rulings should be mailed to: Information Branch, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, Victoria Building, Brockville, Ont.

Q. What will we do for meat for our pet cat after the rationing of meat is introduced ?

A. I am afraid you will have to provide him (or her) with meat from your own rations. There are, however, various ways in which concentrated pet foods now available may be made more attractive and palatable and the R.P.T.A. will be glad to furnish such information upon application.

Q. I have recently moved my place of business to a new location. Do I have to apply for a new W.P.T. R. licence ?

No, but you should forward your licence card to the Director of Licensing, Ottawa, who will issue you with a new one, carrying the same number but with the new address recorded on it.

Q. We have now occupied a rented apartment for three months and have yet to receive any printed form from our landlord giving the terms of the lease. What course should we follow ?

A. If you will notify the nearest office of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, it will see that appropriate steps are taken.

Q. Is there no place in the consumer organization of the W.P.T. B. for men who do the shopping for their households and who also like to watch prices ?

A. While the Consumer Branch is primarily for women consumers and is administered by members of that sex, I am sure its director would welcome men as recruits and would be glad to have them as associate price-watchers.

Q. Is it true that people can be sent to jail for violation of the maximum prices regulations ?

A. Yes, the maximum penalty is a fine of $5,000 and two years in jail. Imprisonment has already been ordered in a number of cases.

Q. The restaurant that I patronize is still serving butter which its being asked for. Is that not against the law ?

A. Yes, no public eating-place is permitted to serve butter unless it is asked for, and then not more than one-third of an ounce at a serving. Report the circumstances to the nearest office of the Board.

I. O. D. E. MAY MEETING

Highlights of the May meeting of the U. E. L. Chapter, I.O.D.E. were the splendid report of the War Work accomplished during the past three months, and the comprehensive account of the annual meeting of the Provincial I. O. D. E. presented by the delegate of the Chapter, Mrs. D. R. Hall.

Mrs. Albert Lewis, convener of war work, reported the following sent to Provincial headquarters: 576 pairs socks, 82 scarves, 48 mufflers, 19 helmets, 16 caps, 25 pairs gloves, 11 pairs wristlets-mits, 39 pair pyjamas. For British clothing, 49 quilts, 4 layettes, 4 fur pieces, 5 afghans and 116 other garments.

Mrs. Hall, reporting the annual meeting held in the Royal Connaught Hotel, Hamilton, stated that over 40 delegates were present from chapters throughout Ontario to hear the encouraging reports from all the provincial secretaries and conveners. The provincial president, Mrs. Ryerson Noel, outlined the work of the many departments of the Order, emphasizing in particular the appeal of the naval authorities for assistance in the adoption of ships, and asked the members of the Chapter to adopt the "Sailors of Canada's navy."

Educational work has greatly increased, and over $17,000 was spent on this work by I. O. D. E. Chapters this year. The Education Committee reported 3875 immigrants admitted to Canada this year, many of whom were welcomed by I. O. D. E. groups in various communities.

"Mrs. Consumer", — Miss Byrne Hope Sharpe, Director of Consumer Branch of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, paid a visit to the convention, and gave many helpful information about rationing, and the great need for conservation of essential foods. To the delegates she said : "Do not give your ration to anyone except in your own household," and further, "Work for today and think how to-morrow, for to-morrow must be with us for all time."

The war work of the Order has grown to gigantic proportions, and the following figures will give some idea of its extent. During the past 105 days the Chapters conveners contributed, as well as 9,642 ditty bags, 11,213 knitted articles, 2,288 leather jerkins, and fur-lined, parkas, and many pairs of mine-sweeper mitts. 807,000 articles were sent to distressed British civilians. A Sturricane Fighter plane was purchased, and Sister Dominion, Australia, and Ontario chapters contributed a large part of the cost. Contributions were also made to many other war funds. Mrs. Hall, who is convener of the Ex-Service Men's Committee, reported visits to Veterans and help given to dependents. A plea was made for help for re-establishment into civilian life of men returning from the present conflict.

Dr. Charlotte Whitton gave a brilliant address on "The Empire and Humanity" in which she reviewed the History of Britain, dealing with the British love of freedom, instinct for fair dealing, and sense of responsibility for the helpless.

Mrs. Webster, on behalf of the Chapter, thanked Mrs. Hall for the fine account of this annual meeting, and expressed appreciation of the fact that the Regent had attended as delegate of this chapter.

Announcement was made of the National Annual Meeting to be held in Edmonton from May 26th to June 4th. It was decided to appoint the Provincial President as delegate representing this Chapter.

A national plan has been proposed whereby each chapter of the I. O. D. E. willing to do so, will adopt a ship in the Canadian Navy, and will send the members of the crew food parcels and extra comforts. It was unanimously decided that we request the committee in charge to assign to this chapter, the Corvette H.M.C.S. Napanee.

$350,000 FIRE HITS KINGSTON

CHINA STORE SWEPT IN NIGHT BLAZE

Damage estimated at $350,000 was caused Monday by Kingston's worst fire in 29 years, flames sweeping the Mahood china shop and causing smoke and water damage to adjacents buildings.

The fire started about midnight in the front section of the Mahood store, where damage to stock alone was estimated at $140,000, and quickly spread through the building. The roof, the second and third storey floors and the rear wall of the building collapsed, but firemen escaped injury.

Seven lines of hose were in use all night fighting the blaze and one was still in action during the morning as smoke continued to rise from the debris.

Stores adjacent to the china shop which were damaged were the Veale Shoe Store, Tip Top Tailors, Lindsay Piano Co. and the Princess Cafe.

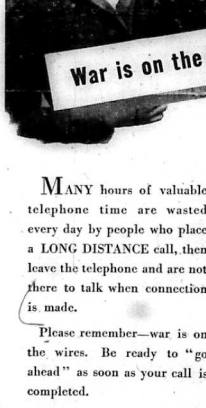
"Oh yes, Mr. Jones called you, but he's not in his office now"



War is on the Wires, Mr. Jones

HERE ARE SOME WAYS YOU CAN HELP:

1. Keep all your telephone calls as brief as you can.
2. Don't call Information for numbers listed in the directory.
3. Make only essential local and long distance calls.
4. When possible, give the number of the distant telephone you are calling.
5. If the operator can't complete your call promptly, stay within reach of your telephone, ready to answer when it comes in.

MANY hours of valuable telephone time are wasted every day by people who place a LONG DISTANCE call, then leave the telephone and are not there to talk when connection is made.

Please remember—war is on the wires. Be ready to "go ahead" as soon as your call is completed.

"SEEMS I CAN'T SAVE ANYTHING.."

WE MET on Main Street. Jim had his usual ready smile, even when he got telling me how hard up he was.

"Seems funny," he said, "I'm earning more these days, but I just can't seem to keep it.

"Taxes, Victory Bonds and all those other things coming off my pay."

He paused, then went on slowly.

"At least it seems as though I can't save anything. Actually, of course, those war bonds are my savings. I'm glad I've salted away a few of them. And you can count me in on the Fourth Victory Loan too!"

VICTORY BONDS

WE'RE NOT DOING OUR SHARE

THE Sale of Victory Bonds in this community since the opening of the Fourth Victory Loan has not been encouraging.

We are not buying the new Victory Bonds in anything like the way we should be buying them.

A quota was set up for this community — and from present indications we will not meet that quota.

The quota is a modest one, too—an amount that should be easy to meet—a quota that can be met without inconvenience to any if each one does what he should do.

As a matter of fact, there should be no quotas in connection with the sale of Victory Bonds. The war is a matter of life and death. We haven't won the war yet. If we give the matter proper thought each one of us will buy Victory Bonds with all our available cash—and as much more—on the instalment plan—as we can pay for in the next six months. And we will scrimp to save to do this.

NO STEAK... just a seagull. NO COFFEE... just putrid water. NO HEAT... just a freezing wind to chill the bones!
That is Hardship!
Men forced down at sea know what hardship is. They know the tortures of thirst, of hunger and of utter helplessness. Our own airmen have tasted that hardship in the bleak Atlantic. British flyers have come through the ordeal in the North Sea. Eddie Rickenbacker and his six companions fought the "mad Pacific" for twenty-one days in Good-year life rafts. Yes, all these men know hardship.
We in Canada live in security and comfort... our fighting men live in danger and discomfort. We... all of us... can provide the money to "BACK THE ATTACK!" that's little enough, when we know that every dollar invested now brings added security to our loved ones and to our homeland!

At the same time the men employed in the industries now declared to be essential must register at an Employment and Selective Service Office not later than June 15th. If farm other essential employment is not immediately available for any men registering, they will be given permits to continue at their present jobs although these permits may be cancelled at any time when the men's services are needed for high priority jobs.

Mr. Mitchell points out that the present Order covers men employed in the restricted occupations in any four age and marital groups as follows: (a) Every man not in any year from 1917 to 1924 (inclusive) who has reached age 19; (b) every man born 1902 to 1916 (inclusive) who, at July 15th, 1940, was (i) unmarried, or (ii) widowed or judicially separated; or (iii) a widower without child or children; (c) every man born from 1902 to 1916 (inclusive) who, since July 15, 1940, has been divorced or judicially separated.

Although married men and men discharged from the Armed Forces after active service in the present war, if in the classes affected by the present Order, are required to register at an Employment and Selective Service Office, they will not be directed to alternative employment for the time being. This arrangement was also made applicable in the case of men affected by the First Order.

Once again the Minister of Labour has given assurance that men will not be directed to employment where the vacancies arise out of an industrial dispute, and that measures will be taken to ensure fair minimum earning for the class of work to which a man may be directed.

SERGT. AIR GUNNER REG. RICHMOND REPORTED MISSING

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Richmond, Tamworth, received a telegram from Ottawa during the week-end, stating that their son, Sergt. Air-Gunner Reginald Richmond had been reported missing in action. No further information was given.

After having arrived in England, he took two months further instruction, in Wales, after which he was moved to another station. About six weeks ago he spent a twelve-day leave with his brother, Bdr. Eldon Richmond, in Surrey, the latter having been Overseas for over three years. After this leave Sergeant Richmond was moved to another station, and has been on active service ever since.

CEILING IS PLACED ON NEW POTATOES

V

PRICES BOARD TO DEAL WITH POTATO SHORTAGE

Through the adoption of a policy not unlike that which was followed when supplies of creamery butter ran short last winter, the Prices Board hopes to bring speedy relief to the existing potato supply situation.

Word at the regional office of the Board is that, under the order which recently froze wholesale stocks of potatoes, steps have been already taken to move carlots of potatoes from the Maritime provinces into areas of shortage in Eastern Ontario and this movement will continue as long as stocks are available.

It is felt that this form of distribution under the auspices of the Board will furnish early and effective relief and make potatoes available in reasonable quantities where they have been in short supply.

In the distribution preferential treatment is being given areas in which potato stocks are extremely low, the Board acting upon reports received from both its representatives and members of the trade, which is co-operating in the movement.

In the Third Victory Loan, the County of Lennox and Addington raised the sum of $900,250. We were given an objective of $1,200,000 for the Fourth Loan and we were fearful that we could not reach so dizzy a height. The persistent efforts of our organizers, Mr. McPhee and Mr. Saunders, and the efforts of our voluntary workers and canvassers, however, enabled us to exceed that huge objective by a substantial amount. We are sure this magnificent result will hearten all those from our county who are now wearing the King's colours.

We extend to you our personal thanks.

FARM PAPER EDITOR TELLS EXPERIENCES ON TRIP TO ENGLAND

Was Guest Speaker at Holstein Breeders' Annual Banquet

The banquet hall of Argyll Lodge rooms was filled almost to capacity for the annual dinner of the Lennox and Addington County Holstein Breeders' Club, which was held last Wednesday evening, May 12th. The guest speaker was W. H. Porter, of London, Ont., editor of "The Farmers' Advocate," who spoke on "Six Weeks in the Danger Zone with the Bombers' Press." Entertainment was provided by members of the I.P.S., Desoronto.

Following the dinner which was prepared and served by the members of the Queen of Sheba Rebekah Lodge, L. H. McCaul, the president of the association, called on Dr. D. R. Hall, Mayor of Napanee, to extend a welcome to the guests on behalf of the town. Following his address of welcome, Dr. Hall made an urgent appeal to the guests to support the Fourth Victory Loan to the limit of their ability.

Jas. R. Henderson, Kingston, the president of the Provincial Holstein Association proposed a toast to the Holstein Cow and R. M. Holtby, the District Fieldman, responded to the toast.

MR. PORTER'S ADDRESS

Mr. Porter, who was one of twelve editors and journalists of Canadian papers who spent six weeks last year in England, described very vividly some of the things he had seen and the impressions made on him during his trip. Every facility was given the editors to see all branches of the service in action and to learn how Britain is carrying on under the war economy.

Speaking of agriculture in Britain, Mr. Porter said that the increased impetus given agriculture since the war broke out was only a means to an end, which is winning the war. War, he said, is predominantly the issue in Britain and all other issues are forgotten for the time being. Britons have put aside all else. They have temporarily set aside traditions, privileges, have forgotten for the time their treasures and have consecrated every effort and every resource to the prosecution of the war to a successful close.

Describing the trip by bomber across the ocean and back home, Mr. Porter said it took 14½ hours to go from Newfoundland to Britain and 19 hours to return to Canada. Mr. Porter predicted that before the war closes it is likely planes will be transporting troops and cargoes across the Atlantic. The possibilities of air travel after the war, he added, are incredible.

Mr. Porter paid a tribute to British humour which, he said, would go a long way toward helping to win the war. Regarding damage done by air raids, Mr. Porter said he considered it remarkable what hasn't happened to London. He was amazed to find so much of it standing and so much of the damage repaired and cleaned up. The same he said could not be said of the provincial towns, where he found much of the debris still lying about.

Mr. Porter and the other editors were allowed to visit naval units, the Canadian Army and the R. C. A. F. He was impressed by the evident strength of all branches and the alertness and keenness of the personnel. He was especially impressed with the Armoured Corps, and said that when the war is over thousands of young men will be coming back to civilian life trained expertly as mechanics and tradesmen.

Regarding General Macnaughton, Mr. Porter said he strongly favored the use of younger officers and was gradually replacing the older officers with young men. Macnaughton insists on the best armor and equipment and is determined to fight this war with armor, and not with men.

An especial plea was made by Mr. Porter for the friends in Canada of the men overseas to keep in touch with them by letter and every possible means. The men, many of whom have been away from home for over three years, are homesick and eagerly await the mail from home.

BOARD OF EDUCATION DEALS WITH SALARIES

The Napanee Board of Education at a meeting held last week decided to offer contracts to ten teachers on the present staff of the Napanee Collegiate and Vocational School and to reduce the present staff of the N.C.V.I. by one member from the present staff of twelve.

The Board also agreed to give a general increase of salaries to the Collegiate and Vocational teachers beginning September 1st and that a schedule of salary increases from a minimum of $100 with annual increases to $200 be adopted at the discretion of the Board.

The teachers of the school presented a request that consideration of increases in salaries be given by the Board in view of the increased cost of living.

The Board decided to fix the minimum salary for teachers in the Public Schools at $900 per annum, with the right to make allowances for experience in teaching and that no maximum salary be fixed for the public school teachers.

LEAGUE FORMED FOR SOFTBALL FOR NAPANEE AND DISTRICT

Will Use Gibbard Park For Games in Napanee

A well attended meeting of representatives from Deseronto and Napanee was held in The Gibbard Recreation Room, on Monday night, May 17, for the purpose of organizing a Softball League for this area.

It appears highly likely that an active league will get underway the first week in June, with four teams participating; perhaps even five teams entered. Games will be played two nights a week, both in Deseronto and at Gibbard Park, in Napanee.

Mr. H. J. Goodman, Y.M.C.A. Representative from Mohawk Camp, R. C. A. F., stated that the Station would center a team. A group from Deseronto, including Messrs. Wesman, Hough, Deslor and Green was present and entered a team, Mr. J. B. Hough being their representative on the committee. A large number of Gibbard representatives were present, and Mr. Pat Culhane was elected the Gibbard representative on the League Committee. Red Miller will represent on the committee a team to be entered by the 47th Battery. Mr. Leo Scrimshaw was elected to represent "the Town" on the committee, to endeavour to raise a town team, if feasible. If not possible, both Gibbards and the 47th Battery will add town players to their respective teams.

The first game will be played on June 2nd, with R.C.A.F. playing Gibbards, at Gibbard Park. Mr. Goodman mentioned that it was quite likely that the R. C. A. F. Band from Trenton would be in town for the occasion, as well as a detachment of Airmen from Mohawk Camp.

The committee will hold a meeting next Monday night at Gibbard's, to discuss further the matter and to draw up a schedule. Those interested in playing should see a representative of the league, at once, as teams are being enlisted. The committee is as follows:

J. B. Goodman, League President, Mohawk Camp.

J. B. Hough, League Secretary, Deseronto.

Pat Culhane, Gibbard Recreation Club.

Red Miller, 47th Battery.

Leo Scrimshaw, Napanee.

LONG OVERDUE

The efforts to establish compulsory education in Quebec are at last bearing fruit. It seems incredible to us that the reform should have been so long delayed. But opposition to the movement has been strenuous, persistent and up until the present, successful. Now, however, a Bill has been passed in the Provincial Assembly, by a vote of 29 to 12. This Bill has teeth in it, and overturns the previous proposal to make the Bill a permissive one. When the Bill was first introduced, an alternative suggestion was made, which would have left the local school boards free to adopt or defer the compulsory feature. This was finally defeated, and the Bill, in its original form, was adopted. It now goes to the Upper House where the Government majority will undoubtedly follow the lead of the Assembly. The new law requires the attendance at school of all children between the ages of six to fourteen, and abolishes the monthly fee of up to 50 cents in the elementary grades. Thus, education in Quebec becomes free and compulsory.

This decision has been long deferred. Education in Quebec has been so neglected, that it was a black spot on our national life. There have been powerful influences at work through the years, of a reactionary character. But now, at long last, the children of French Canadian parents will have an opportunity to develop their gifts and talents almost equal to those of other provinces. This should go a long way towards dispelling the suspicion and lack of unity between French-Canada and the rest of the country, which has had such a disruptive influence on our political life, heretofore.

THE VICTORY LOAN

The Fourth Victory Loan Campaign ended on Saturday, when the minimum objective of $1,100,000,000 was oversubscribed by nearly $200,000,000. This is an amazing achievement for a nation of only 13,000,000 population. It demonstrates two things. In the first place it shows that the Canadian people are prepared to "back the attack." They have done so to a generous extent. The number of people who bought bonds up until Saturday night was 1,085,124. This was an increase of 128,463 subscribers over the Third Victory Loan. The amount subscribed by individuals, apart from corporations, was $254,047,100.

The success of the loan further demonstrates that the people had the money to invest. Indeed it is quite probable that there is still a good deal of money in the savings banks which has not been touched. It is interesting for the novice in financial matters, to speculate as to where this money came from. A few years ago the scarcity of money was as great a mystery as is the present abundance.

While we may not be able to even guess where all the money comes from, at least, it should be crystal clear that the old orthodox theories of money and finance no longer prevail. Here we are in Canada with a million people withdrawn from productive enterprises, producing in money value more than twice as much as we produced in 1939. We used to assume that unless goods were sold at a profit they could not be sold at all. But now we are giving away the products of the farm, and the factory. We are giving the products of the factory to the Axis powers, in a form it is true they do not appreciate; we are giving our food to Great Britain and to Greece, and in spite of the fact that we are not getting paid for it, the nation was never as prosperous in its history. All of which goes to show that a successful economy does not have to be governed by the profit motive. We could just as easily, during the depression, have done what we are doing now, keep the factories going by giving away the things they produced, to the people who needed them. It all sounds fantastic, but we are doing it under one military necessity and will, in some form or other, have to do it in the future, if we are to avoid the errors and mistakes of the past.

INSIDE FRANCE

A letter smuggled out of France has recently been released by The World Over Press. It is an encouraging document which indicates that there are many in France, who have not bowed the knee to the Nazi Baal. The writer says that there is not a shadow of a doubt in nine-tenths of the people as to the outcome of the war. Dealing with the labour conscription, the letter says: "This conscription at the present time is of vital concern to us, and many see in it, with horror, the dreadful germ of a civil war of tomorrow. The fact is that the worker who is being forced to go (for the moment he is doing everything possible—hiding under a false name, seeking refuge abroad, going to the countryside to escape being taken) will harbor a hatred—and what a hatred — not only against the political instigators of these round-ups, but also against the local and national organizations which are encouraging the draft."

"I could write you," the letter continues, "a hundred letters about the magnificent solidity of the French people, which has never been more active than to-day. For it is no fairy story that a parish priest in N. hid and cared for a Polish family of six for a whole month without accepting a cent, a family which was threatened with deportation because of its religion. I know also that the people of a little village near Lyons, harbored over a period of several weeks a group of fifteen refugees from the North and from Belgium, who had good and sufficient reason to leave their homes. The villagers fed them, clothed them, gave them money and finally helped them across a certain frontier. And what do you say about the policemen of D. who, after having been obliged to arrest a Jewish couple who had five children, took two of the children to his home and is caring for them until the return of their parents.

"France is not dead, it is even less sick than some would have you believe. If you are skeptical I will tell you that the Vichy Government recently conducted a discreet inquiry for the purpose of finding out how much actual importance the Doriot movement has in the large cities of the Occupied Zone. Hoy-many adherents do you think this Fascist organization has, after two and half years of occupation in X. a city of 200,000 inhabitants ? Exactly 184, no more, no less."

This letter, if it gives anything like a fair picture of the attitude of the French people, augurs well for the future. When The United Nations make their attack on the fortress of Europe they will find millions of people ready and anxious to rise against their oppressors. Then these days of persecution, privation and hardship, the French people are coming to themselves. The tragedy is, as the letter quoted above points out, that when the day of liberation comes, the people will turn against the leaders who have betrayed their nation. The bloody scenes of the French Revolution may again be seen in Paris. It will be the irony of fate, indeed, if The United Nations shall have to step in and protect the French Quislings against the unleashed fury of the masses. Stranger things have happened.

IN A TIGHT SPOT

Mr. H. Nixon, recently elected leader of The Ontario Liberal Party, is in a rather tight spot. He resigned from the Ontario Cabinet on the grounds that no man should accept the Premiership without submitting himself to the public. Now he has been elected leader of the Liberal Party. To be sure, Mr. Conant has not resigned his position as Premier, but his resignation is expected at any time. When it is presented, Mr. Nixon will be called on to form a government. What will Mr. Nixon do ? To be consistent he would have to call an election, indeed preparations are under way just in case. On the other hand the Premier is in no mood for an election. Events of great moment are impending in Europe. Our Army, which has been in training for two years and a half, may soon be called on to act as the spearhead of an attack against the Axis powers. Anything which would divert public attention from the military scene, should be avoided, indeed, must be avoided. To hold an election while our boys were in the midst of a life and death struggle would not be tolerated by the voters in Ontario.

Just what Mr. Nixon will do when he finally assumes the position of leadership, is probably not known even to himself. He will be guided by events. At any rate, the position of prospective Prime Minister of Ontario under present circumstances, is not a very happy set to work to apply this "pull together" spirit, as he called it.

The question was could it last ? Bill's chance to prove it could came four months later when a disagreement between some of the men and the mine manager tied up the pit temporarily. The old Bill would have halfheartedly harangued the men, and if they didn't go back to work, he would have shrugged his shoulders and gone off on a 'bender' while events took their course. As it was then Tuesday, that would probably have meant that the men would not have resumed work till the following Monday.

This time Bill appealed to the men and urged them to go back to work. However, in a lot of bedheads and "pit lawyers' had had their say first, and the men refused to listen to Bill. He went home and decided to consult his wife and family. They had formed some similar problems in the past few months at home, maybe they would have some ideas. They did. The outcome was that Bill decided to call a special meeting at the union hall the following night—Wednesday. This would not only give him a better chance to talk to the men but it would also give him the time to talk to the mine grievance committee and get the united support of the more responsible element within the union.

The meeting went off like a dream. Instead of the usual three hours of cross purpose and bitter wrangling, Bill conducted the meeting in an orderly way. Everyone had their say and at the end it was one of the trouble makers who put the motion to resume work the next morning—Thursday. "All those in favour of the motion ? Contrary minded?" It was carried, unanimously.

It was a tired but happier Bill that told the family the news as they sat around the kitchen table that evening.

Bill had won a great victory for sound unionism.

WEAK LINKS IN HITLER'S CHAIN

Hitler's hurry — worry conferences with heads of states under his domination have brought him to the puppet Norwegian premier, Vidkun Quisling.

These parleys generally have been regarded as politico-military in nature and designed to serve a double purpose: (1) To advertise the creation of a "new order" for the European continent, which would offset the Allied aims promulgated at the Casablanca conference and at the same time would (2) act as a guide to obtain greater military assistance for the Reich at this critical juncture.

The Quisling confab is the fifth in line and it's reported safe to note that all of them have concerned areas which not only are losing prospects but are among the weakest links in Hitler's defensive chain. The previous talks have been with Mussolini, King Boris of Bulgaria, dictator Ion Antonescu of Rumania and Regent Nicholas Horthy of Hungary. Greece is said to be next in order.

Now all these countries are in the doubtful class on the Nazi dictator's list. Italy is shaking like a bowl of custard. There's bitter territorial rivalry among Rumania, Hungary and Bulgaria, and on top of that, both Hungary and Rumania are concerned over the casualties suffered by their troops on the Russian front. Norway, of course, is being kept in order by force of arms.

All in all, it would seem that the worried Fuehrer is determined to go with a "new order" and much with lightning as his defense against invasion-points and he must guard every one of them, from Norway round Southern Europe to the Balkans.

So far as concerns France, Belgium, Holland and Denmark, Hitler likely feels that his preparations are as good as he can make them. The Berlin radio has been bragging about the 1,628 miles of fortifications which the Nazis claim guard the Atlantic coast — and likely do, to a greater or less degree. It would be foolish to underestimate the strength of this "Great wall of China" which the Boche has erected along the sea.

Hitler's other crisis on the headache. Norway wouldn't listen to any "new order" and only awaits a chance to hang the German oppressor, finally, as a whole. Italy now has no use for him but is physically immobilized and is being kept going with a Nazi oxygen tank. The Balkans, which Berlin openly recognizes as a convenient invasion road for the Allies, present a real problem child.

The Rumanians are bitter over Hitler's award of part of their Transylvania territory to Hungary, and his bribery of Bulgaria with Rumanian Dobruja. Bulgaria is fearful of the displeasure of Russia and, while Boris chose to take his country into the Axis fold, many of the people are pro-Russian. Greece and Yugoslavia are being kept in hand by force of arms which the invaders dare not relax and, as already remarked, Rumania and Hungary want their troops withdrawn from the fighting front.

No wonder "our beloved fuehrer" spent his unhappy birthday locked down the law to a cringing Quisling.

Nazis Struggle To Conquer Manpower Shortage

BY SCOTT YOUNG
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London — Germany is facing a manpower shortage probably the most drastic in the history of warfare.

Reports reaching this country indicate that this greatest of all German's manpower crises may be too big to be solved by ruthless conscription of industry and exploitation of foreign labor.

Radio broadcasts from occupied and unoccupied parts of Europe and information sent out of Germany by neutral correspondents stress the urgency of the predicament.

It is estimated that Germany must call up at least 1,000,000 men to make her armed forces as strong as they were before the great offensives of 1942. It is known that these men can be found, in Germany and the fiefs. But it is also known that they are men who have escaped conscription so far because they occupy key posts. There are no qualified substitutes available.

Conscripts of Little Use

The most drastic conscription of labor from the occupied countries of Europe goes on, but the Germans are finding that even a type of labor has its vital limitations. These workers, from conquered lands — they are estimated at about 8,000,000 — are of little benefit. They take extensive supervision, and their efficiency generally is small. They lost scientific-like sabotaging their conquerors—Quisling Fleet and Air Chief Marshall Sir Richard Peirse, commander in India. They use vital food. Their usefulness in any type of work is recognized, but if Germany is to defend Germans to supply her manpower needs during this year which the Germans hope to make the most decisive year of the war, holes will be left in the nation's civilian structure which can only be filled by unwilling workers.

The back is against the wall.

It is estimated roughly that perhaps 2,000,000 persons in Germany are to be closed entirely by present methods, employ only about 90,000 persons, and the remaining 1,910,000 of affected shops, which employ about 4,000,000 persons, be reduced only about fifty per cent without causing serious disruption of essential services.

It is believed that by this weeding out of small retailers, by other consolidations, by economy and effort and by lengthening work weeks, 1-2 hours, men and medical-unfit women may be released to take the place of men in the Army, Navy and Air Force needs. Even then Germany will be of low quality for the jobs she has to fill.

To the United Nations, this is the most heartening aspect of the German home front—because apart from the food shortage, which shows no signs of reaching a stage which could be called vital, and apart from the disintegration of German family life caused by the immense losses in Russia, Germany is in fit and fighting shape. Comparable British, American and Russian officials are first to admit it.

The food ration for ordinary civilians is smaller than that in Britain, but the British know that their rations are adequate, could live and work on them for years and may have to before this year of action is finished. So the Germans probably have few worries on that score. In addition, German laborers received rations two or three times that of civilians, as her workmen, like her soldiers, are at least as well fed as those of any other European nation.

War production in Germany is believed to have reached its limit, but it is not a huge one and even terrific air attacks cannot destroy it permanently. Life is known of morale, but it is believed reasonably high. United Nations spokesmen constantly are underestimating the capacity of German civilians to keep their noses in this war. This may be mainly because of the preponderance of the dreadful economic conditions following their defeat in the First Great War. Nevertheless, that determination exists.

So, that is Germany's picture, and problem, in these weeks when the Western peoples, Russians and the rest of the free world wait with anticipation for Allied action on the Continent. How Germany meets this crisis and whether it will be met in time, may have an important bearing on the outcome of the war.

A Call To Homes

"If our homes can be truly Christian, then the influence of that spirit will assuredly spread like leaven through all the aspects of our common life, industrial, social and political."

In Queen Elizabeth's speech to the women of the Empire on April 11th, every word rings true. Here is a woman's heart through whose life hundreds of people walk each day, whose home is the heart of an Empire. She knows that the standards of the home are also the national standards of living.

The First Lady in the land sounds a note which challenges every home, every family, to give more than they have given, to apply, as never before, their personal way of living. She shows Queen's unerring sense of victory and lasting peace depend upon courage, hard work and sound family life; that the future depends upon the strength of our spiritual life. Her words inspire us to keep now to produce in our homes the teamwork and the family spirit which will be the foundations of unity among nations.

The Queen's speech puts before us uncompromisingly that homes are the centre of national life, the place where the nation learns how to live together. To win the war we need sound homes; they are production centres for the spirit that wins. After all, the early settlers of Canada drew faith and courage from their homes, and home building was the foundation of nation building.

This speech, with its simplicity and its keen sense of authority and courage, expresses the best in our Christian tradition, the best for which we are fighting. The spirit of Queen Elizabeth's words applies not only to Windsor Castle or to Buckingham Palace. It must and can be the spirit of every home in the Empire, so that every farm, every fishing village and mining community, produces not only the manpower but the will power to fight for Canada and build the new world.

Experts See Odds Against Defeat Of Hitler In 1943

BY HARRISON SALISBURY
British United Press
Staff Correspondent

Hitler can be beaten in 1943, but the odds are strongly against it, a synopsis of the best military and economic opinion in London showed recently.

This realistic view is based on the hard facts of war—the fighting experience of Britain, the United States and Russia that against the Wehrmacht, an assessment of Germany's potential war material reserves and a factual analysis of the number of troops Hitler still has available for opposing an Allied invasion of Europe.

Experts are inclined to think that the jokers in the wooden shoe may be Allied air power and the Red Army's overwhelming power, but at the same time they point out that Nazi air power did not "break Britain—a much more compact target than vast Axis Europe—and even the Russian offensive did not quite even the scores in 1942 or 1943 for the Nazis' summer victories.

Allied combat experience largely has been confined, to Africa, where it is noteworthy that German Marshal Erwin Rommel's strength seldom, if ever, exceeded six German divisions plus a fluctuating number of Italians.

Against this comparatively little strength, Rommel has managed to keep the Allies at bay, whereas the Allies for five months against forces which numerically were larger than his.

For the Tunisian showdown Rommel is believed to have had about eight divisions, against which the Allies massed two full armies — the British Eighth and Eighth — stiffened with four American divisions plus the American Fifth Army held in strategic reserve.

These figures are most revealing when placed beside the forces Germany has available for the defence of Europe. Best estimates indicate that Germany and Italy have between 300 and 325 divisions—probably 4,500,000 to 5,000,000 fighting men. In addition, they have possibly fifty satellite divisions numbering roughly 750,000 troops who probably are able to stand front-line duty plus considerable others lacking equipment and experience.

If the Germans went on the defensive, the eastern front probably could be held with 150 divisions, plus a score of satellite divisions. That would leave 150 to 175 to the Dnieper line to meet the front sufficiently to maintain the current ratio of one division to one line fighting.

It therefore is believed that the Axis has available something like 150 divisions — roughly 2,000,000 men — which would be available for opposing the Allied invasion.

In view of the time it has taken to cope with Rommel in Africa, it is difficult to find any parallel for predicting greater speed and greater strength against the Nazis in Europe.

Though it obviously is true that there never would be an all-out combat with the whole strength of Nazi divisions, there is strong evidence that the German army is maintaining strategic reserves in Germany, as well as south Germany, Austria and Bohemia, prepared to rush to the Balkans if the Allies land there, to Italy in the event that Italy is invaded, to France, Norway or elsewhere.

By the maintenance of central reserves, Germany not only is able to shift troops speedily along interior lines, but also is able to oppose to several fronts if need be.

On the other hand, the point remains that Allied air power can smash up Germany, to such an extent that it no longer can maintain the Wehrmacht fighting machine that the Red Army may begin its offensive against, with the Allied landings.

SMOKE SCREENS PANAMA CANAL

Smoke — a billowing, black curtain of dense vapor that is to protect the Panama Canal — and its approaches in a few minutes — has become a primary line of defence in the protection of the strategic waterway linking the Atlantic and Pacific oceans.

The smokescreen has been in the development for months and is reaching a maximum of effectiveness.

At the first sign of danger, Panama's seven strategically placed smoke screen generators flash into action. Each is manned by a crew of 10 men in hand. They touch off the generators which are set out in positions suited to the terrain and prevailing winds. Smoke is generated at the rate of 100 pounds per minute. By the time the canal seems to be completely blanketed with smoke, any enemy aviator who might have noticed any unusual combination of events would be unable to succeed in penetrating the smoke to discover defenses:—

Picket planes would be close enough up to "welcome" the enemy and would have the advantage of knowing the surroundings.

A vast concentration of artillery, craft, guns and searchlights would be on hand for dive-bombing or a torpedo attack on canal locks. The enemy would not know he was entering a pall of smoke, hiding a formidable array of balloons described by authorities as denser than London's.

Also awaiting the enemy somewhere in the smoke would be the nets guaranteed to rip planes to pieces.

All of this would be amazing to the enemy and he wouldn't have the slightest assurance he was aiming anywhere near his target. Most hazardous of all, would be lost in the smoke.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON, MAY 23RD, 1943

BIBLE TEACHINGS ON WINE'S DECEITFULNESS

Lesson Text: Proverbs 20: 1; 23: 29-35. Matthew 24, 45-51.

The writer received a letter, yesterday, from Calgary. It was not from a sailor, an airman, or a soldier. It was from a lady who wrote to tell all his life in Cairo and is quite us how wonderful it was that misht be called the Eastern customs. Well, this is what he wrote: "I would not pass for a prohibitionist, but the excess drinking and disgusting scenes are a consequence, have almost made me one. The authorities harp on saving shipping space, but there must be a terrific shipload of liquor shipped here, that could carry something more useful. All the beer here now is American and Canadian, that from a man who is not himself a drinker, but has stern condemnation, not only of the liquor traffic, but of the way in which our precious ships are being diverted to intoxicating liquor over thousands of miles, when we need the space so badly for munitions.

The world has quite a lot to say about drinking. A man who has not the sense to control his language. The Bible, however, lived and wrote in a simple, quiet day. The form of organized life was far removed from the speeded-up, motorized civilization we have to-day. Hence the Biblical writers would say were they alive to-day, hard to imagine. And yet we may be sure they would condemn it more vigorously than they do, all the evils contingent upon drinking, and drunkenness.

We are in the midst of the most devastating and destructive war the world has ever known. We are learning to do without a lot of things we once thought essential. But sometimes, liquor has a preferred position. It is about the last thing to be rationed, and yet the liquor interests have been the first and only ones to complain. We have been rationed on sugar, tea, coffee, meat, and nobody has uttered a word of protest, but the moment there was a reduction was made in the amount of alcoholic beverages available, the Press all across Canada carried full advertisements of protest. Be that their everlasting credit that the government refused to be moved by such propaganda.

The Bible here, in this lesson, underlining the deceitfulness of wine. It is never out of date to preach a phase of indulgence, especially to youth. Liquor promises exhilaration, exactments. Quiets courage, at a time. The writer says liquor is a mocker. It is a deceiver. It is a robber. Liquor promises exhilaration, but it enslaves. The exhilaration which it offers is followed by the depressed spirits of the morning after. The excitement is followed by more and good times by misery. Automobile accidents, shameful divorce cases, to say nothing of sin and laxity, are the natural results of indulgence in intoxicating liquor.

The New Testament passage which has been set along with the one in Proverbs as a part of the lesson for study, merely emphasizes what the former passage teaches. In a world like this, with so many people seeking a worker for a position of authority, who has nothing to do with a drinking man. Engineers on the railroad, bus drivers, those responsible for operating planes, are not considered fit persons to be in charge of the lives of others when they use intoxicants. It follows that in all walks of life, indulgence in intoxicating liquor is a wonderfully harmful practice.

SOUND UNIONISM

You can't help liking Bill. He's one who enjoys life to the full and doesn't believe in doing things by halves — a fact that his family of twelve bears out. At the ripe age of forty-four his weekend 'benders' stretched from one Saturday night to another. His wife said of him, "I'd reached the stage when I just didn't care whether he came back from the mine or not."

Yet underneath all this Bill had real capacities for leadership. He was elected President of his local union and was also one of the men's leaders in a slowdown that affected the whole industry.

Such was the fellow who walked one evening into a performance of "Pull Together Canada," the movie for industrial teamwork. One scene in particular gripped him. It dramatized the bottlenecks in industry today and showed how teamwork could be built when both management and labour admitted their own faults and put all their cards on the table. Bill was a more sober man when he left the theatre that night, and he

Although your new home is not far away, your kind hospitality and willing help will be greatly missed in our neighborhood. It is our cherished hope, however, that your friendship will still continue in the coming years.

Friendship is a chain of gold,
Shaped in God's all perfect mold.
Every link a love that's made a tear,
A grip of the hand, a word of cheer;
As steadfast as the ages roll,
Binding closer soul to soul.
No matter how far or heavy the load,

Sweet is the journey on Friendship Road.

We ask you to accept this chair as a slight token of the esteem of your old neighbors and with it our best wishes for continued good health and happiness.

Signed on behalf of the community.

SPECIAL COUPONS FOR CANNING SUGAR TO COME BY MAIL

The Local Ration Board said today that when applicants for canning sugar receive by mail the special coupons which will be issued to them for the purchase of such sugar, they will also receive a letter setting forth the existing sugar supply situation and explaining why it has been necessary in numerous instances to reduce the quantities of sugar for which application was made.

It was recently stated by the Sugar Administrator that it had been possible to provide 100,000,000 pounds of sugar for use in this year's home canning programme, but that this would not be sufficient to fill all the applications that had been received, these totalling almost 210,000,000 pounds. Accordingly, a reduction in many of the quantities asked for had to take place.

All those applying for canning sugar should receive their special coupons by June 1st when the official "canning season" will begin. The sugar so obtained must be used only for the specific purpose outlined by the Ration Administration.

In the Garden

BY GORDON LINDSAY SMITH

DOUBLE CROPPING

In the small Victory vegetable garden, output can be increased substantially by alternating rows of small, early-maturing, nutritious vegetables and larger, later sorts.

In the first category would be beets, radish, carrots, lettuce and possibly spinach. These things are planted early, take little room, and mature quickly. Rows of them should be spaced about 18 inches to two feet apart. Then in between, put the larger and later-maturing vegetables — things like beans, tomatoes, corn, potatoes, cabbage and celery. The first named will be used and out of the way by the time the larger and later vegetables need all the room.

This kind of planting is known as inter-cropping. It gives almost twice the yield of the other kind of garden. To make it work, you must feed the soil, however, one must be sure to cultivate thoroughly and continuously, and also it is advisable to use some fertilizer and water, if a hose is available.

TENDER AND CRISP

The real secret of tender, crisp vegetables is quick and continuous growth. If because of neglect, drought or any other reason growth is delayed to halt for a few days, then tough, woody fibre results and both flavor and texture are impaired.

Professional gardeners get quick, tender growth by pushing things along. They use a good deal of fertilizer, cultivate at least once a week and more often in dry weather, and they give their vegetables plenty of room for development. This means that such things as carrots, radish and beets, etc., are thinned from two to four inches apart, and when this space is filled one can start harvesting every other plant leaving the rest for further development.

Another way the professionals ensure tenderness is to have their vegetables come along in succession. They would not think of planting all their carrots, beets, beans or anything else at the same time. They spread sowings over several weeks. Except in the case of Canada one can go on planting carrots, beets, beans and other things right up to the middle of July, thus ensuring a continuous supply of the highest quality young vegetables for table.

GIVE THEM ROOM

Shrubs and perennial flowers, and trees, on a small scale, definitely planted, but in a few years it is surprising how much room they take up. The average person plants these far too close and in the case of trees and shrubs, far too close to buildings or fences.

As a general rule, all these things should have half as much room between as their mature breath. This means at least two feet apart for peonies, three and a half feet for the ordinary spirea, and from twenty-five to fifty feet for the general run of Canadian hardwood trees.

At first this may seem far too open, but the space between may be taken up with annual flowers, in the case of a perennial bed, and with vegetables, quick growing shrubbery and trees, with the others.

Annual plants are now used permanently in perennial borders. It is an established fact that nature uses the quick-growing poplar as a sort of nurse crop for pines. The poplar kills weeds and grass, providing ideal surroundings for the slower-growing, shade-loving pine.

SHORT CUTS

Most of us want results in a hurry, and this applies just as much to our gardens as to promotion in our regular work. In gardening, at any rate, this is possible by using some of the shortcuts regularly employed by the professionals.

As a great many vegetables, it is always possible to get well started plants that have been started from seed sown in hotbeds or greenhouses weeks before. Cabbage, celery, tomatoes, peppers are in this category and in these the average amateur is advised to use nothing else.

Generous use of commercial fertilizer is another short cut, but the latter is warned that this may be overdone. It is dangerous to allow the raw fertilizer to actually touch the plant. A good plan is to dissolve in water, then apply carefully.

Some people rush the season by providing little paper caps for newly set out plants to protect from frost, cold or drying winds. After danger has passed these are lifted or removed.

A great many seeds, such as corn, beans, peas, beets etc. will germinate more quickly if they are soaked in water a few hours before planting. Seeds must be in good germinating condition, but with a small garden this will hardly be noticed.

REWARE OF PESTS

The small urban garden, both flower and vegetable is the one most frequently attacked, it is very subject to pest damage. Sparrows may pounce on the lettuce, cut worms girdle the tomatoes, grubs attack the carrots or beets. One must be on guard continuously because if we are not ready to go into action the instant the attack occurs, it will be too late. Indeed with certain pests like sparrows, saturgas and cut worms it is best to be prepared in advance.

Often a scarecrow or a few bits of fluttering rags, or a little brush spread over garden or lawn will scare away birds. In some cases lettuce and such tempting lines are best grown under a wire netting which is removable for cultivation.

Paper collars around the stems of tomatoes and cabbage just above and below the surface of the soil will protect against cut worms, but a poison mixture secured from any seed store is better. Special dusts can also be purchased for protecting cabbage, celery, cucumbers and melons.

A good general guard against pests is cultivation. Cut worms and many other grubs don't like to be stirred up.

GENERAL HINTS

Poor health is often at the bottom of a good many garden troubles. Thin and weedy spots in the lawn, for instance, usually mean that the grass is being starved. A liberal application of suitable fertilizer will usually cure such places.

When space is at a premium, melons, squash and pumpkins can be grown right in the outside hills of corn or may be grown along and over the fences.

GOOD SEED

There is not a substitute for good seed. Other factors may be better control but the gardener has absolutely check over this foundation. Without good seed the garden is going to be a failure.

IMPROVED VEGETABLES

Gardening beginners often make the mistake of asking for varieties that perhaps were popular many years ago, without realizing the progress there was improvement, and much better kinds are now available. Plant breeders have been steadily turning out better varieties, larger earlier and more tender than many of us grew in the old days.

Corns have been developed that give large cobs, thicker and juicier kernels. There are carrots that grow more quickly; radish that are fit to use in a matter of days from the time of seeding; spina that will not go to seed and become coarse so quickly as the old; and so ready to put in the pot in from six to eight days.

All these points are most important, especially to the amateur gardener in parts of Canada where early frosts are all too frequent. These varieties are much too numerous to be mentioned in detail here. The prospective gardener is advised to secure a good seed catalogue up-to-date government bulletin which lists varieties suitable for various areas of Canada. Incidentally, all varieties listed in Canadian catalogues are specially selected for Canadian conditions.

TRANSPLANTING

There is a lot of transplanting connected with gardening. In order that a plant may mature such cabbage, celery, tomatoes and p may be purchased or bought as plants from seedsmen or gr Losses can and set out as transplanters, while almost any flow perennial as well as annual — be purchased in this way. The s of course, applies to all nur shrubs, fruit and ornamental tr shrubbery, roses, vines, etc.

The secret of successful tr planting is to purchase in the place good, healthy, stout stock, then in doing the job expose roots as little as possible to the air. Set out on a dull day or in the rain. Firm down the earth around the plant, tree, or whatever is being transplanted, and well. With big trees—six or feet high—this may mean a pr water each, and every few da possible. With small things tomatoes or cosmos, a pint around each plant will be sufficient. Especially vegetables, it is always possible to get well started plants that have been started from seed sown in hotbeds or greenhouses weeks before. Cabbage, celery, tomatoes, peppers are in this category and in these the average amateur is advised to use nothing else.

The business man waited outside the public telephone booth, trying to restrain his rising temper. At last, seeing the lady fumbling with the pages of the directory, he opened the door and volunteered his services. "May I help you find a number, madam?" he enquired politely.

"Oh, no, thank you very much," she replied, "I'm just looking for a name for my baby."

REPORT GIVEN OF ANNUAL MEETING VIC. ORDER NURSES

Mrs. W. A. Ashley, who attended the 45th annual meeting of the Victorian Order of Nurses, held in the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, gave the following report of the proceedings of the meetings at the last meeting of the Napanee V. O. N. Committee.

The president in his address in the afternoon said, "The work of the Victorian Order is not a spectacular role. It goes on in times of war and peace, pursuing its programme of providing nursing care for those who need it. In the last three years of war it has gone forward with marked intensity, and eight new branches have been established. The total is now 99."

Silence was observed and a memorial resolution proposed by Mrs. W. P. Angus, in honour of the late Rt. Hon. George P. Graham, 11 years president.

Miss Maude Hall, acting chief superintendent, gave a summary of the year's activities. "The need for health services has become increasingly evident in these war years, when every man and woman is needed for the fighting forces or on the home front, for protection and to 'keep fit' is a patriotic duty.

"Conservation is our watchword. Surely it should be applied to the health of the people, which is the greatest asset of the nation and war as it is in peace. Home nursing care on a visiting basis enlarges the value of the individual nurse and distributes nursing care in accord with patients' needs. In the present emergency of nurse shortage and crowded hospitals, a more widespread use of the service provided by the V.O.N. would release many hospital beds. The idea that visiting nurse service is for indigent patients only is wrong. Home nursing is needed by people at one time or another, regardless of income and the V.O.N. is available for anyone in the community. Last year the Order's nurses made more than 700,000 visits to care for 88,646 patients — 47 per cent of which were classed as "maternity." Assistance was given at 1,073 home operations. Fifty-four per cent of the visits were free, 15 per cent paid for in full, 18 per cent, in part, and 13 per cent by insurance companies. Of the total number of visits, 7,138 were pneumonia cases, 3,786 tuberculosis, 8,084 to patients with other communicable diseases, 10,728 cancer patients, 88,-168 chronic patients, 192,636 to patients with other medical and surgical complaints.

"Although the trend is toward hospitalization of maternity patients the case of mothers and babies continues to be a major portion of the Victorian Order Nurses. Last year 45 per cent. of the visits were made for care and instruction during the maternal cycle. Service to the civilian population is closely related to the war effort and last year 65,953 visits were made to 19,216 families of men in the armed forces.

"The scarcity of nurses for civilian work in Canada presents an important problem. An emergency adviser has been appointed by the Canadian Nurses Association to stimulate interest in the nursing profession and make the public aware of the opportunities it offers."

Surgeon Commander Charles H. Best, R.C.N.V.R., addressed the meeting on "The Role of Medical Research in the Improvement of Health and Efficiency of Civilian and Military Personnel."

Reports of Mrs. Blackburn and Senator Wilfrid Gillen, of Ottawa, by writing to the Office of Central Board, Ottawa. Board members should be familiar with these).

His Honour, The Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Alfred Matthews entertained the delegates at tea at the Lieutenant - Governor's suite, at Queen's Park.

Men and women from many Canadian towns and cities are making an effort to keep the V.O.N. up to strength in these days of difficult problems.

TRADE CLINIC TO BE HELD IN NAPANEE

With a view to passing on to retail merchants advice which it is hoped will be of assistance to them in overcoming their wartime difficulties, Management Service of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board is arranging for a series of its "consolidated trade clinic" throughout Eastern Ontario, which all those engaged in retail trade are invited to attend.

Among the communities where these "clinics" will be held are Prescott, Morrisburg, Winchester, Kemptville, Pembroke, Renfrew, Arnprior, Carleton Place, Perth, Smiths Falls, Napanee, Tamworth, Gananoque, Madoc and Trenton.

Given the hearty support and cooperation of retail trade organizations, these "clinics" are designed to assist retailers in solving their wartime problems. Suggestions are advanced by competent speakers in regard to economics which may be introduced and other steps taken to meet new conditions of business which are constantly arising.

Announcement of the dates of the "clinics" in question will be made in due course.

Attention was drawn to the fact that in the past year the society had a small deficit, whereas this year, previous over $200 might had been returned to the County, according to agreement. The Finance Committee expects in the future meeting to present a budget for the year and will consider ways and means of securing more funds for the society. Increased costs of living affecting clothing and other expenditures by the society was given as the reason for the deficit.

Captain Gray brought in the following recommendations from a special committee: (1) That the particular monthly meeting of the Board be held on the second Thursday of each month, at 7.30 p.m. (2) That the following committees be set up: (a) finance, (b) clothing, (c) soldiers' dependents, (d) membership, (e) investigation, (f) foster home finding and child care, (g) programme.

The Board adopted the recommendations of the committee. The formation of the new committees it is believed will increase the interest of the members in the work of the society, be of assistance to the superintendent and increase the effectiveness of the society.

Miss K. P. Docker was asked to arrange for a meeting of the special committee of the society, on health, with the health committee of the Board of Education and the Napanee Board of Health, for a discussion of some problems pertaining to some families in the town.

Miss Helen A. Grange, the treasurer, prepared the financial statement for the past month.

Mr. Barrett, the superintendent, spoke of the provincial convention of children's Aid Societies to be held in Toronto this week and he and the president were delegated to attend, if possible.

The aggressive wife of a meek little man was hauling her husband over the coals for having made a fool of himself when some friends called. He sat in dejected silence.

YOUNG GANGSTERS SENTENCED TO REFORMATORY

Three youths from Barriefield, Vernon Smith and John Taylor, aged 17 years, and Jack McCallum, aged 18 years, appeared before Magistrate Garvin in Napanee Police Court last Monday, charged with breaking and entering and theft. The two older boys were on several charges, including breaking and entering Root, McPerland's Garage in Napanee twice; breaking and entering Denison's Garage, Napanee, once; theft of about twenty tires and several tubes, and breaking and entering the store of Archie D. Wright, Conway, where they stole three rifles, a quantity of ammunition, cigars and cigarettes. Young McCallum was implicated only in the break in and theft at the Wright store.

All three pled guilty to the charges and the two older boys were sentenced to a total of 24 months less one day in the Ontario Reformatory, the sentences to run concurrently with a sentence of 12 months in the Reformatory imposed last week in Belleville on similar charges. Mr. Calium was remanded in custody for sentence until May 27.

The break in at the Wright store occurred on April 17, at the Denison Garage on January 11, and at Mc-Parland's Garage on March 31 and sometime between April 1 and April 8. The boys were arrested recently and were tried in Belleville and while in custody there the charges heard in Napanee were laid by Constable Taylor.

Smith and Taylor both have records extending over several years. Taylor was charged on May 6 with possession of stolen goods, theft of gasoline ration books, breaking and entering the garage of Elmer Price, Desoronto, theft of clothing in Belleville, and breaking and entering the store of Shaw & Linton in Kingston. Smith acknowledged taking a car in Belleville and breaking and entering the garage of Edgar Irvine in Desoronto.

Magistrate Garvin, who had, apparently, Smith and Taylor before him on previous occasions, said that all the boys of about their age in Barriefield apparently belonged to a gang bent on thieving. He said that, in the case of Smith and Taylor, warnings and considerations were of no effect, and putting them into institutions seemed the only course he could take.

EXCITING CHASE RESULTS IN ARREST OF THREE MEN

The fearless action of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Hudson, who live on Highway No. 2, about four miles east of Napanee, resulted in the arrest of three men, wanted on a charge of cashing drawers on the first floor of their home about 10:00 o'clock on Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Hudson, who had retired shortly after 9:00 o'clock, were wakened by a noise in their house. On investigation they found three men carrying out their cash drawers to the stairs room. When the men learned that they had been discovered they attempted a get-away. Two of them managed to elude Mr. and Mrs. Hudson, but the third man was captured to the yard, where Mr. Hudson grappled with him after he had run into a wire-fence. Both Mr. Hudson and the would-be robber fell to the ground, which left Mr. Hudson dazed a brick, which, fortunately, struck the right man, inflicting a wound in his head, which later required several stitches to close. While Mr. Hudson was tying up the prisoner his wife phoned for the police in Napanee.

Constable Taylor rushed down the road, and after securing the man Mr. Hudson had tied up, started down the road and managed to overtake the other two, whom he arrested.

The three men were taken to the gool in Napanee and will appear in the Magistrate's Court on Thursday.

QUIZ CONTESTANT TELLS EXPERIENCES ON TORONTO TRIP

I have been asked by the Victory Loan Committee to give an account of my visit to Toronto to take part in the Victory Loan Quiz. This Quiz was held on Saturday, May 15, in Simpson's Arcadian Court, and I was taken by a group of Napanee citizens, which included Mr. and Mrs. Foster's programme, and there were 13 contestants from different parts of Ontario. Each one was accompanied by a parent, and there were nine boys and four girls. The parents we were the guests of the Robert Simpson Company.

We arrived in Toronto about 10:00 o'clock Friday night and were shown to our rooms in the Royal Edward Hotel. Saturday morning, after breakfast, we were taken by a chartered bus to Simpson's, where the broadcast was held, and at 11:00 o'clock we went on the air over the CFRB. This was something new for all of us, but we enjoyed it, and, after the notes were swapped we went to the City Hall to the Victory Loan ceremony. The R.C.A.F. band led us up there, accompanied by the R.C.A.F. Band. We had our picture taken beside a Spitfire and a Hurricane.

We went back to the hotel for lunch and were each given a War Savings Certificate and a record taken Friday night at dinner. Our next trip was to the Royal Bank, one of Commerce building, which is 32 storeys high. We could see the whole city and the guide pointed out places of interest to us. From here we went to the Ball Park to see a double-header game between Toronto and Newark and were given seats in the Royal Box. We all enjoyed this and between games they presented each of us with an autographed baseball. The girls were also given roses. They had planned to take us to the Military Barracks, but this had to be cancelled, so we went back to the hotel, where we had dinner at 6:30. All day we were accompanied by Red Foster and others, who had charge of the trip.

We came home the next day. We all had a wonderful time, and we are very grateful to both the Robert Simpson Company and the Victory Loan Committee, for making this trip possible.

RONALD BOYCE.

GETTING THE NAZIS' GOAT

Norwegian patriots are still managing to make life miserable for the Nazis. In rounding up the men for manpower mobilization law requiring the registration of all Norwegian workers (men and women), Jossings Norwegian patriots have been submitting fake registration forms in addition to their own, usually in the name of dead or fictitious persons. By last week the situation was so badly out of hand and records were being so completely muddled that Nazi authorities were obliged to decree that all Norwegians must appear in person to identify themselves at registration offices.

OBITUARIES

THE LATE
BENJAMIN FRANKLIN DENISON

Early Friday morning, May 7, one of Richmond's best known and most highly respected residents, Benjamin Franklin Denison, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Denison, died at his home in Selby.

For two years high blood pressure, accompanied by a heart condition necessitated his giving up physical activities and most of this time he was confined to his home.

During the Christmas season his illness became much more acute and he gradually grew worse, until, of necessity he was taken to his bed Friday afternoon, just a week preceding his passing.

Always considerate of others he exhibited a keen interest in the events of the day and extended a welcoming hand in greetine to all who visited him. Being active and of strong physique, his greatest joy had been in lending a helping hand to one and all who needed a strong arm on a strenuous occasion. From early manhood he followed the vocation of farming, taking a special pleasure in the task of the day, considering it the most ideal employment. Upon retiring from active life he spent the remainder of his life in Selby.

In 1918 he was bereft of his first wife, Mary Cunningham. By this union he had one son, Franklin Wellington. Later he married Frances G., daughter of the late William and Sara McGinn of Newburgh, whose unceasing devotion was a great source of comfort during the weary days and nights.

In passing he is survived by his wife, also his son Frank, three granddaughters, a grandson and a brother, Darius B. Denison, Newburgh.

The funeral service on Sunday, was held in his late residence, Rev. W. R. Merrick, pastor of The United Church, who was a constant attendant, delivered a very comforting message to the immediate family and numerous friends who assembled to pay their last tribute of respect to one who had been a staunch friend and good neighbour all his life. During the service, Mrs. Clarence Lockerd rendered a very appropriate solo, "The End of the Road."

A large cortege accompanied the remains to Riverside cemetery, Napanee, where interment was made in the family plot. The pallbearers were Messrs. H. A. Wyatt, Ross Dudgeon, Dorland McCutcheon, Jack McFarlane, Will Telford and Doctor Tummon.

STAGGERED HOLIDAYS SPONSORED

Ottawa, (C.P.) — The Munitions Department said, last week, a general appeal is being made to Canadian employers to stagger vacation leaves, beginning and ending at mid-week periods, to reduce travel congestion through the summer, particularly at week-ends.

A joint statement by T. C. Lockwood, Transport Controller, and George S. Gray, Transit Controller, said concentrated vacation travel in July and August must be avoided if bus and rail lines are to handle passenger traffic in Canada this summer.

TRAFFIC PROBLEM

"Rail and bus lines will not be able to handle holiday passenger traffic this year if it is concentrated in July and August," the statement said.

"The usual midsummer and week-end peaks must be levelled off, and we are asking business and industry to get behind a policy of scheduling employee vacations throughout the year, instead of concentrating them into the summer months.

"We are also asking them to begin and end all employee vacations on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays, from now on."

The policy is being recommended to all employers, and a letter signed jointly by the transport and transit controllers is being sent to large employers, executives of trade associations, and similar groups.

STAY AT HOME

In addition, employers are asked to help conserve travel facilities by supporting a policy of avoiding unnecessary train or bus travel at all times. The public is being urged to spend vacations at home or as near home as possible and to limit vacation trips by rail or bus to one a mid trip.

Special stress is being placed on avoidance of travel on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays.

"For their own comfort, as well as for the sake of the rail and bus lines, the public should make every possible effort to avoid week-end travel," said the controllers. "We shall need all the co-operation we can get if Canadian traffic facilities are to be able to meet the heavy volume of passenger travel this summer."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

This column is sponsored by the Regional Office, Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Questions on price control, ration regulations and other Wartime Prices and Trade Board rulings should be mailed to: Information Branch, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, Victoria Building, Brockville, Ont.

Q. Can you tell me any way in which the proposed meal rations can be extended through the use of vegetables ?

A. There are various ways which experienced cooks already practise. For instance, a recipe for Chile Con Carne provides for the use of brown ground raw meat with onion which may be mixed with cooked navy or kidney beans, moistened with tomato juice and spiced with chili powder and served with noodles. Meat may also be extended by using vegetables in stews, meat pies, croquettes and meat loaves.

Q. We need a new pump on our farm. Do we require a farm machinery permit in order to obtain one ?

A. Not if the pump is a wood well pump, barrel or cistern pump. These classes of pumps have been recently exempted from the general ration of farm machinery.

Q. We have stopped making dairy butter and are sending our cream to the factory. Should we notify anyone about this ?

A. Yes as you have presumably registered as a butter producer. You should notify your Local Ration Board saying that you are no longer making dairy butter.

Q. I have disposed of my retail store and am going out of business. What shall I do with my WPT-B. license card ?

A. You must return the card to the Director of Licensing, Ottawa, within ten days, mentioning the fact that you have withdrawn from business.

Q. I read something the other day about electric stoves being rationed. Will you please give me information as we have been thinking of buying one ?

A. All those throughout Canada who wish to buy new electric stoves must now consider certificates of essentiality available at their dealers'. This means that no one may buy a new electric stove unless the stove is required to replace one which cannot be made serviceable by replacing damaged parts.

Q. How can I tell if a retailer overcharges me for new potatoes?

A. The safest way is to request him to furnish you with a sales slip showing the date of sale, the seller's name and address, the weight sold, the price per pound and whether or not the potatoes are imported or Canada grown. The regulations require the dealer to furnish such a slip or invoice when requested. You can then communicate with the nearest office of the Board for the legal price. In any case the total retail selling price must not be more than 5 cents per pound in May and 5c per pound in June, July and August, this year.

RENT REGULATIONS FOR SUMMER COTTAGES

At the approach of the summer season, the regional Rentals Administration, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, reminds owners of summer cottages that their properties are subject to the rental regulations as those which are situated in urban communities and are occupied the year round.

The chief consideration to be borne in mind is that any variation from the basis or terms of rental of a summer cottage during the season of 1941 must have been approved by the Local Rentals Committee to become legally effective. In other words unless such approval has been given, the cottage must be rented exactly as it was rented in 1941. If it has never previously been rented fmation of the rental by the Local Rentals Committee is required.

If necessary, the cottage for this season leased on a monthly or seasonal basis the landlord is required within ten days to file a form 3cC 40 with the Rentals Administration setting forth the terms of the lease and giving other information, a second copy to be handed to the tenant. This form must be filed with every change of tenant on a monthly basis.

The Rentals Administration also draws attention to the fact that the regulations require operators of tourist cabins tourist homes and all overnight accommodations to post in a legal maximum room rates upon a form which may be obtained at any office of the Board.

The regulations, it is added, provide for penalties being imposed where these stipulations are not observed.

INFORMATION ABOUT THE MEAT RATION

Hello Homemakers ! A new adventure in meal planning is on its way — meat rationing. Let's prepare for it. Rationing, shortages and changes in foods call for a knowledge of food combinations and cooking methods. With this knowledge, meat rationing will not present such harassing problems.

Meat rationing is necessary in order that everyone may receive an equal share after the Government has provided for those who are preparing the war from our shores. Great Britain's fighting rations (26 oz.) will continue and our own armed forces have been rationed. Nutritionists have calculated that two pounds of meat per person per week are adequate. This is based on the official food plan which emphasizes the quantities of other protein foods eaten, such as milk, cheese, eggs, beans and other dried vegetables, alone with the daily serving of meat or fish or poultry, on meat substitutes.

The Wartime Prices and Trade Board issues the following information on meat rationing:

1 The Brown Ration Book A coupons in Ration Book 2 will allow 2 lbs. per person per week.

2 Children will have the same ration as grown-ups.

3. There will be control of meat in private lockers and there will be meatless days in restaurants.

4. Poultry and fish will not be rationed. Neither will such meats as kidney, liver, heart, tongue, brains and cuts like spareribs and oxtail, which are more than half bone.

5. Unrationed meats will remain under the price ceilings.

6. Farmers will still be allowed to slaughter for their own household use and beef rings will be allowed.

7. Meat supplies will follow the regular channels from producer and processor through wholesaler and retailer to customer. But there will be no work for the meat trade as coupons and other details require time. Consideration from both retailer and customer will be a great help.

Further information will be released as other details are determined. We are willing to help you in any way and will be glad to discuss any problem by letter. A limited supply of meal charts is available upon requests by letter.

TAKE A TIP :

1 Follow the Mixing Bowl column to become familiar with the new but less familiar cuts of meat and their uses.

2 Store meat carefully. Remove wrappings which may cause unpleasant flavours in the refrigerator. Place in covered dish in coolest part of refrigerator, but not where it will freeze.

3 Before cooking, wipe meat with a clean cloth wrung out of cold water. Do not allow it to stand in a pan of cold water as juices will be drawn out and foreign matter washed in.

4 To coagulate quickly the juices on outer surface, and also to prevent inner juices from escaping, unless tender cuts of meat in boiling water, have meat in contact with. On High for 3 to 5 minutes, then turn to Low or Simmer. This method keeps most flavour in the meat.

5 When cooking stews, put less tender cuts of meat in cold water, bring quickly to the boil, then turn electric element to Low. Some goodness will be in the stock but a large portion left in the meat.

6 The Wartime Prices and Trade Board has recently allowed four styles and sizes of food choppers for household use — an asset to stretching meats and using left-overs.

7 Enamel-coated food choppers need special care. They're weighty so do not drop them and chip the enamel; be careful to remove gristle and hard pieces to prevent "checking."

8 Meat extenders should aid in managing the food budget.

9 Meat substitutes should be chosen to increase the nutritive value of the dish and the flavour. We suggest cheese, spaghetti, noodles, dried beans, milk sauces, cereals and bread crumbs.

Uses of Egg Yolks

1 Substitute two egg yolks for one egg in cake, muffin or cookie recipes and add one tablespoon more liquid.

2 Poach egg yolks hard. Drain and use in salads, grated in cream sauce, sauces, sandwich fillings, casserole dishes, etc.

3 Egg yolks whipped into a cup of milk provides a perfect, nourishing drink.

THE QUESTION BOX

Mrs. C. C. asks: "What makes a meringue tough on top and raw underneath ?"

Answer: Too hot an oven, or trying to brown it beneath a top element. Instead of fully pre-heated electric oven. Use temperature of 250 to 275 degrees.

Mrs. C. B. R. asks: "Why are custard pies soggy on the bottom?"

Answer: Custard pies must be placed in a hot oven (450 deg.) to cook pastry quickly, for eight minutes. Then reset electric oven control to 275 deg. and bake until silver knife comes out of custard clean (about 30 minutes). Cool quickly so that fat in pastry hardens before steam from custard cooks sogginess.

Friend asks: What will remove grease from wallpaper ?

Answer: If fresh, hold a clean white blotter over the stain and apply a warm (not hot) iron, moving the blotter as it takes up the grease. Shadowy grease spots often respond to a poultice treatment. Make a paste of Fuller's earth or a commercial dry cleaning powder with carbon tetrachloride (a spot remover). Let it remain until thoroughly dry. Wipe off with a cloth dampened with carbon tetrachloride. Repeat the treatment if necessary.

Mrs. E. A. asks: "How much cheese added to reinforced meat pie ?"

Answer: Add two-thirds cup quick-cooking oatmeal, half-cup water and seasoning to one pound ground meat. No egg is necessary. This amount will serve 12 small meat balls.

Mrs. G. S. asks: "Why is cottage cheese more difficult to make with pasteurized milk?"

Answer: Due to low bacteria content. Purchase buttermilk to use as a starter; use half-cup buttermilk for two cups milk.

CARE OF MEAT ESSENTIAL UNDER RATIONING

Bearing in mind that meat will be rationed to consumers at a comparatively early date, the Prices Board offers hints in regard to the proper cooking of meat which it thinks may be advantageous to consumers in making their rations go farther and last longer.

In regard to the care of meat, it suggests the following:

1 Remove meat from paper as soon as it comes from the butcher's.

2 Cover lightly and store in a cold place until used.

3 Use ground meat promptly. Whether it is raw or cooked, ground meat spoils more quickly than solid meat.

4 Keep cooked meat tightly covered in a cold place. Do not cover or place in refrigerator until it is cooled. Stews, meat soups, etc. combined with starchy foods (potatoes, flour, cereals) spoil quickly.

5 Wipe meat with a damp cloth before cooking. Do not wash.

Meat cookery suggestions are as follows :

1 Tender cuts may be broiled, panbroiled or roasted.

2 Less tender cuts need long, slow cooking in moist heat, e.g. braising, stewing or pot roasting.

3 Less tender cuts, ground raw, are cooked as hamburger cuts.

4 Pork and veal need thorough cooking, but overcooking of any meat is wasteful.

5 Roast meats the modern way . . . in an uncovered pan, no water added, moderate heat (325-350 F) for entire cooking period. The meat gives father because it shrinks less; tastes better because it is more juicy.

CANNING SUGAR RATION CUT

The ration administration of the prices board announced last week that 100,000,000 pounds of sugar — approximately half the quantity asked for by Canadian housewives — will be available for home canning. The announcement said the ration administration had received applications for a grand total of 209,266,368 pounds.

"Canada produces only about one-fifth of the sugar it consumes," said the ration division. "Some of North America's largest sources of sugar supply now are in enemy hands, and war on the high seas greatly curtailed our imports from the remaining sources of supply. These imports can be brought in only at great danger to sailors and ships."

Housewives will receive their sugar canning coupons from their local boards by June 1st.

LETTERS FROM NICKEY

THE STORY OF LIFE IN THE C.W.A.C.

Dear Babs :—

Luckily I am a gypsy at heart, for once again I am on the move. Yes, I have been transferred, this time to Military District No. 3 with headquarters at Kingston. As I have said before, Army girls learn to live with surprises and shocks. Think, three postings in a little more than four months ! However, I expect that my new station will be permanent (that is, as permanent as anything in the Army can be.) Of course, there is always the possibility of being selected for the Overseas Draft, but I have a hunch that I am not likely to be called at the present time.

I am much elated over the prospect of this move, as the work holds quite a fascination for me. One of my lifelong ambitions is about to be realized and I am being given the opportunity of taking a crack at the newspaper game. Oh, I will probably start off by handing up clippings in a scrap book but you know how I love the smell of printer's ink, so I should be in my element. Besides, there is the saving about grey cats and little acorns. Well, I can dream, can't I ? Army Reporter ! Has a very grand sound, don't you think ? I wonder . . .

You know, Babs, one of the things that I like best about the Canadian Women's Army Corps is the wide range of unusual and interesting jobs open to members of the Corps. My own case is only one instance. Listen to these occupations —receptionists, draughtswomen, motor mechanics, spray painters, canteen stewards, accountants, architects, lab technicians, telegraphists, dietitians, radiographers, wireless technicians, etc. etc. It makes me feel that I belong to a Corps of 'career women.' Probably the most surprising feature is that girls are trained in many of these occupations AFTER enlistment. Naturally, there are also run of the mill jobs such as stenographers, bookkeepers, cooks, telephone operators, waitresses and many others.

In my opinion, one of the most fascinating occupations of which I have yet heard, is that of bandswoman. A group of musically talented girls has been assembled under a sergeant and they are now preparing for their first public appearance. I understand that the predominant instrument in the band will be the fife, and that it is to be done the girls in gay kilts and specially designed W.A.C. tunics. Won't it be a colourful sight to see the Canadian Soldiers' Aces Corps proudly head up their own kiltie band ? How I wish I could toodle the tuba (I mean the fife) and play the band part well, I'll march in the parade anyway, just as close behind the kiltie girls as possible.

I find it a sad business saying "au revoir" to many good friends that I have made here. When I left the Manning Pool on Spadina Avenue, I did not feel so badly as my own little group of close friends were among the girls left behind to prepare more. However, this time there will be no "au revoir" which will be hard to say. If it were not for dear, old Barry Smythe who is also transferring to Kingston, I would be completely alone. Barry is a great one for cheering a fellow up. I understand that Cuthbert is playing second fiddle to her new friend, Lieutenant Lamb, and he wrote her a piteous bleat asking why she had not written. I am inclined to say in Barry's own particular, "jolly goood" for him. As you have often pointed out, there is a malicious streak in my nature which delights in seeing the 'dominant sex' humiliated (temporarily).

The little Scottie mascots are always good for a little coffee dregs. It is going to break my heart to leave them behind for I fear that loyalty is not their strong point. They are always ready to pick and choose their friends with the C.W.A.C. owing a spoiling them. Before leaving, I will pay a visit to the butcher and buy them each a juicy beef chop. It may keep their affinity green in their fickle little hearts for a few days.

Good-night Babs, when next I write it will be from my new address so keep your fingers crossed. I must make good in this new undertaking.

As ever,
NICKEY.

ELECTRIC STOVE BUYING CURBED

Ottawa, (C.P.)—The Prices Board announced that intending purchasers of new electric stoves will be required to obtain certificates of essentiality. Previously such certificates were required in certain zones.

Jurisdiction over electric stoves by the board's administrator of electrical equipment and supplies, is required. Only major change is inclusion of the whole of Canada in the "essentiality certificate" clause. It means that no one may purchase a new electric stove unless it is to be used in a building with no facilities for operating a gas; coal, or wood range for cooking.

Further, no one will be permitted to buy a new electric stove unless it is required to replace one which cannot be made serviceable by replacing damaged parts.

EASY WAY TO HELP OUT SUGAR RATION

By the simple method of growing a comparatively few sugar beets in the home garden from which an excellent sugar syrup can be easily made, the housewife can augment her sugar ration very substantially. Sugar beets can be grown successfully in all parts of Canada.

As a result of tests made by the Division of Chemistry, Science Service, Dominion Department of Agriculture, a recipe for the syrup made from sliced sugar beets has been evolved.

The procedure to be followed is simple. The roots of the beets, from which the tops have been removed, are first soaked in cold water to loosen the dirt, then scrubbed well. After washing, the crown or top portion of the root is cut off at a point below the lowest leaf scar and all green portions removed. The reason for this is that the crown contains a the greater part of the salts taken from the soil, and it is desirable to have the syrup as free as possible from these salts. The green portion tends to make dark coloured syrup and give it an unpleasant taste. This is also true of the skin or peel which should be removed.

The recipe is a condensed summary of the recipe, based on five pounds of sliced beets :—

1 Wash, top, peel, and slice beets to five five pounds of beets ;

2 Cover and cover immediately with three quarts of boiling water;

3 Boil for an hour until soft;

4 Filter through cheese cloth and press;

5 Boil to half volume;

6 Let stand overnight to allow to settle;

7 Pour off clear solution and filter residue;

8 Boil down to half volume again;

9 Treat with three tablespoonfuls of activated carbon and two teaspoonfuls of Filter Cel;

10 Filter making sure filtrate is clear and free from carbon;

11 Evaporate to 223 degrees F., or desired thickness.

Full details of procedure are contained in a booklet prepared by the Division of Chemistry, copies of which can be obtained from Publicity and Extension, Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Farmers Can Get Ammunition For Crop Protection

The new order from Wartime Prices and Trade Board governing ammunition makes it clear that farmers of this Dominion or anyone else acquiring ammunition for protection of crops and livestock can get it.

In some sections of the country a wrong impression prevails and many farmers think that no more ammunition will be available for the very necessary job of killing off crows, and other such pests that prey upon farm livestock and crops.

In order to get ammunition for this purpose, the farmer is merely asked to sign a form explaining his need. The form can be obtained at the neighborhood local ration board and it should be filled in and a copy taken to the store, after it has been signed by the local rationing official.

THE VIRTUES OF SIMPLICITY

HEALTH LEAGUE OF CANADA

In these days when everyone's time is so much occupied, and when minutes are precious, the housewife can reflect with pleasure that the simpler the meals she serves, the better they are for her family's health. The fact is that elaborate preparation of foods, especially of vegetables, causes the loss of much of their vitamin and mineral content.

Some of the menus used in the famous Boy's K Club experiment with noon meals, conducted in Toronto from February to March, 1942, offer suggestions to mothers of school children.

Here are three typical ones:—

Baked Potatoes — Cheese	Baked Lima Beans (dried) with Tomato Sauce
Wedges of Raw Cabbage	Buttered Whole Wheat Bread
Tomato Juice	Orange
Buttered Whole Wheat Bread	Milk
Cocoa	Cod Liver Oil
Cod Liver Oil
Toasted Cheese Sandwiches on Whole Wheat Bread
Raw Turnip Sticks
Milk	Orange
Cod Liver Oil

Simple aren't they?

Yet each of those meals gave every boy all or nearly all of his day's requirements in the protective food elements, the vitamins and minerals, and more than one-third of his caloric needs for the day. All this at an average cost of less than 16 cents per meal! And before you say, "But they won't eat brown bread or raw vegetables," please remember that the thirty K Club boys, who were just ordinary boys like any others, DID eat them without protest and enjoyed them. You may have to do a sales job but it can be done because it has been done. And it's well worth doing.

Owing to the unavoidable absence of the president, Mrs. Harry Easterbrook, Mrs. T. A report of the district executive held at Bellville was given by Mrs. Clarence Milligan. It was moved and seconded that Mrs. St. Easterbrook and Mrs. W. G. Miss Mary Scanlin rendered a piano solo at this time, after which the acting president welcomed the District President, Mrs. A. Baker, of Moscow, and invited her to take the chair for election of officers. Mrs. Baker's remarks were based on co-operation and friendliness. She said she hoped to continue the friendly relations she had formed long after her term of office was over. She also spoke very feelingly on Neighbourliness. "A goodly thing it is to meet in friendship's circle bright." She brought out, in many ways, the beautiful texts that are contained in the Women's Institute ode and creed. Co-operation in the home, schools, community and the armed forces, means strength. Our district programme is called a co-operative programme. Social security is a form of co-operation.

A discussion re Medical Inspection in the schools followed. If we can find a workable plan for same, will be for the benefit of the present and the coming generations. She ended with a fitting poem, and proceeded with the election which resulted as follows: Moved by Mrs. T. Scanlin and seconded by Mrs. F. W. Proctor that the President and Vice-Presidents, also Secretary and District Director be re-elected — President, Mrs. Harry Easterbrook; 1st Vice-President, Mrs. Smith Gilmore; 2nd Vice-President, Mrs. Donald McLaughlin; Secretary-Treasurer, Mrs. W. ANNUAL MEETING NEWBURGH W. I.

This was followed by a short, humorous reading by Mrs. Baldwin. During the business period, annual reports of the different committees were given. Knitting for Red Cross during the year was reported by Mrs. George Walker. The following work has been sent to Napanee branch. 89 pairs seamen's stockings, 38 pairs sixteen-inch leg sox, 27 turtle-neck sweaters, 17 sleeping helmets, 21 scarves, 92 pairs men's gloves, 5 tuck-ins, 6 pairs of hurricane mitts, 8 pairs children's mitts, 26 pairs ladies' gloves, 44 pairs ladies' sockes, 28 ladies' cardigans, 9 pairs ladies' knickers. Forty-six quilts have also been sent into Napanee Red Cross.

A very fine address was given by the District President, Mrs. Arthur Baker, Moscow. Mrs. Baker chose, "Co-operation" as her subject. She said that the work of the Institute is based on co-operation, that girls' clubs sponsored by the Institutes are important to the members because through these clubs, girls are taught the art of working together. The radio, too, is an outstanding example of co-operation. When we dial for a certain station, little do we realize the amount of co-operation that is essential before we can receive a satisfactory program. Mrs. Baker said that everyone can have the privilege of co-operation if she so desires. This privilege is offered by our community organizations. In closing, Mrs. Baker quoted Mrs. Winifred Rous. Edmonton, president of the U.F.W.A. as saying: "Our Farm Women's organization can be made one of the most effective channels for service to ourselves, to our community and to the nation, if we each play our part."

In the election of officers over which Mrs. Baker presided, all officers were returned, for the new year.

At the close of the meeting, Mrs. Vanderwoort, assisted by several ladies, served refreshments.

Vivian Hartwick and Marjorie Withers received the offering and Mrs. James Wilson dedicated it. Mrs. Ralph Whitman and Mrs. Bruce Finlay each contributed a solo.

Mrs. Herrington gave a very interesting address on Home Missions. Mrs. Herrington spent several years with her husband on mission fields and related many of her experiences during those years.

A closing service was a candle-lighting ceremony given by the C. G. I. T. girls with their leader, Mrs. George Bailey. Mrs. Bruce Hoare sang "Lead Kindly Light" at the beginning of the service. All present were lighted and placed at positions before a large map of Canada showing six mission stations in Canada, where new Canadians are ministered unto: Sydney, Nova Scotia; Winnipeg, Edmonton and Bella Bella. The singing of a hymn closed the meeting. The church was suitably decorated with flowers and an Easter Lily graced the table in front of the pulpit.

The 1942 officers were all re-elected and it was decided to have evening meetings for the summer and to decide later as to the winter meetings.

A programme had been prepared by Miss Keitha Babcock, and was as follows: Reading by Mrs. Harold Babcock, Mrs. A. W. Babcock and Mrs. G. Clarke; piano solo by Mrs. Harold Babcock, a paper by Mrs. Bruce Burt, followed by a discussion of war work by Mrs. Archie Simmons. A convener of each group presented a report of the war work done during the year and showed monies raised $291.57. Mrs. Aselstine was used for materials for the making of 129 quilts and for a quantity of children's clothing. The three groups packed sixteen ditty bags for the sailors at Christmas and donated $10 for aid to Russia Fund. An amount of knitting was also done by the ladies.

Dorothea and Jean Nusent were appointed to prepare the programme for the May meeting. Mrs. Pearl Scilley was asked to give the Study Book at the next meeting.

Pearl Scilley gave an interesting reading. A hymn was sung and the Mirpah benediction closed a profitable meeting.

Mrs. Percy Aselstine, in her very capable manner, gave as her reading, the poem, "Home" by Edgar Guest, with Miss Baughan as accompanist.

Mrs. McLelland in a paper, "Flickering Lights" gave a very interesting review of one of the better books written to-day. "What is the Church Doing," by Henry Van Dusen in which she quoted many instances of heroisms and sacrifices being made by the Christians and the many people in the Nazi dominated countries invaded by Germany. Behind the blackout there is a flickering light and so it is the task of each member of the association to keep these lights burning in the name of our Lord and Master.

Greetings from the W.M.S. Presbyterial, Belleville, were given by Mrs. Geo. Switzer, to the delegates of the convention.

Mrs. W. A. Ashley gave a very cordial welcome to all visitors and delegates from the city of Napanee, the Church by W. A. and officials. This closed the morning session of the convention.

AFTERNOON SESSION

The afternoon session opened with one of the prayers "Our Father," and reply to the welcome was given by Mrs. D. F. Aylsworth. The nominating committee brought in the following slate of officers for 1943-1944: President, Mrs. Reade Robiln, Adolphustown; 1st Vice-President Mrs. F. H. Sharpe, Stirling; 2nd Vice-President, Mrs. D. F. Aylsworth, Bath; Secretary, Mrs. Murray Code, Napanee; Treasurer, Miss Wilhelmina Clark, Odessa. These officers, Mrs. George Switzer acted. Mrs. Miss Emma Shorey, Newburgh; Mrs. Ida Wright, Conway, constitute the executive.

It was unanimously decided that the association would affiliate with the Dominion Women's Association, and that the minutes of the 1944 Convention be sent to The United Church Observer, for publication.

The list of elected officers were installed by Rev. C. D. McLellan, who in the service used the ritual of the Dominion Council. Offering was received and dedicated by Rev. W. G. Fletcher.

Mrs. A. W. Sexton, Tamworth, gave a very impressive memorial service in memory of 29 deceased members. Mrs. Fred Millinger sang "When we Come to the End of the Road." Mrs. Montgomery, vice president and members of the executive, assisted. Mrs. Jas. Robinson, Bath, sang "Just Awhile" with Mrs. Forbes as accompanist.

The afternoon session closed with "Mr. (Dr.) Platt, of Kingston, on "The Place of Women Through the Ages." The women of the early testament laid down the pattern for the younger ones to follow. We have before us the endurance and sacrifice of the women of Great Britain and Russia and we, too, must take our place in every phase of life. It is a time of war work by us, and we must put on the armour of light. We must use our privilege of peace, and remember the peace claim must become a reality to widen and lengthen the bar of our church, our sacred obligation.

A duet was sung by Mrs. M. Lee, Mrs. Jas. Robson, with Miss Gladys Wallace as accompanist. By request, Mrs. Katharine Hall sang a solo selection, "Unawares," in her usual pleasing manner. "In our service we must be ready to give our time, our talents and our sacrifice for others who have not lost the opportunity of serving our Master.

Mrs. Miller presented the following resolutions:

That we record our appreciation of the hospitality extended to this convention, by the Minister and Mrs. W. A. Ashley, on behalf of the officials and members.

We express our gratitude to Almighty God for His blessing upon us and the United Nations, in the Empire's recent victory at Tunis and Bizerte. Our prayer is that God may give us final victory and a peace that will forever destroy the possibility of war.

That we redouble our efforts in the cause of temperance particularly, that we record our thanks be to those who have helped in every way to-ward the success of the convention and hearty appreciation of the efforts of our retiring president and treasurer and executive.

The retiring president, Mrs. F. Henderson, gave in her remarks, her grateful thanks to the members of the executive for the cooperation she had received during her terms of office and regretted that the newly-elected president was unable to attend, due to illness in the family.

The National Anthem brought a very successful convention to a close.

ESSENERS START PACKING

BY EDWIN SHANKE

Associated Press Staff Writer

Stockings, underwear and families in Essen have decided to move to other parts of Germany with all their remaining belongings as the result of the latest R.A.F. raids on the armament centre, it was disclosed in a copy of the Essener National Zeitung which reached here.

The information was contained in an article directing a second appeal for help from the entire Reich. "The R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. have dropped more than 10,000 tons of bombs on and near the Krupp works at Essen, now the "most-bombed city in the world."

Lack of transport and a shortage of hands to pack furniture have caused such bottlenecks, the newspaper added, that it will require 140 days to move those whose applications already are on file.

It urged Essenners who want to move lock, stock and barrel to "be patient."

At the same time the National Zeitung described the extent of devastation in Essen. It told those who are giving up their homes that they "will no longer have a claim on them after the war" and that post-war reconstruction will last so long that new houses will not be placed at their disposal.

"Those leaving now, therefore, are departing forever," the newspaper said.

The evacuation is under direction of the city administration, from which permission must be obtained for transportation. First consideration is given to soldiers, who are given special leave in order to move their families, the paper said. Those departing must supply their own packing materials and do the packing themselves.

The newspaper complained about "chaos" in repairing partly damaged Essen homes because "persons with good connections" to the Nazi party are receiving workers and building materials, both scarce, ahead of others.

Conditions in Essen are "not to be compared with those in other parts of the Reich," the newspaper said. It demanded greater consideration for "extraordinary needs" of the suffering Esseners in the distribution of household utensils and other necessities and help from the Reich generally in restoring damaged buildings and establishing living quarters.

AID FOR JEWS URGED BY CONGRESS

Montreal — The Jews of Canada and are urging that a number of Jewish refugees, especially children, who may find it possible to flee from Nazi Europe be given asylum in this country for the duration.

This request was made by the Canadian Jewish Congress in Montreal in a Three-Point Program which outlined ways and means for this country to aid the number of Jews ruled and persecuted Jews of Europe.

The Canadian Jewish Congress anticipates a crisis as a result of continued reports of massacres and persecutions of the Jews of Europe by the Nazi invaders. These reports are confirmed by semi-official and governmental bodies. A conference of British and American representatives was held in Hamilton, Bermuda, to consider ways and means to relieve the refugees who had escaped from Europe and the "potential refugees" who still under Nazi domination. The Canadian Jewish Congress programme also suggests that Canada take the initiative in organizing a system of refuge for the Jews in the ghettos of Europe, in view of "the experience of the Government of Canada in the evacuation from the civilian population of occupied Greece."

The Congress programme also requests the Canadian Government to participate in any inter-allied programme which may be undertaken for the aid of the Jews of Europe and specifically mentions the possible undertakings in this direction: aiding through neutral postern by wangs securing Axis agreement for other country.—Yehudi Menuhin.

TO CONTROL PRICE EARLY SPRING VEGETABLES

Ottawa, (C.P.) — The Prices Board said recently that an order establishing a "strict mark-up control" on early spring vegetables, including bottled tomatoes, celery, cabbage, carrots, green peas and greens was being made to become effective shortly.

Rapid price rises in recent weeks, coupled with evidence that "some importers and retailers are taking higher than their normal mark-ups" were given as the reason for the proposed order.

"The mark-up control will be based on actual 'laid-down cost based on United States ceiling prices, whichever is lower," the board said in a statement.

"Fresh fruits and vegetables were exempted from the original price ceiling orders because of the difficulty of administering a ceiling on seasonal and highly perishable products. However, early in 1942, when potatoes and onions had shown abnormal seasonal increases, they were put under control.

"Seasonal increases have occurred during the last two months in prices of fresh vegetables, particularly the very much higher prices prevailing in the countries from which these vegetables are exported at this season of the year, but there is evidence that importers and retailers are taking higher than normal mark-ups."

Kidney Acids Rob Your Rest
Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They turn and toss—lie awake and count sheep. Often they blame it on "nerves" when it may be their kidneys. Healthy kidneys filter poisons from the blood. If they are faulty and fail, poisons stay in the system and sleeplessness, headache, backache often follow. If you don't sleep well, try Dodd's Kidney Pills—for half a century the favorite remedy.

King Gustav V Pillar Of Strength to Sweden In Stress of War

BY DR. KARL HILDEBRAND
Chairman of The Swedish Public Debt Commission

In January, 1934, when King Gustav V met his 8 Kadet for the first time after his accession, he declared that he was deeply conscious of the responsibilities which had been laid upon him. "Actuated, however, by a strong zeal for the well-being and the future development of my country, I be continued. "I shall ever seek to fulfill the duties of my exalting May it be vouchsafed me that in that undertaking, in times of adversity as well as in days of prosperity, my Swedish people may unite with me and support me in our joint endeavors for the true welfare of our Fatherland."

"With the People for the Fatherland" was his motto, and for thirty-five years those words have been for him an exhortation and a commandment. Eighty-five years old he stands today upright and unbroken by the perilous storms which have swept Europe, a towering figure around whom his people rally with an ever-deepening sense of confidence.

His actions as a ruler have been distinguished throughout by a strong sense of duty. When the Riksdag celebrated its 500th anniversary in May, 1935, he made a memorable speech in which he declared that he sought always to make his motto the guiding principle in all his dealings.

King Gustav has declared that his task has not seen easy. The truth of this statement is best understood if one considers the great social upheaval which has taken place during his reign and the far-reaching consequences of two world wars. The beginning of the Twentieth century was the halcyon age of optimism. The world seemed to have reached a hitherto undreamed of epoch of peaceful evolution, and international trade built precious raw materials by exchanging into Europe in exchange for manufactured goods. People looked forward to a new era of perpetual progress. Such was western Europe in the early twentieth century, and then the war broke.

Gradually, the masses of the people awoke to the realization of their own power to serve and began to demand a share in the social administration of the country. Democracy won fresh ground in the Riksdag. In 1920 the Second Chamber was chosen by a purely male electorate numbering 402,000. In 1940 the corresponding figure was 4,111,000 — an electorate which compromised women as well as men. The First Chamber lost its aristocratic Upper House characteristics and became, in a new democratic form, a supporting unit of a fully representative system of government.

This upheaval, one might almost say revolution, brought about a series of powerful actions by the people certainly had an immediate effect on the introduction of new laws and, in particular, those which dealt with social development. The composition of the government was drastically altered by the new conditions. Where earlier the cabinet had consisted entirely of high public officials and big landowners, it now began to include peasants, journalists and laborers.

King Gustav has worked in smooth co-operation with cabinets of varying composition and political hue and has shown that the monarchy is still of importance, even in a state with the most pronounced form of democratic government. It is a steadying influence in time of unrest. The king is by law the principal representative of his people's will in both home and foreign affairs. In that fact lies his responsibility and, indeed, his right to intervene wherever the seriousness of the situation calls for such action. In this respect King Gustav has proved himself the man the nation needed —sufficiently elastic to understand and keep pace with the shifting tide of social development, yet always mindful of his kingly responsibility.

As a young man he had occasion to take an active part in important matters of state. The Swedish-Norwegian Union then was giving rise to constant problems and disagreements between the two countries, and owing to the ill health of his father, King Oscar II, the Crown Prince, was entrusted with the reins of government and on several occasions was officially named regent. During the last acute crisis immediately before the union was dissolved in 1905 and while working on the domestic and foreign political problems which followed that breach, he revealed a wise and sober judgment.

During the World War King Gustav was able to appear even more openly as the principal representative of his people. It was only natural that a peace-loving monarch should strive to keep his people out of the war. It was equally natural that the Swedish state should try to uphold the international law which had developed out of centuries of practical politics and theoretical speculations. From the very outbreak of hostilities the king was firmly convinced that the three Nordic states should make common cause. The fact that Norway had dissolved her union with Sweden in 1905 did not form any barrant kller his purpose. And the whole world witnessed a manifestation of King Gustav's character and true sense of his responsibilities when, in December, 1914, he invited the Kings of Norway and Denmark to meet him in Malmo to discuss with their foreign ministers, matters of common interest.

He took another step toward Nordic unity when the three Kings met again in Kristiania—now Oslo—in November, 1917. While the union between Sweden and Norway had still existed he had been, in his position as heir to the Norwegian throne, a student and officer among Norwegians. As regent he had lived in the Royal Palace. But now, when duty called, he resolutely put those memories aside. In his reply to King Haakon's speech of welcome he urged him to join in a new union . . . "not on the pattern of the old, but a union of affection and understanding which I hope will prove more durable than the one which formerly prevailed." . . .

The three Nordic lands succeeded then in avoiding participation in the great war and during the periods between wars, King Gustav, backed by his Riksdag and by each succeeding Cabinet, sought to encourage all new measures which might bring about a peaceful rapprochement between the nations of the world.

Developments in Scandinavia, however, were to prove different in this war than they had been twenty-five years earlier. Nordic unity split asunder even soon after Sweden stood alone, following to the letter her already declared policy of strict neutrality. That policy, up to the time of writing, has been pursued successfully despite the difficulties and pitfalls encountered. The Swedish people owe a debt of gratitude to their king for the part he has played in making this possible, for his exceptional energy, for the judicious use of the authority his acquaintance with prominent men in the belligerent countries and his unfailing good judgment.

It is a novel of love and devotion of unswerving loyalty and self-sacrifice, the glowing and eventful record of a girl who became the conscience of a family, the true representative of their integrity both in the home and in the roaring tumult of the steel mills.

CHURCHILL LISTS FATAL AXIS ERRORS

London, (C.P.) — Britain had less than fifty tanks and only "a couple of hundred field guns, some of them brought out of the museum," to meet an invasion that did not come in 1940, Premier Churchill told a private audience of coal miners and mine owners in a speech on Dec. 10 1942, it was disclosed last week.

Appealing for a stepped-up coal production, the Prime Minister told his audience in a review of Britain's darkest days that if Hitler had attempted to invade after Dunkirk "there would have been terrible rumbles in this country because we had hardly a weapon."

"We had not at that time fifty tanks whereas we now have 10,000 or 12,000," he said.

ENEMY MISTAKES

"I sometimes have the feeling—in fact I have it very strongly—the feeling of some kind of interference," he said. "I want to stress that I have the feeling that we had a Guardian because we serve a great cause and that we shall have that Guardian so long as we serve that cause faithfully.

"We have made mistakes," he went on. "We have made miscalculations. Those are being saved from the consequences of the miscalculations by the incomparably greater mistakes and blunders which these all-wise dictators have produced. Look at the mistake Hitler made in not trying invasion in 1940."

Hitler did try tentatively, Mr. Churchill said, but the R.A.F. broke up his plans by smashing a fleet of invasion craft assembled in the occupied Channel ports.

Mr. Churchill said another Axis mistake was in attacking Pearl Harbor instead of Britain when she was already fighting Italy and Germany in Europe.

FATAL BLUNDER

"It is most fortunate," Mr. Churchill said, "that led away by their dark conspiracies and schemes, dizzy and dazzled by poring over plans, they sprang upon a peaceful nation with whom they were at that time in peaceful parley and were led away and tottered over the edge; and for the sake of sinking half a dozen ships of war and beating up a naval port brought and against them the implacable energies and measureless power of the 120,000,000 educated people who live in the United States.

"We have much to be thankful for."

Mr. Churchill said that the U-boat peril was first among all dangers ahead and said that "many more than the 300 to 400 submarines then operating would be working in 1943."

He told mining representatives that the danger of a spring invasion of Britain could not be overlooked because the Germans could dispatch 60 to 70 divisions to bolster troops in France.

Third danger presented itself in a less precisely-defined form, he said. "The last hope of the guilty Huns is a miracle."

HUN STRATEGY

"Their idea has been made very plain" . . . "to build up a vast fortress out of the greater part of Europe, to hold out for seven long years, hoping that we would get tired and fall out among ourselves and make a miserable peace," Mr. Churchill said.

Such a peace would mean "and could only mean, that they would begin again."

Black-out in Gretley—Priestley
England's most popular novelist and a master story-teller has produced a novel of pre-war wartime, that will rank as a classic.

I Live Again — Deeping
Warwick Deeping has written a novel filled with dramatic suspense and mystery. He never written anything quite so original and surprising.

The Seventh Cross—Segher.
Breathlessly exciting narration overdepth below depth of human heroism and depravity. It is by all odds the best fiction to have come out of Europe's Gethsemane.

Thorofare — Morley
This is the story of an English boy who came to the United States, and his adventures of mind and feeling in the years until he became an American citizen.

HITLER'S THIEVES STEAL BILLIONS OF EUROPE'S GOODS

Washington, (B.U.P.) — Nazi Germany, engaged in "the greatest steal in history," is looting Europe to the tune of tens of billions of dollars in every land, the Board of Economic Warfare reported last week.

The report said, but since then "has accelerated and is running into tens of billions of dollars per year."

ARMIES LOOTED

All the vanquished armies of Europe have been stripped of their armaments and equipment; thousands of machines have been dismantled and moved to Germany; laboratory and scientific equipment from the greatest research institutes in Europe has been confiscated; precious cattle, sheep, pigs and fats have been stolen; public galleries and private collections have been looted of art objects and other fine furniture, park benches and garden tools appropriated.

On April 25, 1941, the German High Command announced that 872 locomotives and 2,000,000 tons had been taken over in occupied harbors," the report said.

EXAMPLES LISTED

Here are some if Bew's examples of Nazi thievery:

Poland — Confiscation of public property estimated at $2,000,000,000 of which the port of Gdynia accounts for $400,000,000; the Polish State Steel works, $320,000,000, and the state forests, some $200,000,000. Within a year after the fall of Poland, an office of trusteeship was formed to take over Polish property and has confiscated 294 large, 9,000 medium-sized and 76,000 small industrial plants, totalling some 2,000,000 tons small trading firms.

France — Germany acquired steel scrap to cover normal German exports for three and a half years, plus 1,500,000 tons of oil reserves, 42,000 tons of war copper, 27,000 tons of zinc, 19,000 tons of lead, and lesser but substantial amounts of tin, nickel and quicksilver. Loot included food, soap, shoes, clothing, paper, razor blades, even toothpaste. One hundred and forty trains were needed to carry leather, silk and canned food away from Lyons — and the trains were the largest. The value of requisitioned French railway rolling stock is estimated at $320,000,000.

CZECHO ROBBED

Czecho-Slovakia — Over $1,500,000,000 of military acquisitions including 1,000,000 rifles, 138,000 machine guns, 1,500 airplanes, 3,000 field guns and nine throwers, and 1,680,000,000 rounds of rifle and 3,000,000 rounds of artillery ammunition. Looting extended even to stocks of laundry, military hospitals and the iron hinges on barrack doors and windows.

Holland, Belgium and Norway — Unrelieved looting with rubber, sugar, copra and other foods and materials emptied.

Health Ammunition Is Packed in Well-Balanced Lunch Boxes

A glimpse into Canadian kitchens in the early hours of each morning would reveal thousands of women busily packing lunch boxes which will shortly be on their way to factory, office and school.

These lunch boxes carry health ammunition to the home front, for they must provide the energy and vitality that workers need to enable them to give their best to the job.

Three "don't" rules are "musts" for every lunch box:—

1. Don't fish, eggs, cheese or dried beans.

2. Don't fail to vegetable — both are best.

3. Milk in some form.

Here are recipes from the Consumer Section of the Dominion Department of Agriculture that will help the housewife in preparing lunch boxes.

Savoury Beef Sandwich Filling

A filling that will keep several days if kept covered and cold.

One cup finely minced, cooked roast or corned beef; one cup grated mild or flavored cheese; one-half cup chopped sweet pickle; one teaspoon of grated onion; half-cup salad dressing; half-teaspoon salt.

Combine ingredients and blend together lightly. Makes three cups of filling.

Tomato Cheese Dressing

Just the thing to use with raw vegetable sandwich fillings or salads. Will keep.

One tablespoon fat, two tablespoons flour, one teaspoon dry mustard, one teaspoon Worcestershire sauce; one-half cup of tomato juice; two cups grated cheese; one egg, well beaten; one-eighth teaspoon soda.

Melt fat in the top of a double boiler, add flour and seasonings and blend. Add tomato juice and cheese. Cook, stirring constantly, until the mixture is smooth and creamy. Add beaten egg and continue cooking about one minute longer. Remove from heat and cool. Makes enough dressing for one and one-half cups chopped raw vegetables.

Baked Stuffed Spareribs

Equally good, hot for dinner or cold in the lunch box as a change from sandwiches.

Two matching pieces of spareribs, stuffing, salt and pepper, flour.

Wipe the spareribs with a damp cloth, spread one piece with any desired bread dressing, cover with the other piece and tie together with string. Season with salt and pepper and rub with flour. Place on a rack in an uncovered roaster and bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees F. about one and one-half hours or until tender. Remove string before serving. Slice pieces of spareribs

THE EMPIRE'S "WAITING ARMY"

Five German divisions — 75,000 men — could have conquered Britain's land forces after Dunkirk, in June 1940, Brig. Gen. Norman Elliott-Rodger, of Ottawa, said in London, recently.

All that stood between the Germans and victory provided they succeeded in landing in Britain in force was the fully-equipped Canadian 1st Corps and the battered remnants of the British troops brought back home over the Channel.

Instead, Rodger said, "the Nazis struck southward into France and lost their chance. All the while, the Canadians, shuffled out of most actions by accident, were anxious to get into battle.

The British saved 335,000 men in the Dunkirk evacuation and the Germans on June 4th, 1940, but failed to get their equipment home. The Canadians' only mobile division, the Second Division was fanned out next to the coast to be ready for a German invasion that didn't come. By September, four more Canadian divisions overseas have made it through the British navy and the British land defences, Rodger said.

This Canadian division has become the Empire's "waiting army." Long-trained, the soldiers were sent to France once to defend Paris but were withdrawn when the fall of France became apparent.

Rodger said their part may come in the "big push" — invasion or its equivalent.

"We have been saying we'll be in action next month, they felt the same way the next month and the next," said Jack Huffman of Calgary, an artillery bombardier. "Now we feel it is close upon us."

More than 6,000 of the Canadians have married since coming here. None of them has seen home for three years. The Canadian group has grown constantly, corps expanding into divisions. And they are clamoring for action.

The business man called at his friend's office. After a glance round he asked. "How's your new office boy getting along?"

"Fine; he's got everything so mixed up that I can't get along without him!"

Foods With Springtime Crispness Welcome At Winter's End

Spring foods! Fr.m. fresh rhubarb, tender green, leaf lettuce; tangy onions, rosy radishes, succulent asparagus. How welcome are these newcomers in our shops and gardens.

This spring they are perhaps, more welcome than usual, for our meals this past winter have been more limited as to variety than they have been in recent years.

The extra pound of sugar allowed this year for use with rhubarb will be a big help, for this fruit, does require a good deal of sugar to sweeten it. There are sugar saving tips for the ration-wise, even for rhubarb. Here they are.

Before cooking, pour boiling water over the prepared rhubarb. Let stand five minutes and drain. This takes away quite a bit of the bitterness.

Add a small pinch of salt while cooking.

Add the sugar after the rhubarb is cooked and less will be required.

By following these directions three tablespoons of sugar still be found ample to sweeten one cup of rhubarb.

These varied recipes from the Consumer Section of the Dominion Department of Agriculture are all delicious and are grand "pepper-uppers" for spring menus.

Rhubarb-Raisin Upsidedown Cake

Tro tablespoons melted butter — one-third cup sugar, two cups of rhubarb, half-cup raisins, one and one-half cups pastry flour, one egg and one-third cups all-purpose flour, one-third cup sugar (additional), three teaspoons baking powder, half-teaspoon salt, one egg, half-cup milk, two tablespoons melted butter.

Pour melted butter over the bottom of a square cake pan. Sprinkle the sugar and raisins over the rhubarb. Sift flour once more before measuring. Sift flour, baking powder and salt together three times. Beat egg, add sugar gradually, beating after each addition. Add flour mixture alternately with milk, mixing only enough to combine ingredients but not beat till smooth. Pour batter over the fruit. Bake in moderate oven, 400F. for 25 minutes or until serving plate and serve with cream.

Asparagus and Egg Salad

Two cups cooked asparagus stalks, three tablespoons cooking oil, one tablespoon vinegar, one teaspoon salt, one-quarter teaspoon pepper, two hard-cooked eggs, lettuce.

Cook asparagus until tender. Drain. Cover with a French dressing made by mixing oil, vinegar, salt and pepper and pour over asparagus. Chill thoroughly. Arrange on lettuce leaves and garnish with sliced hard-cooked eggs.

Sprinkle with paprika and serve on a moderately cold plate.

Spring Salad

One cup chopped celery, one cup chopped cooked asparagus, one cup shredded green, lettuce, one cup sliced radishes, one cup sliced radishes for garnish.

Use tender inner stalks of celery for this salad. Mix celery, asparagus and lettuce together lightly. Arrange in a bowl and garnish with sliced radishes. Serve with salad French dressing.

New X-Ray Machine Perfected at Petawawa

From Petawawa Military Hospital comes the news that within the week an addition to present X-ray equipment that is not to be found in the Dominion, has been built and perfected.

The new apparatus, concentrating on one plane of the body, does away with the shadows that in some cases confuse the ordinary X-ray. It will prove of immeasurable value in studying and treating chest, skull, sinus and other conditions.

The specialty with which many technical difficulties were successfully overcome deserves special mention. Credit for the achievement is shared jointly by Major A. E. Broome, P. M.H. Radiologist, and Crown Driver of the Ordnance Corps, who carried out the intricate construction.

D. R. Oliver, popularly known as "Pete," to his acquaintances, is the eldest son of W. S. Oliver, on the Deseronto Road, and joined the Army on June 22nd, 1942.

TWO ARE SENTENCED FOR BREAK-IN AT HUDSON HOME

The three men who broke into the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Hudson, R.R. 2, Napanee, about four miles east of the town, last Friday night, appeared before Magistrate Garvin on Thursday. All three pled guilty to the charge. Joseph Egochne, Montreal, who had recently served five years in St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary for assault causing grievous bodily harm, was sentenced to serve two years in Kingston Penitentiary. Norman Leslie, of Ottawa, who admitted being a deserter from the Army and who had previously served 12 months in the Reformatory, for theft and breaking and entering, was given a sentence of eighteen months in the Ontario Reformatory. Roger Garleey, Montreal, the third member of the group, was allowed to go without any sentence. He had no criminal record and evidence showed that his connection with the other two was more or less accidental.

Egochen was wearing a patch on his forehead, covering the wound inflicted by the brick with which he was struck by Mrs. Hudson, who assisted her husband in capturing him, after the three men ran out of the home when they were discovered going through kitchen drawers. The other two ran down the road, but were later arrested by Constable Taylor.

FLYERS ATTEND MORNING SERVICE TRINITY CHURCH

About 100 members of No. 1 Instrument Flying School, Deseronto, attended the morning service of Trinity United Church on Sunday. Flight-Lieut. John Scott, Acting Chaplain of the R. C. A. F., preached the sermon. The minister of the church, Rev. G. M. McCullough, took the service, assisted by Rev. C.D. McLellan, minister of Grace Church. The church was filled to capacity and a number who attended were seated in the Sunday School Hall.

A male choir, directed by Mrs. J. E. Madden, led in the singing and rendered two anthems. Gordon Bowman, a member of the Flying School at Deseronto, played a violin solo, accompanied at the organ by Mrs. Madden.

Flight-Lieut.'s sermon was based on the text: "God hath in these last days spoken to us by His Son." Right through the ages, the speaker said, men have risen up in times of crisis to be redeemers of their people. In a rapid and concise review of past and present day secular and religious history, he recalled the roles played by Alexander the Great, the Duke of Wellington, Lord Haig, Lloyd George, Roosevelt and Churchill, Moses, David, Elijah, Martin Luther and the Wesleys. In all times of great need there was always a man, somewhere, who would call back the people to faith in God, he said. To-day we are living in an age of constant change and are faced with problems of physical, moral and spiritual nature, which have been created by the prevailing conditions.

Great as are our leaders to-day, there is only one who can lead us out of our present difficulties.

That man, said the speaker, is Jesus. Jesus is the same to-day as he was when he dwelt on the earth. God still has a message for people and that message can alone be interpreted by Jesus. What the world needs, Flight-Lieut. Scott said, is a personal faith in an unchanging Christ. Lt' we have such a faith nothing can shake us and the world can be saved from chaos.

Ruri-Decanal Chapter Lennox and Addington

The Spring meeting of the Ruri-Decanal Chapter of Lennox and Addington was held in the church at Tyendinaga, on Thursday, May 20th, 1943. The following clergymen of the Deanery were in attendance:— Rev. Rural Dean Pringle, Venerable Archdeacon Dufferin, Canon H. Spencer, Canon Radcliffe, Rev. C. C. Brazill, Rev. F. O. Ware, Rev. D. G. Osborne-Walker.

At 10:00 a.m., a Quiet Hour was conducted by Rev. F. O. Ware. There was a celebration of the Holy Communion at 11 o'clock in Christ Church. At noon an excellent luncheon was served by the ladies of the parish, in the rectory. The chapter met in the rectory at 2:00 p.m. The reports from the various parishes with regard to the assessments were encouraging. NAPANEE DISTRICT CANNING SUGAR 10-11 LBS. PER PERSON

Families of 5 or Over Get 11 Lbs. Each

The allotment of sugar for canning for the 1943 season for the Napanee district has been set as follows: For families up to and including four, ten pounds for each member of the family; for families of five and over, 11 pounds for each member.

In making their distribution of sugar canning coupons, certain Local Ration Boards have set an allotment for rural applicants which is larger than that granted urban residents.

This action has been taken by the Boards in question in the belief that rural people have a legitimate claim to more sugar per person for canning than the urban population, owing to the fact that the latter have readier access to fresh fruits and certain other supplies during the winter months.

Since the matter of allotting canning sugar has been left to the discretion of the Local Ration Boards, this practice is not being universally adopted but wherever such a difference in allotment exists it is based upon the consideration already mentioned.

Each Local Ration Board has been allotted a definite amount of sugar for canning sugar for distribution, and it cannot exceed this amount by entertaining late applications or variations in those already made.

HEAR ADDRESS ON ACCIDENT PREVENTION

Mr. W. M. Cox, Assistant Chief Inspector of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association of Ontario, was the speaker at a dinner meeting in the interest of accident prevention in industry at the recreation rooms of The Gibbard Furniture Shops, last Wednesday evening.

The meeting and dinner were attended by members of the staff of The Gibbard Furniture Shops, The Rose-Miller Biscuit Co., The Lennox Lumber Company, The Acme Farmers' Dairy in Napanee, and representatives of industries at Deseronto, Newburgh and other nearby localities.

Following the dinner interesting motion pictures on the subject of accident prevention were shown, after which Mr. Cox gave an address. The speaker was introduced by Mr. Jack McPherson, in the absence of Mr. J. H. Moffat, an executive member of the Central Section of the Woodworkers Association.

Mr. Cox's subject was "Everybody's Business," and in the course of his talk he showed that accident prevention in industry is not merely the business of the foreman, but is everybody's business.

Mr. Cox stated that the cost of industrial accidents is steadily increasing, but as employment is increasing in the first three months of 1943, accidents increased 4.3 per cent. with a resulting cost increase of 2.7 per cent compared with the same period in 1942.

The accident increase is mainly in minor accidents, the ones which are really the easiest to control, but about which the least is done.

Mr. Cox showed how accidents affect production and increase the cost of the articles produced. For every dollar of direct cost of accidents, Mr. Cox said there are four dollars of indirect costs. Indirect costs include the lost time of the injured person, the lost time of fellow workers who stop to give aid and to talk about the accident; lost time of the foreman, slow-up of production; damage to machinery and equipment, and cost of securing another worker.

The actual money paid out as a result of accidents since the Workmen's Compensation Act came into effect is $163,072,000 and including indirect costs, this figure increased to $652,000,000.

Last year 123,345 accidents were reported with 429 fatalities—the highest in history. Unskilled people trained on war orders workers contributed to the accident toll in 1942. Unless the present accident trend is checked the country is faced with over 1,000,000 days of work lost in 1943. To teach a man safety, a man must be interested in his job and interested in accident prevention, Mr. Cox said.

The Canadian-built outpost at Goose Bay is one of the world's largest and most important air bases. The combined air forces operate the air line taking the vital ships to battle zones, Canadian Army units guard the area and Canadian construction gangs enlarge and maintain the outpost facilities. Mighty bombers are readied for this trip to Britain by the Royal Air Force Training Command. Runways going into the distance are 6,000 ft. long.

New X-Ray Machine Perfected at Petawawa

From Petawawa Military Hospital comes the news that within the camp, an addition to present X-ray equipment will be added, the first in the Dominion, has been built and perfected.

The new apparatus, concentrating on one plane of the body, does away with the shadows that in some cases confuse the ordinary X-ray. It will prove of great assistance, not only in studying and treating chest, skull lesions and other conditions.

The ingenuity with which many technical difficulties were successfully overcome deserves special mention. Credit for the achievement is shared jointly by Major E. E. Broome, F. M.H. Radiologist, and Oron A. Oliver of the Ordnance Depot, who carried out the intricate construction.

Dr. R. Oliver, popularly known as "Pete," to his acquaintances, is the eldest son of W. S. Oliver, on the Deseronto Road, and joined the Army on June 22nd, 1942.

As this is a war time Conference, there are no special public meetings, every session being a business one. Conference will close at the end of the afternoon session on Friday evening, June 4th.

TWO ARE SENTENCED FOR BREAK-IN AT HUDSON HOME

The three men who broke into the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Hudson, R.R. 2, Napanee, about four miles east of the town, last Friday night, appeared before Magistrate Garvin on Thursday. All three pled guilty to the charge. Joseph Egochne, Montreal, who had recently served five years in St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary for assault causing grievous bodily harm, was sentenced to serve two years in Kingston Penitentiary. Norman Leslie, of Ottawa, who admitted being a deserter from the Army and who had previously served 12 months in the Reformatory, for theft and breaking and entering, was given a sentence of eighteen months in the Ontario Reformatory. Roger Gariepy, Montreal, the third member of the group, was allowed to go without any sentence. He had no criminal record and evidence showed that his connection with the other two was more or less accidental.

Egochen was wearing a patch on his forehead, covering the wound inflicted bythe brick with which he was struck by Mrs. Hudson, who assisted her husband in capturing him, after the three men ran out of the home where they were discovered going through kitchen drawers. The other two ran down the road, but were later arrested by Constable Taylor.

The allotment of sugar for canning for the 1943 season for the Napanee district has been set as follows: For families up to and including four, ten pounds for each member of the family; for families of five and over, 11 pounds for each member.

In making their distribution of sugar canning coupons, certain Local Ration Boards have set an allotment for rural applicants while is larger than that granted urban residents.

This action has been taken by the Boards in question in the belief that rural people have a legitimate claim to more sugar per person for canning than the urban population, owing to the fact that the latter has a readier access to fresh fruits and certain other supplies during the winter months.

Since the matter of allowing canning sugar has been left to the discretion of the Local Ration Boards, this practice is not being universally adopted but wherever such a difference in allotments exists it is based upon the consideration already mentioned.

Each Local Ration Board has been allotted a definite amount of canning sugar for distribution, and it cannot exceed this amount by entertaining late applications or variations in those already made.

HEAR ADDRESS ON ACCIDENT PREVENTION

Mr. W. H. Cox, Assistant Chief Inspector of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association of Ontario, was the speaker at a dinner meeting in the interest of accident prevention in industry, at the recreation rooms of The Gibbard Furniture Shops, last Wednesday evening.

The meeting and dinner were attended by members of the staff of The Gibbard Furniture Shops, The Napanee Iron Works, The Rose-Miller Biscuit Co. The Lennox Lumber Company, The Acme Farmers' Dairy in Napanee, and representatives of industries at Deseronto, Newburgh and other nearby localities.

Following the dinner interesting motion pictures on the subject of accident prevention were shown, after which Mr. Cox gave an address. The speaker was introduced by Mr. Jack McPherson, in the absence of Mr. J. H. Moffat, an executive member of the Central Section of the Woodworkers Association.

Mr. Cox's subject was "Everybody's Business," and in the course of his talk he showed that accident prevention in industry is not merely the business of the foreman, but is everybody's business.

Mr. Cox stated that the cost of industrial accident is steadily increasing, just as employment is increasing. In the first three months of 1943, accidents increased 4.3 per cent, with a resulting cost increase of 2.7 per cent compared with the same period in 1942.

The accident increase is mainly in minor accidents, the ones which are really the easiest to control, but about which the least is done.

Mr. Cox showed how accidents affect production and increase the cost of the articles produced. For every dollar of direct cost of accidents, Mr. Cox said there are four dollars of indirect costs. Indirect costs include the lost time of the injured person; lost time of fellow workers who stop to give aid and to talk about the accident; lost time of the foreman; slow-up of production; damage to machinery and equipment, and cost of securing another worker.

The actual money cost as a result of accidents since the Workmen's Compensation Act came into effect is $163,072,000 and including indirect costs this figure increased to $652,000,000

Last year 123,515 accidents were reported with 429 fatalities—the highest in history. Unskilled, poorly-trained and reckless workers contributed to the accident total in 1942. Unless the present accident rate is checked the country is faced with over 1,000,000 days of work lost in 1943. To reach a man safety a man must be interested in his job and interested in accident prevention, Mr. Cox said.

The Canadian Army and the Royal Canadian Air Force, co-operating with other United Nations Air Forces, have forged a mighty link in the war-time bomber route which joins the rugged Labrador coast to embattled Britain. The Canadian-built outpost at Goose Bay is one of the world's largest and most important air bases. The combined air forces operate the air line taking the vital ships to battle zones. Canadian Army units guard the area and Canadian construction gangs enlarge and maintain the outpost facilities. Mighty bombers are resided for the trip to Britain by the Royal Air Force Training Command. Runways going into the distance are 6,000 ft. long.

STOP THAT WASTE

Driving through the country recently, we came across fields in which thousands upon thousands of cabbage were rotting on their stems. There had been no market for them and they were not gathered last Fall. And now a few months later, it is impossible to get a cole slaw in the resturant, because of the scarcity of cabbage. We have been a prodigal people. On this North American Continent we have raised more food than we can sell, and often, the tomatoes, cabbage etc., have been left to rot on the ground. That is not to say there has been no need for this food. As a matter of fact there have always been people, even on this North American Continent who have lived on a subsistence level or below it. But because food could not be sold at a profit, it has not been harvested. The whole sorry business is wrong. It is morally, wrong to raise food and let it rot, while people go hungry, just because it cannot be sold at a profit.

It seemed impossible, even a year or two ago, that this great food producing country of ours would ever have to give a second thought about food. But now, we are forced to give, not only a second thought but a whole lot of thoughts to the subject. The unprecendented wet weather will make it impossible for many farmers to do all they ought. Then there is the shortage of labor, which is a serious handicap to production. To be sure, the Government is taking some action now to correct this situation. It is to be hoped that the change will not come too late.

We are not wholly dependent on our own efforts for the food we eat. Wind, rain, sun, are contributing factors and over those we have no control. But within our power, we should see to it that we not only produce all we need but that some method of distribution will be discovered which will make it absolutely unnecessary, indeed illegal, to let food rot on the fields, just because of the vagaries of a manmade profit system. Surely, men who are capable of doing such wonderful things in the realm of science, can devise some better way of distributing the gifts of the soil.

THE END OF THE COMINTERN

There may not be so much to the voluntary dissolution of the Comintern, as seems on the surface. The Press in Great Britain, The United States and Canada have gone in raptures over the announcement that the Communists as represented in the Comintern, have decided to dissolve their contral organization. As a matter of fact the real value of this action will be more psychological than anything else.

During the past few years the importance of a central organization, meeting in Moscow, and seeking to unite all the workers of the world, has grown less and less necessary. In the various countries the Communists have become well organized, have their own leaders, their own constitution and their own plans. They have conducted their propaganda along lines that were designed to meet the particular conditions of their own country. So while the separate Communists grew strong and were increasingly able to stand on their own feet, the necessity of a central organization became less imperative. The dissolution of the Comintern merely gives official sanction to a movement which was well on its way.

The real value of the action of the Comintern is psychological. It will deprive Germany of one of its greatest propaganda weapons. So long as the Comintern operated, it was possible for Germany to pose as the savior of Europe from the Communists in Moscow, who were pledged to overthrow all other governments and set-up Soviets. In The United States there were large sections of the State who had a mortal fear of Communism, and consequently were unwilling to go all out in their united effort for fear of what the Russians might do in the event of an Allied victory. Now they will have to that bogey removed and will no longer live in terror of a Red revolution engineered from Moscow, which would overthrow the prevailing economic system.

In Great Britain, the Communists, who represent a fairly large section of the laboring group, have been prevented, hitherto, from uniting with the Labor organization. The I. L. P. will now have no reason for keeping the Communists out of their organization.

The clerical Fascist group who have been so active of late, will be in difficulty now, for they will be no longer able to conjure up fears of an atheist, communist Russia, seeking to dominate the rest of the world.

Taking it all round the move of the Comintern is a good strategy, and will help the Democratic cause on the diplomatic and economic front, very materially.

THE LATE PREMIER ABERHART

Premier Aberhart, who died in Vancouver on Sunday, was a strange combination. He was a shrewd business man, a gifted leader, and a man who held religious views which anyone else would have found hard to maintain along with his scientific training. Premier Aberhart was born in Ontario, was a graduate of Queen's University and up until the time he entered politics, was a high school teacher, in Calgary. He entered politics as the champion of Social Credit. He went to the country on the promise of making available for all citizens, a monthly cash payment.. This promise was never fulfilled.

In view of the radical and unexpected turn which so called orthdox financing has taken during the past few years, the views expressed by Mr. Aberhart may not now seem so fantastic and far-fetched as they did in 1935. Indeed it may well be that history will record that Mr. Aberhart was just a bit ahead of his time.

More than once, in these columns, we have expressed regret that the Dominion Government which has given the control of credit to the banks, should not have assisted Mr. Aberhart to make an experiment of his financial theories. It was, of course impossible as Mr Aberhart found, to establish Social Credit in one Province without the co-operation of the body which controls credit as a whole. It was this which was responsible for the failure of the Alberta Government to continue its trials with Social Credit. However, he paved the way, and others may reap the fruits, in the Social Credit idea, something which will give direction to a more equitable financial set-up than that under which our present economy is operating.

Mr. Aberhart's Prophetic Bible School was a public forum from which the Premier, week after week, expounded his religious views. He believed in the literal fulfillment of Biblical prophecy, and, in what to scholars seemed like a rather literalistic and unsympathetic way, sought to get the ideas he held over to as many people as possible, and certainly he had a large listening audience who accepted his views. In a day of crisis such as that through which we are passing, prophecy always becomes a popular theme. People are looking to see what the future may have in store for them and their country. Consequently, anything which may seem to give them that certainty is welcomed with open arms. That a Premier of a Province should not only hold the view of literal fulfillment of prophecy, but week after week expounds it over the air, is one of the most unusual incidents of the strange era through which we are passing.

Even Mr. Aberhart's enemies will have to admit that apart, altogether, from the religious and financial theories he held, he made a contribution to the life of the Province that will not easily be lost. In education and in social services particularly, Alberta has done a good job. Perhaps no other province has done so well in the matter of university extension work and in making available for the people travelling libraries.

Allies have an impressive army of fighting strength facing Europe. There are large French and Polish forces supporting these armies, too.

Allied Commander-in-Chief, Montgomery's Army appeared to drop out, for the most part, from the final phases of the battle of Tunisia.

One question which the Axis must decide is how fast fresh supplies of ammunition, bombs and planes can be moved up to Bizerte and Tunis to enable the Allies to launch an attack upon Sicily.

The Germans know from bitter experience that Gen. the Harold R. L. G. Alexander and Gen. Montgomery move only after the most careful preparations. Every available detachment is expected to precede any land invasion.

So far as the Axis knows, the Eighth Army may have been withdrawn to Derna, Tobruk, Cairo or other points for an attack at the eastern end of the Mediterranean. The Axis also is largely in the dark regarding British and American disposition at Cyprus, Palestine and Syria, logical jumping off points for invasion of the Lebanese and Aegean islands.

The only fact of which the Axis is well aware is that it requires time to bring up supplies, reinforcements and special equipment necessary for a major over-water jump.

The Axis had been reporting for many days before the close of the Tunisian campaign, that the Allies were preparing to invasion Sardinia or other naval craft through the Straits of Gibraltar.

But the Axis is unable to determine — now that air control of the Sicilian narrows has been lost, whether the Allies propose to launch the first attack in the Central or Eastern Mediterranean.

V

NERVE CENTRES OF WAR

The field of signals is the nerve centre of war. In global war, military intelligence is transmitted over thousands of miles, from continent to continent, and from hemisphere to hemisphere, as easily and as speedily as from house to house in any Canadian municipality. Wireless, telephone, telegraph, teletype and other means of communication are indispensable weapons of offensive and defensive warfare.

To supply the armed forces with the equipment for "global warfare" Canada has embarked upon a large programme of signals production. Today, besides filling the needs of the army, navy and air force, Canada is producing communication equipment to Britain, Russia, India, Australia, New Zealand and the United States. Canadian signal materials are seeing service in every theatre of war. Canadian radios, guns and ships are radio controlled.

Equipment Output Soars

From a small industry with an annual peacetime production of $15,000,000, the manufacturing of communication equipment has grown by more than 1,600 per cent since 1939. Since the peak wartime production in 1940 because signals equipment, of which was adopted from British and re-engineered to suit Canadian needs, was still in the process of design. But production leaped to $35,000,000 in 1941 as the programme got under way. Last year military communications equipment valued at more than 100,000,000 was turned out. And in the present year, Hon., C. D. Howe, Minister of Munitions and Supply, has forecast production at more than $250,000,000.

To meet these enormous demands, the electrical industry of Canada have converted their facilities to the signals programme. More than 600 major contracts and 4,000 minor contracts have been let in the two countries.

New Secret Weapons

Canada is also a large producer of secret signal and air observation apparatus, some of which is so complicated that several fair ones are required to move one set. The Dominion, because of its fine research facilities, is the sole producer of some of this equipment and is supplying it to the United States as well as to Britain.

The problem of designing, producing and maintaining signals equipment is an enormous one. Unlike civilian radios, which are designed to operate under near perfect conditions, the signals set must function as well at 50 degrees below zero as at 120 abot. It must operate unaffected by high altitudes, moisture or corrosive effects of salt water. It must withstand the severe pounding being received in fighting vehicles. To meet these conditions, exhaustive tests are conducted in laboratories and in the field on each type of equipment before it is adopted and the design finalized.

Each new type of tank, armoured car or other radio-equipped vehicle introduces new problems of installation and superficially it may look interference caused by static electricity and electrical mechanism.

There is a never-ending search for new equipment. For this purpose the Signals Research Development Establishment and to propaganda against every way of life by inventing like the degree which was once considered. But the pressure comes in an equally subtle and perhaps more deceitful form. It is not easy for a people to continue, and to withstand the pressure of public opinion, against customs and habits, which to say the least, are definitely pagan when viewed in the eyes of Christian deportment. But we can imagine Peter writing to some Christians to-day who were subject to social pressure of all sorts, and saying in effect, keep your standards, let your good work continue, and in the end you will hold not only your own self-respect but that of those who for the time being, ridicule you.

Peter goes into a bit of detail in giving his advice to the early Christians. He tells them that they are to obey the laws of the land. Even though they were not in the laws with which they did not agree, were to be obeyed as coming from God as well as from men. They were free men but they were not to abuse that freedom, but was to be used as a gift from God.

Servants were to be subject to their masters, not only to the good and kind but also to the froward. Well, they may have been under the most primitive society or at least a form of servant and master after the manner of Greek and Roman days. But today a man does not own a master in the old sense of the term. He may work for a trust company who owns the controlling interest in the firm by which he is employed. He may work for a corporation whose shareholders are scattered far and wide and the executive lives hundreds of miles from the factory which he manages. He may no longer works for a personal master, but for an impersonal one, but under these circumstances men must organize and deal with the employer in a collective manner. We are in a transitional period now. We are not in a completely organized to deal with it as it should be. Both parties to industry are experimenting as we see it, and each will have to develop its own technique in the process. But the principles which Peter laid down for the guidance of the early Christians in their relationship to their employers are applicable to-day. The employer in turn is to treat his employees with justice and fairness, knowing that he too has a Master in heaven. Peter's advice to employees is applicable to-day as it was to the early Christians. He tells them that they are to obey the laws of the land. Even though they were not in accord with

MEAT RATIONING AS IT AFFECTS FARMERS

Farmers may slaughter their livestock for their own consumption—but must turn in to the Local Ration Board at the end of each month, 1 coupon for each two pounds of their own slaughtered meat consumed on their own premises. Farmers need in no case surrender more than half the number of each month's valid coupons for such home slaughtered meat.

The remaining half of farmers' meat coupons may be used for ordinary retail purchases of meat, on the basis of coupon values as shown on the chart above.

Farmers may supply meat from their own slaughterings to other farmers for consumption on their own farm premises. Local farmer "Beef Rings" are also permitted. Farmers providing meat to other farmers, or "Beef Rings", must collect meat coupons on the basis of 1 coupon for each two pounds of meat, gross weight. Self-addressed and stamped envelopes for mailing in coupons can be secured at your Local Ration Board.

CONSUMER MEAT IN LOCKERS

Before June 30th all consumers (including farmers) who store meat in lockers must declare in writing to the nearest Branch of the Ration Administration, the quantity of rationed meat they have in storage over and above eight pounds per person in the household. Declarations must be accompanied by sufficient coupons from the ration books of the locker holder and his household, to cover the quantity of declared stored meat at the rate of 1 coupon for each two pounds of any meat in the above groups.

The number of coupons to be detached by the locker user need not exceed more than 50% of the total meat coupons in the possession of himself and his household. Locker users may regain for retail purchasing one of each similarly numbered pair of coupons.

NOTICE TO THE MEAT TRADE

Retailers of meat must collect coupons for any rationed meats sold on or after May 27th. They need not turn in coupons to their suppliers for meat purchased up until June 10th. This arrangement is made to enable them to build up stocks. A Special Food Bulletin giving complete details of meat rationing is being mailed to all food stores.

Helping To Solve Britain's Manpower Problem

BY AUGUSTUS MUIR

Hitler's threat that he would starve Britain out was not mere Nazi bluff. He meant every word of it and he believed it was in his power to tighten the Atlantic blockade to such an extent that Britain would literally starve. Orders were given for the building of a submarine fleet many numerous and powerful than that previously possessed at any time in the last war. That the U-boat threat fa a potent one can be clearly discerned in the public utterances of responsible Allied statesmen. Nevertheless, thanks to the courage of the merchant seamen food has been garnered to Britain from overseas countries, but because the armed forces of the United Nations are on the offensive, priority is being given to the war effort to the weakness of war. There is a gap to be filled, which means that a greater burden has been thrown on the shoulders of the British farmer than ever before in the history of agriculture.

His problems are many and diverse, but in view of the number of young farm workers now in the armed forces, the labor question is one that thrusts itself continually upon his attention. And in spite of what would be regarded in peacetime as a shortage of man-power on the land, farmers' farmers last year gathered in the greatest harvest within living memory. How this was achieved, and how the great agricultural drive is being intensified, can be explained only by the energetic way in which all available help for work on the land has been organized. The number of different types of workers busy on British farms throughout the year is surprising. There is a good nucleus of pre-war laborers — men who have been brought up on the land and know the ways of their own soil. Besides them you will see today the girls of the Women's Land Army, whose green jerseys strike a distinctive note of color in village streets. There were 38,000 of them in the last war, but now there are 55,000, with recruits still pouring in at the rate of 1,000 a week.

The Land Army girls are not the only women workers to be seen in the fields. There are many thousands of other women of all ages, a large proportion of them being the wives and daughters of the farmers themselves and of their farm-laborers. Of these women, many work continually on the land, from January to December. But a proportion of them, particularly those with other urgent duties, help only fit seasonable work—at harvest time, for example, and when the root crops are being lifted. They thus form a useful and indeed vital, reserve of labor upon which the farmer can call when the need arises.

Thousands of Old Age Pensioners have responded to the challenge to go back on the land and show that they can do their duty at the plough and at other tasks. These pensioners had felt before the war that they were on the shelf; but they are now proving that the old muscles are still tough, and they are glad to be playing an important part in the great drive to grow more food on British farms.

Among other whose help might be regarded as seasonable are the school children. In 1942 there were forty harvest camps in England and Wales, and many thousands of school boys devoted their holidays to helping in the harvest fields. The Admiralty, for their holiday camps, which furnished from May to October, and many city workers spent their summer vacations working on farms. Strangers in London policemen usually a word to say for the London police. This type of man has always shown an eagerness to help by volunteering to spend periods of leave working on the land. Many London policemen were, of course, country bred, and were familiar with most of the work to which they are turning their hands while on leave.

The Volunteer Land Corps is a semi-official body that is strong in some parts of the country, particularly in the north of England. This Corps consists of people who have volunteered to give up their weekends and other leisure times in order to do land work. The system works efficiently. Farmers make application to the local headquarters of the Corps, and volunteers are sent out in groups — sometimes of thirty or forty workers — to help at times when speed is vital. This Land Corps, which draws from unexpected corners of the community has been responsive to offer their services; and at the beginning of the Minister of Agriculture there has been a stream of enthusiastic applicants from individuals who have been eager to spend their leisure hours helping to grow more food.

It is by this nation-wide effort on the land that the acreage under the plow has risen from twelve to eighteen million acres, with an additional half-million acres that the Minister of Agriculture called for. Arable farming requires a good deal more labor than grass-milk farming; moreover, much of this new acreage under the plough includes large tracts of land—in the Fen country, near the east coast, for example — which required reclamation and drainage. On the grass-land that remains, a more than very large stock on hand, and have had over 30 years' experience in fitting. Private Trust Room. Every one guaranteed, or your money refunded.

ENTERTAINMENT IN TRINITY CHURCH RECREATION ROOMS

In spite of one of the worst rainstorms of the season, there was a splendid attendance on Tuesday evening at the entertainment in Trinity United Church, sponsored by the Recreation Club. The program consisted of the showing of a set of colored slides of scenes across Canada, and a commentary by Russell Hunter, the president of the Recreation Club.

The pictures, which were supplied by the Canadian National Railways, showed scenes illustrating the extent of the railway system and its subsidiary "Trans-Canada Airways". In addition, there were beautiful views of Canada's National Parks and pictures showing the vastness of Canada's national resources and their development.

Following the showing of the pictures the audience adjourned to the church basement, which is being used as a recreation room, and has been attractively arranged with games of various sorts, easy chairs and tables for writing. This room will be used for a short time after which refreshments were served by the social committee.

The proceeds of the entertainment will be used for the purchase of more equipment for the recreation room.

CANADIAN CONVOY ROLE

Canada and Great Britain are now responsible for the safe conduct of the convoys which travel the vital North Atlantic route, it was announced recently by the ministers of Navy and Air Force on May 1st.

While the United States will retain supreme responsibility for the Western Atlantic, including escort operations, it is expected that British trade convoys and local Canadian traffic complete charge of trade convoys from Northwestern Atlantic ports to the United Kingdom has been assumed by Canada and Great Britain. United States escort vessels will continue, however, to serve British, Canadian and British forces, and the United States Army Air Force will continue to furnish certain material and arms. United States military and naval airport staffing at Newfoundland and employed in anti-submarine work will be under the direct operational control of the Eastern Air Command R.C.A.F.

Major Admiral L. W. Murray, R.C.N. has been appointed Commander-in-Chief, Canadian Northwest Atlantic thus becoming the first Canadian Commander-in-Chief in this conflict to assume the operational direction of a vital war area in which the enemy is being actively engaged. His position will be the counterpart of the Commander - in - Chief Western Approaches, the United Kingdom Anti-submarine aviation activities in the Northwest Atlantic will be under the operational control of Air Vice-Marshal George Johnson, Air Officer Commanding-in-Chief of the Eastern Air Command.

Atlantic Patrols

New long-range Canadian and United States bombers will patrol the vital Canada-Britain route in the mid-Atlantic," when British bombers will take over, providing a transatlantic bridge for every mile of the route from North America to Britain.

This was that Russia seemed bound to emerge from the war as the dominant power of Europe—and most likely of Asia as well.

Add to that grew the question of how far Allied unity would be able to adapt itself to this new situation. What would be the attitude of John Bull, "Policeman of Europe," and Uncle Sam and all the rest ? What would be the attitude of Russia herself, with all this power in her hands?

It's easy to draw this picture of Russia out of the materials at hand. Germany, which before the war had control of Central and Eastern almost complete politics in eastern Europe and the Balkans, is on her way out. Who should take her place but the adjacent Soviet Union which has astounded the world by its industrial and military development during the past fifteen years ? Geography has given the other Allies any such favorable position as regards the Continent.

The belief is widespread in the capitals I visited that the Muscovites will dominate Europe westward at least through Germany, and maybe to the English Channel, by sheer power of political and economic domination, for it isn't suggested that the Soviet intends to employ military strength.

The White Russian set - up encourages such speculation. Here we have what in area is the largest country in the world. It stretches across two continents, from Europe to the North Pacific, its boundaries touching the record populations of India and China — both vital in the United Nations set-up.

This huge Empire which occupied one-sixth of the earth's area and has a population of 193,000,000, is pretty well self-contained. It could wage a defensive war indefinitely on its own resources. Geographically it is well-nigh impregnable, unless most of the world ganged up against it.

Russia is a giant even in a vacuum country like China. What shall we get for that post-war picture that Vice-President Wallace is concerned about? What happens if the United Nations become the disunited nations?

GUERILLA WARFARE IN GREECE

Due to the fact that guerilla operations in Greece are to a great extent divided into local bands operating under their own leaders, rather than one centralized command, it is difficult to obtain exact information regarding their numbers and activities. The geographical terrain of Greece makes the country particularly favorable for small groups, operating independently, but maintaining some contact with other groups operating in the same region.

This method of individualist warfare is peculiar to Greek history and temperament and is similar to that employed by them in their fight for independence from the Ottoman Empire.

The chief purpose of the guerillas is to disrupt communications by derailing trains, closing mountain passes by dynamiting attacking solitary convoys of war materials, kidnapping officers, blowing up munition or fuel dumps and creating confusion among the occupation forces.

Such guerilla tactics serve a double purpose, for they not only harass the enemy constantly, but they also bring the guerilla leaders into constant touch with the people of their communities, stimulating their resistance. The people of these communities consider their guerilla leaders as their representatives, and take part in their activities wherever possible.

The Greek guerillas do not constitute an organized army for circumstances would not permit. If They are armed citizens who, unable to suffer the hardships of occupation and slow death by starvation, have decided to take up arms again whenever they might be needed.

Many of these bands are operating in Greece, although only a few have become known to the world outside. Most of these bands are led by former officers of the regular army. Their followers number on the average about 30,000 although this number is increased significantly whenever the need for it arises.

The guerilla bands, saboteurs, strikers and peasant uprisings are the answer of an unconquered people to the executions, destruction of whole villages and other repressive measures of their oppressors. They are the expression of the Greek people's will to active resistance.

World Crossroads Of Skyway Travel A British Hamlet

BY GILLIS PURCELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Highways of the world meet on one of Britain's lowland moors. Sheep graze on velvet hillsides while aircraft roar away on the Stratosphere Road to Everywhere.

This global crossroads, where children pretend among the hangars of British diplomat and Russian soldier exchanges cigarettes with a German pilot, is marked on few maps of Britain. It stands at the edge of a tiny village which knows next to nothing of the traffic passing by.

To-day this war-time airport is one of the British terminals of the period road from America. Tomorrow's peace will multiply its traffic often roads reopen to liberated lands. Then it will be almost as quick and quicker with fuller weather reports than the coast liner and only a few more stratosphere - flying developments and with the rebirth of civilian travel.

Peacetime will bring new problems to the Scottish-born chief manager, whose magic handling of an unpredictable flow of clients leaves his counterparts in numerous organization. Today 50—tomorrow 200—may be the total for the same period and of the informal hotel which lodged and feeds every comer, expected or not.

Problem of Meals

Crews of ferried bombers pour in whenever Atlantic flying is not absolutely impossible. Shuttle - plane pilots and passengers from other airports in Britain arrive on perfect days. Planeloads of refugees from foreign lands — or bound to them— drop in en route. All of them wonder how the dickens they can be fed and find them a room, never fails to serve them a meal ranking with the best served in the country.

Few guess that his ration limitations are the same as for any army or air force mess. From month to month he receives ultimate requirements in advance, hoping no sudden rise or surge of appetite will hand him a house of hungry guests. He makes his monthly guesses on the basis of his records and an occasional census, and he may feed 800 in a day.

Competent Help

As hard to find as food are competent waitresses for so many eager tables. But from girls under-aged or exempt because of family responsibilities, the manager has recruited a group of cheery and-voiced village lassies superior in competence and in appearance to the waitresses in most of London's hotels.

Through the lobby of this airway terminal's mess hall pass many big names of the United Nations. Anyone who crosses Britain regularly by air may have stopped at the long counter to register with a pert, black-haired reception clerk to have her send his cables or exchange his funds. She is ever ready with a smile and a flash of brown eyes.

"You can get anything at a mail-order house," remarked the lady first customer.

"Everything, alas, but a male," sighed the spinster.

Wife: Is there a funatic asylum near here ?

Husband: I believe so.

Wife: Do they take people on their own recommendation ?

Husband: How should I know. Why ?

Wife. Oh, nothing, only today I got hold of a package of my old love-letters.

ERNESTTOWN MAN CHARGES WIFE WITH THEFT

Mrs. Earl Walmsley, R.R. 1, Napanee, appeared before Magistrate Garvin on Thursday afternoon, in Napanee Police Court, on the charge that, in April, intending to desert her husband, she stole from him a number of horses and cattle and implements. Mrs. Walmsley elected to trial by a judge and jury, and after hearing the evidence of the prosecution, the Magistrate committed Mrs. Walmsley for trial at the next court of competent jurisdiction. K. S. Ham conducted the case for the Crown on Thursday, and W. M. Nickle, of Kingston, appeared for Mrs. Walmsley.

Evidence brought out in the examination of Mr. Walmsley was that Mr. Walmsley, at the suggestion of his wife, in order to help pay off the mortgage on the farm they owned, went to work in Kingston in September, 1941. Since that time up until early this year, Mr. Walmsley stated he came home every night and helped with the work of the farm. Owing to shortage of gasoline on February 1st, he took a room in Kingston.

Mr. Walmsley said that he paid his wife and eldest son, Harold, wages for doing the farm work and practically paid all expenses in addition. Some time ago, he stated, he asked his wife to sell the farm and go to Kingston to live with him, which, he stated, she refused to do. At that time he offered his wife two-thirds of the proceeds of the farm to work the farm. She partly agreed and seemed satisfied.

About the latter part of April, Mr. Walmsley said he came home one day and found everything gone from the farm but some hay, an old stove, a few head of cattle and three horses. He claimed there had been 15 heifers and cows, five calves, 3 horses and about 125 hens on the place, besides a full line of farm machinery and household furniture. Later all the remaining stock was taken away. He said that he learned then, his wife and son had sold the farm of Wm. Hodson, a short distance away, where he found part of the implements and household goods which he claimed had been removed from his own farm. Mr. Walmsley said that when he asked his wife what was the meaning of her action, she would not talk to him, but referred him to her solicitor, Mr. Nickle.

Under cross - examination by Mr. Nickle, Mr. Walmsley said that when he went home on April 24th, he got a bad dented in a milk can with a piece of 2 in. by 4 in. board and also caught hold of his wife's arm, but denied twisting her arm or leaving marks of his fingers on it. Under cross - examination Mr. Walmsley also stated that there had been a mortgage put on his farm of $3,500. 17 years ago, $600 was paid on the mortgage principal since then and of this amount only $100 had been paid since September, 1941; when he went to work in Kingston. He said that up until early this year he had given his wife $35.00 a month, but had not given her much money this year, because of the way she acted toward him. Cross - examined, Mr. Walmsley struck him over the head with a poker.

On February 1st, this year, Mr. Walmsley stated he took a room in Kingston and found his wife and daughter went to Kingston and took blankets and other equipment to fix it up. He admitted that on March 20th, while at work at the Aluminum Plant, he had received a telephone call from Miss Eileen Jackson, that his wife was at his room. When he went to the room, he said he saw Miss Jackson on the street outside the house and found his wife and daughter went to Kingston and took blankets and other equipment to fix it up. He admitted that on March 20th, while at work at the Aluminum Plant, he had received a telephone call from Miss Eileen Jackson, that his wife was at his room. When he went to the room, he said he saw Miss Jackson on the street outside the house and found his wife and the landlady in his room. At that time, Mr. Walmsley said his wife told him she wouldn't live with him again and gave as her reason that he was living with Miss Eileen Jackson. Questioned by Mr. Nickle, Mr. Walmsley would not deny that some of Miss Jackson's clothing was found in his room by his wife. He stated

SILLS - BOSSENBERRY

On Saturday, May 22nd, at 2:30 p.m., at Trinity United Church, Napanee, the marriage was solemnized by Rev. G. Murray Chidley, of Margaret Alice Bossenberry, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Bossenberry, of Bend Head, Ont., to Lieutenant Walter Edward Sills, R. C. A., graduate of Royal Military College, Kingston, only son of Mrs. Irene Crossman, Napanee.

The bride, a graduate of Westerveil School, Lordon, Ont., was given away by her father who was attired in a street-length two-piece dress of dusty rose shade, trimmed with matching French lace and her hat was a tone of deeper roses flowers and ribbon. The flower girl was little Miss Sally Ann Acheson, niece of the bride. She wore a dress of baby blue taffeta and she wore a bandeau of flowers in her hair. The nosegays carried by the matron of honor and the wee flower girl were of flowers to match the nosegay of the bride.

The groomsman, Mr. J. Douglas McCracken, and the ushers, Mr. Glenn Clark and L.A.C. John Russell, R.C.A.F., were all former school mates of both the bride and groom at the Napanee Collegiate and Vocational Institute.

The wedding music was rendered throughout the ceremony by Mrs. J. E. Madden, organist of Trinity United Church, who played the processional from Lohengrin and the Wedding March by Mendelssohn. During the signing of the register Mr. Rodney Sexsmith, also a schoolmate of the bride and groom, sang "God Remembers Everything" and "Because."

Following the ceremony at the church, the reception took place at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. A. B. Reid. Both the house and the house were profusely decorated with ferns, lilies, snapdragons, sweet peas and carnations. Receiving with the bridal party were the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bossenberry and the groom's mother, Mrs. Lynn Crossman. Mrs. Bossenberry's dress was of powder blue crepe with navy accessories and navy hat and accessories and her corsage was red roses. Mrs. Crossman wore beige crepe with black accessories and her corsage was also of red roses.

The tea table, with his three-tiered wedding cake, blush pink tapers and glassware, was covered with a banquet cloth of Nottingham lace, recently sent from England to Mrs. Crossman, the groom's mother, by her husband. The wedding cake was cut by the bride and groom with a sword which formerly was owned by the groom's great-uncle, the late Mr. J. W. Robinson, of Napanee. Tea was poured by Mrs. G. Ernest Gibbard and Mrs. J. E. Robinson, grandmother of the groom. Those who assisted in the serving were Miss Margaret Robinson, Mrs. John Grange, Miss Peggy Roe, Miss Alice Warman, Miss Sarah Madden, Mrs. Kenneth Dowsley and Miss Helen Reid.

Rev. G. M. Chidley pronosed the toast to the bride, to which the groom fittingly responded.

Shortly after the reception, the bride and groom left amid showers of confetti and rice, for a short honeymoon. Several cars of young people followed Lieut. and Mrs. Sills to Kingston, where the happy couple boarded the fast train for Ottawa. The bride's going-away two-piece suit was of lightweight chocolate brown wool with brown and beige accessories. Her corsage was of blush pink roses. Her wedding bounnet was caught by Mrs. Sarah Madden.

During the reception several telegrams of congratulations and best wishes were received from friends and relations of the bride and groom, who could not be present at the wedding due to the contingencies of war. Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Bossenberry, Mrs. Charles Acheson and daughter, Sally Ann of Ottawa and Forest, Ont.; Mrs. William Waddell, of London, Ont., Mrs. K. Dowsley of Cannanoque; L.A.C. John Russell, R. C. A. F., Ottawa; Lieut. William Boyle, R.C.A., Petawawa; Mrs. Harold Webster, Kingston; Miss Margaret Robinson, Toronto; Flying Officer Percy Blackshaw, Adjutant of the Instrument Flying School at Camp Mohawk, and Flying Officer William Dunbar, Instructor at the School at Camp Mohawk.

WEDDING BELLS

TOMPKINS - FALK

Princess Street United Church was the scene of a pretty wedding at 4:30 p.m., Saturday, May 15th, when Rev. W. J. Fiddes united in marriage Ruth Anna Marguerite, the daughter of Mrs. Matilda Falk and the late Ferdinand Falk of Fredericksburgh, and Pte. Earl Everton Tompkins, of Newburgh, son of Mr. Frank Tompkins, of Newburgh.

Daffodils, jonquils and narcissus adorned the altar and Miss Beth Redmond played the wedding music, playing the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin, as the bridal party entered the church, and Mendelssohn's Wedding March as they were leaving. During the signing of the register, Miss Mary MacDonald sang "I Love You Truly."

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Albert Falk, wore a beautiful floor-length gown of white sliinny satin, fashioned on princess lines, with a sweetheart neckline and train. Her long tulle veil, edged with Chantilly lace, was caught with a tiara of white lace and orange blossoms. She wore silk embroidered gloves, satin sandals and carried a bouquet of calla lilies, lily-of-the-valley, and maiden hair fern.

The bride was attended be her sister, Miss Louise Falk, as maid of honor, wearing a floor-length gown of powder blue taffeta, matching veil with rosebuds and carrying a bouquet of white carnations, sweetpeas and maiden hair fern. Miss Marjorie Hall, Oswego, N.Y., and Miss Minnie Norris of Napanee, both sisters of the bride, were bridesmaids, dressed in orchid and pink taffeta gowns, respectively. Both wore matching veils with rosebuds and carried bouquets of carnations, sweet peas and maiden-hair-fern in contrasting colors.

Mr. Allan Tompkins, Oswego, N.Y., brother of the groom, was best man and Mr. Clellan Hall, Oswego, N.Y., and Mr. Gilbert Morris, R.A.F., were ushers.

A reception and luncheon was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert King, 178 Nelson Street, the latter a sister of the bride. The house was beautifully decorated with streamers and flowers and a four-tier wedding cake centred the table. Lighted tapers in silver candelabra were at the brides Mrs. M. Falk, received the guests, wearing a navy blue crepe dress with matching accessories and shoulder bouquet of red roses.

The groom's gift to the bride was a string of pearls. The bride's gift to the groom was a gold tie pin.

The bride travelled in a turquoise blue two-piece costume with white hat and navy accessories.

About forty guests were present. Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Allan Tompkins and Mr. and Mrs. C. Bell and Mrs. Minnie Hall, Oswego, N.Y. Mrs. Frank Tompkins, Mr. Kenneth Tompkins and son, Wayne and Gerald, of Newburgh; Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Norris and Miss Minnie Norris of Napanee; Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Gouland, Deseronto; Mrs. Ida Falk, Mrs. Frank Falk and Miss Beulah, Corbin, N.Y., Mrs. Charles Armstrong and daughter, Charlene, and Miss Esa Pritsch, Denbigh.

DENBIGH

Denbigh, May 25. — The weather continues cool and backward with plenty of rain. Pastures are green but growth is retarded. Fifty per cent. of gardening has not even begun. All of this has no effect on the women's first flow of ardent fishermen who were here in abundance from nearby towns and cities and spent an exceedingly "wet" week-end at the various lodges and cottages. According to registrations, the coming week—end promises greater numbers with a good forecast for fine weather.

We are pleased to report that the Fourth Victory Loan met with unexpected success in this area. While the quota was doubled in comparison to the Third Loan, the canvassers had no difficulty in reaching that if they could secure one half their quota approximately $8 000 they would be satisfied. For the first week or ten days the solereads were gratifying indeed. The average of surplus money on the farm at this time of year was extraordinary and when 'The Daily Bulletin reported Denbigh A. and B. with 24 per cent. of their objective and only five more days to go — they naturally worried a little and worried some more. From such unexpected sources as these, the amounts began to come in. A life long resident loyal to her district, reserved bond for the local canvassers when contacted by long distances, although she was spending the winter with relatives in an adjoining county. A former resident who had not been approached by canvassers in his district took up a bond here. From a little grocery store, the owner produced a toobacco tin containing one hundred fifty cent pieces and thereby bought a bond. From these unexpected sources the effort was boosted to around 90 per cent. of the objective of $16,000.

Mrs. O. V. Toutant and son, Paul, were in Toronto last week attending the funeral of the late Mrs. F. Toutant. Mr. O. V. Toutant is spending a few days with his family here.

ARMY WARNS MOTORISTS

BLUE LIGHT TO SIGNIFY APPROACH OF CONVOY

Ottawa (CP) — Motorists who now see a car approaching at night showing a blue light as well as its headlights watch out. Military convoy approaching — and some of the vehicles may have no lights showing.

Defence Headquarters made public instructions which will be followed by military convoys on public highways. Here they are:

At night, Army vehicles proceeding in a long line or convoy, will be headed by a car with two vertical headlights, preceded by a motorcyclist. Other vehicles in the line may have no headlights, but each must bear a tail light. A motorcyclist will follow at the rear, to warn approaching traffic.

The leading vehicle of the convoy will also carry a blue light at night, and a blue flag in the daytime. The last vehicle in the convoy will carry a green lamp at night, and a green flag in the daytime.

Speed at any time will not exceed 12 miles per hour.

Motorists proceeding over fifty miles will have two drivers for each vehicle.

Ample warning in case of halts, will be given to passing motorists by flagmen posted at least 500 ft. in advance or in rear, with warning light.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

This column is sponsored by the Regional Office, Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Questions on price control, ration regulations and other Wartime Prices and Trade Board rulings should be mailed to: Information Branch, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, Victoria Building, Brockville, Ont.

Q. I don't quite understand why my cousin, who lives in the country, should have been given a larger amount of canning sugar than I have been granted. Will you please explain?

A. Some Local Ration Boards have set a higher allotment of canning sugar for rural applicants than has been granted urban applicants within their territories. This is due to the belief that country people, not having the same access to fresh fruits and vegetables other supplies during the winter, are justified in receiving a higher allotment for home canning.

Q. Does the recent order regarding the price of new Motors apply equally to imported and home-grown supplies?

A. Yes. The highest price at which they may be sold during May is five and one-half cents a pound and during June, July and August the maximum price will be five cents per pound.

Q. Why are the meat rationing coupons numbered in pairs?

A. This is to facilitate the purchase of rations, especially during hot weather. Since each coupon will be good for the purchase of half a week's ration, it means that consumers will be able to buy part of their week's supply early in the week and the rest later on. But they may, of course, use both at the same time if they wish.

Q. As a farmer selling produce on the market do I need to hold one of the licenses for a hawker?

A. No. Although farmers "sell" goods, they do not ordinarily require one of these licenses. They are needed only if they buy the goods of others for re-sale or if they operate a retail outlet other than a market stall.

Q. I have noticed that some of the waxed paper in the stores seems to have a thinner coating than pre-war. Is that allowed?

A. Yes, in order to conserve supplies, the weight of refined wax used to coat waxed paper has been reduced by about 40 per cent. Some of the skins are also being reduced under this order.

Q. Why is small arms ammunition being rationed?

A. Metal for its production has been drastically reduced and, in view of other needs, only a small percentage of the total supply remains available. It may now be secured by only "authorized purchasers" but there is no assurance that in view of the supply situation it will be possible to fill all their requirements. The utmost economy in the use of this ammunition is urged.

KITCHEN SYSTEM HELPS WHEN FATS SALVAGED

Have you arranged a good system for saving fats in your kitchen? An answer in the affirmative is being given owing to Canadian officials who are responsible for collecting the 35 million pounds of fat needed this year for the Dominion's war effort. Where there is system in saving the amount of fat which finds its way to salvage is increased.

Saving waste fats which accumulate in the kitchen through cooking is a simple chore and has the glamor of a real war job. In wartime, the ordinary housewife becomes a factor which is obtained from fats, is enormous. Before the war we imported large quantities of fats and oils from the Far East. Now, with requirements raised and supplies cut off, we have to depend on saving every ounce of available fats to meet vital glycerine needs.

No amount is too small to be worth saving. A tablespoon a day means a pound saved every month. One pound of waste kitchen fats will produce enough glycerine to fire one round from a field gun. Enough pounds are needed to fire enough rounds to win the war!

"Today, after four years of war, Germany stands on the brink of collapse."

RHUBARB, THE OLD - TIME FAVOURITE IS IN SEASON NOW

Hello Homemakers! Our chilly Spring weather has retarded rhubarb growth, so perhaps you haven't used your sugar dividend yet. The extra pound of sugar for use with rhubarb is secured with Blue Coupon No. 1 (Spare B) in Ration Book No. 2, which expires May 31st. Along with the amount you can save out of your weekly ration, this extra pound of sugar will help you to serve your family its favourite rhubarb dishes for quite a while. After June first, of course, "canning" sugar will be available to those who sent in their applications.

Rhubarb is grand for pies and desserts as well as preserves. One plant one or two roots if you have the room—will be enough rhubarb for you to grow. Its not only convenient and economical to have your rhubarb and other garden products right at your kitchen door but a time-saver as well. You don't need to spend time searching for different foods to get variety into your menus—just learn to serve the foods you have at different meal times. Good wartime psychology, too! Of course, you know that freshly picked fruits and vegetables have finer flavour and are richer in vitamins.

RECIPES

RHUBARB DESSERT

Four cups cut rhubarb, half-cup sugar OR one-quarter cup sugar and one-quarter cup honey.

Wash and cut rhubarb into inch lengths. Place in upper part of the double boiler. Cover and cook with sugar. Do not stir.

RHUBARB SHORTCAKE

Two cups flour, half-teaspoon of soda, one cup thick sour milk, one teaspoon salt, one tablespoon shortening.

Cut shortening into measured flour, soda and salt. Add liquid gradually, mixing with a fork to a soft dough. Owing to the difference in sour milk, it is not always possible to determine the exact amount of liquid. Turn dough on lightly floured board and roll out. Cut into circles and bake in electric oven at 450 deg. for ten minutes. Split and serve with thick rhubarb sauce between and on top.

SAUCE: Six cups of cut washed rhubarb in saucepan placed on electric element turned Low for five minutes, then to High, and add about two-thirds cup of sugar. Cook only a few minutes, stirring frequently.

LETTERS FROM NICKEY

THE STORY OF LIFE IN THE C.W.A.C.

Dear Babs :—

I have so much to tell you that I hardly know where to begin. Here I am at Kingston, already engrossed in my new work. Without a doubt, I'm a lucky girl. I have a little cubbyhole all my own, where surrounded by scrap books, I wield the pen. I am, as I mentioned to you that I might be, Custodian of the Screen.

Relapsing into plain English, that means that I clip and paste-up the newspaper publicity about the many various activities of the Service. Well, it is not a career you'll can see that it may lead to one, so I am to be a king. Even now I have a shiny new notebook and several newly sharpened pencils, as well as a rash promise that when next a Canadian Women's Army Corps "Newspaper talk" comes (I take it to be like a duck to water) crops up, I can stalk it. So consider me well launched, girls! Any purpose, I would be called a "cub reporter."

I am looking forward to next week and when Barty and I intend to spend roaming around Kingston for it is a fascinating old city, one of the oldest in Canada, with indications on all sides of its storied past. As you know, Kingston has always been a military town. It is the site of the Royal Military College where so many of Canada's military leaders received their early training. Today it is the Headquarters of the Military District No. 3, a busy hub with mushroom growth of huts springing up on all sides. In the Nineteenth Century, it was the government site of several of the early governors-general. The story of Kingston has been told against the background of official functions and the fashions of military graduation exercises. Even to-day, when lingering over the city's tinges of the romantic era of postillions and coaches, suggested, no doubt by the many beautiful homes of imposing gray stone built during another century and during a reminiscent old-world charm. The very barracks where I am now living, Alwynton Barracks on the Lake, now the home of many girls in the Canadian Women's Army Corps, was once the residence of the first governor-general of Upper Canada, Lord Sydneham. Standing in those wide, hospitable halls, I can almost imagine that I hear the rustle of silken skirts and the muted music of a stringed orchestra . . . I would not be surprised to see a ghostly gallant in dress uniform go through a curtsey but — don't be alarmed, Babs — I have not seen one yet. A fertile field though for a cub reporter don't you think? It is very easy to get carried away but I promise that when next I write that I will have both feet planted firmly on the ground.

If you think I am raving, I wish you could hear Barty. Kingston has gone to her head like wine—Kingston and the secret cause. She overpowers me with her enthusiasm. For instance she said last night, "Nickey dear, the atmosphere of Kingston is impregnated with historical significance. I can feel it seeping into my subconscious." What did I say? Darn it, what does anyone say when confronted with such heavy artillery? I crawled back into my shell meekly and said "Me too," wondering to myself if it is humiliating enough.

I miss my old friends, Frankie, Nora, Mary-Lou and the others but my new associates are so nice that I have no time to be really lonely. There is, for instance, Corp. Betty Connor from Port Hope, who is employed at Headquarters, and was billeted in my room. I am, as I mentioned above, another very nice girl who lives at Alwynton Barracks. Pte. Barbara Miller from Kingston. I'm afraid that I am going to be an awful bore as I keep pestering her with questions about Kingston's historic past. However, she has been very patient and does not really seem to mind. There are, of course, over so many others, whom I hope to be able to tell you about, as I get to know them better.

I have not yet even scratched the surface of the many things I want to tell you but I can hear the supper call tolling and it is the part of wisdom to pay heed promptly. All recruits C.W.A.C. descend upon the Mess like a swarm of locusts and latecomers may find the cupboard bare.

While soon and tell me when Dave is getting his fought, I am hoping that we can all spend a weekend together. What do you think the chances are?

Much love,

NICKEY.

Dear Babs :—

It is time that you were brought up-to-date again on the happenings in the life of your C.W.A.C. correspondent. Of course you know that I enjoyed the Toronto week-end tremendously. It was so good to see you again after all these months and what a wonderful gossip we had ! I still never forget sitting up most of the night, then having to get up to dictate at an unearthly hour on your birthday by the fire. It made me feel teen age again.

I think you should know that since seeing you, I have sullied the pages of my fresh notebook with my first attempt at journalism. It was the light of day in print, too! Of course, it was cut down (We reporters always expect that!) Now I will stop boasting and tell you about it. A few days ago, I was sitting in my little cubbyhole blissfully pasting-up clippings about the multifold activities of the Army — parades, army appointments, a visit from a high army officer, etc., when I was told to collect my new pencils, and as I have said, another new notebook, and accompany the Army Public Relations photographer on a tour of the Canadian Women's Army Corps barracks at Barriefield. It was probably the most interesting two hours that I have spent since enlisting. I had no idea that skilful planning could accomplish so much for army pattern hats.

Comfortable Quarters

The C.W.A.C. section stands in its own enclosure in huts which include Quartermaster Stores, Orderly Room, Mess Hall, Recreation Room, Canteen, Kitchens, Living Quarters and sports fields. The huts are heated by a central heating unit and have a warm, even temperature during the most severe winter weather. Nearby, in case of fire, is a fire-house, equipped with the most modern fire-fighting apparatus.

As far as I could see, and believe me, I kept my eyes open in an effort to see it all, nothing had been overlooked which would add to the comfort and enjoyment of the girls. The living quarters are the last word in convenience. The dormitory huts are divided into cubicles which accommodate two, or in some cases, four girls. They are partitioned in natural coloured wood and most of them have built-in gadget shelves where the girls can display the nicknacks and small carved animals dear to the feminine heart.

Sanitary Kitchens

During the tour of the camp, we spent some time in the kitchens. They are really impressive, with their huge stoves and up-to-date equipment which ensures the best sanitary methods for handling food. One instance of this is their system for washing dishes. First the dishes are washed in soapsuds and disinfectant, then they are rinsed and left to dry in racks. Can you imagine any more assuring such an onslaught ?

I could hardly tear myself away from the huge automatic potato peeler which denudes a pail of potatoes in three minutes. Gone are the days when a naughty C.W.A.C could be taught the error of her ways by the time-honoured Army punishment of peeling "spuds." However, to let you in on a Corps "secret", I don't believe that the potato-peeling threat often materialized, as far as members of the Canadian Women's Army Corps are concerned. Our girls have always been agile at side stepping such measures.

While we were at Barriefield, I seized every opportunity for a few minutes chat with the girls. Exchanging views is always interesting. For instance I was delighted to meet Corpl. Jean Shorey, from Belleville, better known to her friends as "Skippy", whom I have often seen singing at entertainments at the C.W.A.C. Canteen at Kingston. Other C.W.A.C.'s whom I met at Barriefield included the sergeant in the Quartermaster Stores, Sergt. Peggy Wright, of Kingston, and one of the platoon sergeants, Sergt. Iola DeWolfe, of Brockville.

Well, cherub, I could ramble on indefinitely about the wonders of the C.W.A.C. quarters at Barriefield but I do not intend to give you grounds for accusing me again of "unbridled enthusiasm." Yes, I have a mind like an elephant and I remember such unkind "slanders."

Lights Out sounds the bugler. And who am I to argue ?

Love as always,

NICKEY.

RHUBARB MAKES ITS SPRING APPEARANCE IN SIMPLY PREPARED DESSERT

A specially delicious, different and really healthful dessert is this Rhubarb Oatmeal Pudding from the Committee section of the Dominion Department of Agriculture. The pudding is cooked in a saucepan on top the stove, and is ready for serving as for feathery lightness are a really low heat and—no peeking while it cooks!

RHUBARB OATMEAL PUDDING

Four cups diced rhubarb (1 lb.) Half-cup water, plus extra cup, two tablespoons cornstarch, one-quarter teaspoon salt.

TOPPING

One cup pastry or seven-eighths cup all-purpose flour, two teaspoons baking powder, two tablespoons milk or water, sugar and melted fat. Mix lightly into a stiff dough and add flavoring. Spread this mixture over the boiling rhubarb, cover closely and continue cooking over a low flame for twenty minutes without lifting the cover. Turn upside down onto a serving dish and serve hot.

Separate with two forks rather than cut as the mixture is very light and delicate in texture.

Three dozen toothsome chokies ! They can be whipped up almost in the twinkling of an eye, a grand emergency recipe to have in your file. Children love them; in fact mother may have to institute a rationing system of her own if she does not "hoard" the whole batch to disappear in a flash.

WHEAT FLAKE PUFFS

One egg white, one-quarter cup sugar, one cup toasted wheat flakes, half-teaspoon vanilla ,one quarter-teaspoon almond extract.

Beat egg and salt together until stiff. Add sugar gradually, beating until mixture holds peaks. Add flavoring and fold in wheat flakes. Drop by spoonfuls onto crisp crackers, graham wafers or rounds of whole wheat toast. Bake in a slow oven, 325F for twenty minutes. Yield three dozen.

TREAT GLADIOLI TO GET GOOD BLOOM

Due to war conditions, it would appear that gladiolus growers are going to experience more difficulty than ever in safeguarding their favourite flowers from the attacks of thrips, states Alan G. Dustan, Division of Entomology, Dominion Department of Agriculture. In the past, when corm treatments had been somewhat neglected, or where migration of thrips from nearby gardens occurred, the careful gardener resorted to summer sprays made with tartar emetic or paris green and a sweetened. The poisons are still available but brown sugar, honey and corn syrup are now too precious to spray about a garden.

With the possibility of control by spraying virtually removed, it is essential this spring that all corms be thoroughly and carefully treated. In the past, it has been found that the neglect of treating new corms purchased from whatever source was one of the most common methods of introducing the thrips pest into clean plantations and neighborhoods.

There are several methods of treating corms — dipping in hot water, corrosive sublimate and lysol, and fumigation by calcium cyanide, and methyl bromide. The hot water treatment is convenient for the grower with few corms to treat, and should be used only in the spring, after the corms are fully ripened, and planting follows immediately. The corms should be immersed for ten minutes in a bath at a temperature of 120 degrees F.

A corrosive sublimate dip may be made at the rate of one ounce to six gallons of water. Corms should be soaked for three hours if peeled, or for 20 hours, if unpeeled. The dip is effective at room temperature, or at about 70 degrees. It should be used once only and then discarded for a fresh dip. Corms should be treated just before planting, and thus saving trouble in drying them before re-storing. The greatest care must be taken. The sublimate is a deadly poison.

As naphthalene flakes are scarce, and the price of corrosive sublimate is increasing, lysol has come into prominence as a dip at the rate of 3 teaspoonfuls to one gallon of water Peeled or unpeeled the corms should be soaked for six hours.

GARDEN PESTS

Beginners are advised by the Dominion Department of Agriculture to be on special guard against these common pests which threaten our war gardens.

Cutworms are probably the most generally destructive insects found in the vegetable garden. They are of greatest concern when the plants are small. They are gray to brownish caterpillars, which hide in the soil during the day and emerge at night to feed on a wide variety of plants. They usually sever the stems at the soil surface, although some species attack the leaves. Cutworms can be killed by sprinkling poisoned - bran bait about the garden in the late evening.

The cabbage maggot will probably be the next insect to appear. This attacks the roots of such plants as cabbage, cauliflowers and radishes. It is a small, white, legless insect that makes its appearance about the middle of May. When the attack is severe many of the plants wilt and die. Transplants and seedlings can be protected by pouring corrosive sublimate solution around the stems shortly after transplanting.

A near relative to this insect—the onion maggot — is a frequent visitor. It closely resembles the cabbage maggot and works in much the same way. But it only attacks onions, feeding at the base of the stems and causing the young plants to wilt. Covering the onion seed with dry powdered calomel before planting will considerably reduce the amount of injury.

A small, yellow and black striped beetle, known as the striped cucumber beetle, will be an unwelcome visitor in most gardens about the time cucumber plants are getting started. It feeds on young cucumber, squash and melon plants, eating holes in the leaves. It hides in the foliage and frequently escapes detection. Infested plants should be dusted with calcium arsenate and gypsum, mixed one part of the poison to 19 parts of the powder.

In Eastern Canada, young carrots are frequently attacked by a small, whitish maggot which is the young of the carrot rust fly. This maggot is first noted in early June, making rusty-red tunnels in the roots. Injured seedlings will and die. By delaying planting until early June, most of the carrot rust flies will have disappeared before the young seedlings come up.

The commonest enemy of the potato is the potato bug or Colorado beetle. It is an annual visitor frequently to be seen on the surface of the ground even before the potatoes have broken through the soil. Spraying or dusting the vines with an arsenical such as calcium arsenate or lead arsenate fortunately will kill most of the beetles, as well as the young grubs on the leaves.

WEED CONTROL

In the flower or food vegetable garden cultivation is the best method of controlling weeds. After first digging the garden it is well to let it rest for a few days to encourage weed seeds to sprout, then one thorough cultivation will dispose of an enormous number of these enemies. But it will not kill all because some seed will lie around for weeks before germinating. Experts advise regular cultivations at weekly or ten-day intervals, to cope with them. So long as the weeds are not permitted to go to seed, cutting them off with a sharp cultivator and allowing them to rot or be buried where they fall is the best plan. If, however, some reach the stage where they have flowered and are setting seed before the cultivation starts, then they should be cut or pulled and burned.

THIAMIN

HEALTH LEAGUE OF CANADA

Thiamin is also known as Vitamin B1 and it is important both for the nervous system and the digestive tract. It is most important to general health and morale, as has been recognized by the British Government, which pays out thousands of pounds a year for its addition to all flour and bread consumed in the United Kingdom.

Thiamin is easily destroyed by heat and it also dissolves in the cooking water, so one has to be very careful in the preparation and cooking of food to see that as little as possible is lost.

NEVER throw away the water in which vegetables are cooked. It is valuable in soups and gravies.

Whole wheat bread and whole wheat cereals contain thiamin and if you want to be sure you get sufficient of it add one or two teaspoonfuls of wheat germ to your breakfast cereal. Do not cook the wheat germ with the cereal, but sprinkle it on top or mix it in after the cereal has been cooked. Wheat germ may be added to flour for muffins or other pastry.

To get enough thiamin everyone should eat a whole wheat cereal preferably with the wheat germ added, and four to six slices of whole wheat bread, every day.

RECIPE
WHOLE WHEAT MUFFINS

One-quarter cup brown sugar	One cup buttermilk
Two tablespoons fat	One egg
One cup bran	Two tablespoons wheat germ
One and one-half cups of whole wheat flour	One teaspoon baking powder and
Half-teaspoon soda	One-eighth teaspoon of salt

Cream fat and sugar; add egg, milk, bran, and the flour, sifted well with soda, baking powder and salt. Mix. Pour into well-greased muffin tins and bake in hot oven (425 deg.) for 25 minutes. Wheat germ should be added just before pouring into muffin tins.

Borrowing for War Farming

Farmers all over Canada—grain growers, stock raisers, dairymen, fruit growers, vegetable gardeners, poultrymen—all kinds of farmers—are forcing production, fighting hard early and late to supply the enormous quantities of products demanded in the greatest of all wars.

In this "survival war" food plays a tremendous part, and the farmer is the dependable supplier, to whom armed forces and civilians alike must look. The extra demand on farm production mean extra financing. The Bank of Montreal, ready always to cooperate with agriculture, is making special efforts at this time to help the farmer produce food for Canada and the United Nations.

VICTORIA W. I.

Mrs. A. M. Graham was hostess to the members and visitors of Victoria Women's Institute at the regular monthly meeting. The new president, Mrs. Jack MacFarland, ably presided and opened the meeting in the usual way by all joining in singing the Institute Ode and repeating the creed. Miss Helen Collins presided at the piano. The roll call was well responded to by naming Something my Grandmother Mixed. Correspondence and business matters were duly discussed. Mrs. Wilbert Bush was appointed delegate to the annual convention at Napanee. The convener for the Grandmothers' Night program opened the programme with a reading given by Miss Carrie Bush. A solo by Mr. F. McCutcheon was much appreciated. Mrs. Graham conducted a question-naire and Mrs. Bush contributed an appropriate reading which very favorably compared the modern grandmother with the old-fashioned one. A duet well rendered by Miss Lois McConnell and Miss Helen Collins was a delightful contribution. Mrs. Jack MacFarland gave well prepared current events of much interest. The exhibit, Something my Grandmother Wore, was very small but interesting. An old fashioned waistband white apron of fine material was much admired and a very, very old pair of eyeglasses in a tin case were duly examined and commented upon. Miss Carrie Bush conducted an amusing novelty contest. Miss Lois McConnell winning the prize.

The singing of the National Anthem brought the evening meeting to a close, after which lunch was served.

ONTARIO DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

C.W. BUCHANAN, B.S.A.
Agricultural Representative

Many farmers, who have been unable to get on the land owing to excessive rainfall, and those who have drowned-out areas which will have to be reseeded, should give consideration to sowing early maturing varieties of Oats and Barley, also Corn, Soybeans, Buckwheat and Millet. Admittedly yields may not be as high as in the case of early sown crops, however, the use of high quality seed on a well prepared seed bed, together with present favorable moisture conditions, should help to bring crops on rapidly, thereby overcoming to a degree the disadvantages of sowing grain crops at this late date.

It is suggested that consideration be given to seeding the following grains and mixtures at the earliest possible date.

In Central and Western Ontario, Alaska, Cartier and Mabel Oats and O.A.C. No. 21 Barley may be sown up to June 1st with probabilities of a 75 per cent. crop up to May 24th and a 50 per cent. crop when sown May 24th to May 30th. In Eastern Ontario three early maturing varieties may be sown even up to June 15th with prospects of obtaining fair yields. In this connection it is interesting to note that experiments conducted at the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, over a 5-year period on dates of seeding grain crops, revealed that Barley sown on June 1st gave an average yield of 34 bushels per acre, sown on June 15th, 29 bushels, and July 1st, 22 bushels per acre. Early maturing varieties of Oats sown on June 1st gave an average yield of 45 bushels per acre and on June 15th an average yield of 35 bushels per acre. This information reveals that early maturing varieties of Oats and Barley may be sown in the East up to June 15th with prospects of obtaining fair yields.

If seed of the Erban, a medium-early, leaf rust resistant variety of Oats is ready for the drill, or Vanguard, a stem rust resistant variety and if it is difficult to obtain seed of the early maturing varieties, it is suggested that the seed on hand be sown; providing this can be done before May 24th. This is also true of Nobarb and Velvet Barley, both of which mature about five days later than O.A.C. No. 21. Seed of early maturing varieties should be given preference at this time.

The following grain mixtures are also recommended sown in their proper proportions: Alaska or Cartier Oats 50 lbs.; O.A.C. No. 21 Barley 50 lbs; — 100 lbs. per acre. Erban Oats, 50 lbs.; Nobarb Barley, 50 lbs. — 100 lbs. per acre.

In order to step up the protein content of home grown grains, Peas may be added to Oats or an Oat and Barley mixture at the rate of approximately one peck per acre. Chancellor, an early maturing variety (100 days) should be given first choice and O. A. C. No. 181 or Arthur, both of which mature in approximately 106 days, as second choice, if seed of the Chancellor variety is not available.

The production of grain corn from early maturing hybrids has proven profitable particularly in the Western and Southern portions of the Province. In this connection it is interesting to note that in an experiment conducted at the O. A. C. over a 5-year period, 6 high yielding varieties of corn gave twice as much in hull-free food per acre compared to five high yielding barleys.

"TIRED" ALL THE TIME

She felt miserable—draggy—low in vitality—lower in spirits. She hadn't thought of her kidneys, until a friend suggested Dodd's Kidney Pills. At once she took Dodd's. "washed out" feeling was soon replaced by clear headed energy and restful sleep. Headache, backache, dizziness and other signs of faulty kidneys disappeared.

Dodd's Kidney Pills 112

In order to obtain maximum grain production, it is recommended that hybrids be planted before June 1st. Information regarding hybrids best suited to the various areas of the Province may be obtained from Agricultural Representatives.

Soybeans, in addition to producing a high protein, high oil concentrate, also produce fodder of practically the same feeding value as Alfalfa. Early maturing varieties may be sown up to the end of the first week in June with good prospects of obtaining a seed crop.

Millet also offers possibilities as a grain crop and is equal in feeding value to Oats and almost equal to Barley, and should be ground and used with the regular grains. Siberian and Empire Millets have been two of the best producers of seed. In order to be assured of the production of a seed crop, it is suggested that Millets be sown not later than June 15th.

Buckwheat may be sown as late as July 1st in many sections of the Province. This crop is adaptable to a wide variety of soils and will yield fair returns even on soils which lack in fertility. Farmers, with low lying areas or who have had crops drowned out, would be well advised to consider sowing Buckwheat.

Turnips, which may be sown up to the third week in June, may also be considered in areas suitable for the production of this crop. Labor necessary for thinning this crop may be reduced by sowing at a reduced rate per acre.

Information regarding seed of these early maturing varieties may be obtained from your Agricultural Representative, seed cleaning plant operators or seed dealers.

SPIRITUAL STATESMANSHIP

In the New York Times of April which appeared two particularly interesting columns by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek and his wife, reprinting articles they had written to express their own strongest convictions concerning the type of leadership they wanted to give the people of China. "I Bear my Witness" was written by the Generalissimo not long after he was imprisoned by rebel elements in Sian. Madame Chiang Kai-Shek wrote, under the title of "I Confess my Faith," a similar statement of her personal philosophy, showing how it issued in a life of true patriotism at the forefront of the great Chinese nation.

It is significant in a materialistic age, torn by war and the violence of human selfishness, that such challenging statements of faith and the power of the spirit should be accorded a place of importance in our newspapers. And significant, too, that so great a fighter, so wise a statesman, as the Chinese Generalissimo, should attribute the purpose and direction of his life to his vital faith in God.

From such leadership, which has already proved itself in all that China has given to the world through her courageous struggle against the enemy, will come the direction our world is going to need in the years ahead. Without a foundation of spiritual conviction, leadership will slide out from under the moral responsibility to make ideals real in the life of mass production must be and global warfare. The greatest need to day is for a faith in God and in the future of this world nation, which will stake its claim in the lives of men by means of moral principles. Freedom's Fires Must Be Fed Our COAL!

CANADIANS must dig and deliver coal that we may sail convoys, power vital war plants, keep our railroads rolling, preserve the nation's health!

The coal mining industry—miners and management alike—have done wonders to provide coal, but they need help. More workers must be provided, or we shall suffer—possibly fail—in this grim hour. Nature has been generous but we must help ourselves. Our mines are rich, but undermanned. By Proclamation, His Excellency the Governor General in Council has declared that labour supply for coal mines ranks as a national emergency. Further, in order to provide manpower for coal, the Governor in Council has issued an Order in Council aimed at swelling the flow of coal from mine to firepot.

This Order is of vital interest to everyone in Canada. Every Canadian should read and study its provisions, to see whether it demands any action on his part:

1 EVERY EMPLOYER, REGARDLESS OF HIS INDUSTRY, must advise his employees of these Regulations, and he must assist in discovering whether any of his employees have had previous experience as coal mine workers.

2 EVERY EMPLOYEE, REGARDLESS OF HIS INDUSTRY, who has had previous experience as a coal mine worker, must report that fact to his employer not later than Tuesday, May 25th, 1943.

3 A "COAL MINE WORKER" FOR THESE PURPOSES is anyone who, since January 1st, 1935, has worked under provincial certificate or license in or around a coal mine, or who, since the same date, has been employed for a total of at least 24 months in the production of coal (except at office work).

4 EVERY EMPLOYER, NOT A COAL MINE OPERATOR, must report in writing to a Selective Service Officer not later than Tuesday, June 1st, 1943, full details as to any of his employees who are ex-coal mine workers.

5 SELECTIVE SERVICE OFFICERS ARE AUTHORIZED to require ex-coal mine workers to report for interview and to accept work at a coal mine.

6 SELECTIVE SERVICE OFFICERS MAY REQUIRE any man in any employment, if subject to Mobilization Regulations but rejected for Military Training, and certain others exempted from Military Training, to accept employment at a coal mine.

7 NO COAL MINE OPERATOR may terminate the services of any coal mine worker without written permission from a Selective Service Officer.

8 NO COAL MINE WORKER may leave employment at a coal mine without written permission from a Selective Service Officer.

9 EVERY EX-COAL MINE WORKER, returning to the industry under these Regulations, will be paid wages at the established rate for the job at which he is placed; and the Government will pay wages of 40 cents an hour, 8 hours a day and 48 hours a week, to any ex-coal mine worker required to leave his present employment under these provisions, but not placed immediately at coal mining.

10 A BOARD ALLOWANCE of not more than $7.50 a week may be paid an ex-coal mine worker now returning to a coal mine, if required to live away from the residence of his dependents.

11 PRESENT AND FUTURE COAL MINE WORKERS will be granted postponement from Military Training to February 1st, 1944, by virtue of their occupation; and no coal mine worker will be accepted for voluntary enlistment in the Armed Forces of Canada, prior to February 1st, 1944, except under permit to enlist from a Selective Service Officer.

12 NO EMPLOYER IN CANADA, EXCEPT A COAL MINE OPERATOR, may solicit for employment or hire any ex-coal mine worker.

13 REGARDLESS OF ANY DOMINION OR PROVINCIAL LAW, male persons at least 16 years old may be employed as coal mine workers, and female persons at least 18 years old may be employed as surface coal mine workers.

14 WAR EMERGENCY TRAINING CLASSES will be available for training men as coal mine workers.

Such is the substance of the new regulations. Full details may be had at any Employment and Selective Service Office. If these provisions require action on your part, you are urged in the national interest to act immediately. Severe penalties are provided for non-compliance, but the Government relies on the co-operation of the citizens of Canada to make prosecutions necessary by prompt action as required.

This is a grave emergency. Assist if you can.

ENNOX DISTRICT WOMENS' INSTITUTE NNUAL CONVENTION

Reports Reveal Great Activity During Year Among Branches

The annual convention of the Lennox District Women's Institute was held at the Napanee Town Hall, on Tuesday, May 27th.

Mrs. Ackerman, district president, opening the convention opened with Ode and the Lord's Prayer. Miss Hilda, Department Representative, Miss Scott, leader of Girls' Work, Mrs. Reid, Roblin, Federated representative, were invited to the platform and welcomed.

Everyone standing, two minutes' silence was observed in memory of Mrs. James Douglas, who was present for three years of Napanee branch.

The address of welcome from Napanee branch was given by Mrs. Jas. Sperry, who was gratified to see so many present, in spite of the problems of transportation. She said, "Keep on Per Home and Country" has been a challenge to Institute work through the years, to make better homes and therefore a better country. Our peacetime activities are in no good stead in time of need. Since we have always worked for better health conditions, the outlook has been that so many of our young men have been found physically fit to defend our country. Let keep well organized so we may be prepared to take on the tasks of post-war activities. She welcomed the delegates to the town.

Mrs. Arthur Sexsmith of Mount Pleasant Pioneer branch, replied, asking Mrs. Haggerty for the welcome, and said she was sure all Institute members will give their co-operation for better living at home and abroad, and will put forth their efforts to uphold the good.

There were no resolutions.

Community singing of patriotic songs, led by Mrs. Nicholson, was enjoyed.

The president, Mrs. Ackerman, in her report, she had visited most of the branches, where she found a real welcome, good average attendance and we work outstanding in each branch. She thanked everyone who had given her practical help and kind thought.

Miss Margaret Black, secretary-treasurer, read last year's minutes which were read and approved and there was a balance of $58.96 on hand now.

Mrs. Compton presented the auditor's report, which was followed by the favorable reading by Mrs. Powell. There were three reports of the standing committees, Miss Margaret Black reported on Publicity, having received reports from ten branches. Honor Paul reported on Social Welfare, which includes, relief, child welfare and community activities. The work done was varied and interesting. Mount Pleasant women have subscribed to a Health Magazine for each member, for four years. Mrs. Collins reminded us that our Standing Committee reports should be given in our local branch at the final meeting and the person giving the report should read it herself to the convener, soon after the meeting.

The secretary should see that notes it. Mrs. Dens gave a report on Citizenship, to which eight had visited and enjoyed meeting from address the President had given. Each one's contribution is needed for citizens. We must obey laws and our privilege of voting, seriously. Need Christianity to keep the light.

Mrs. Powell reported on the Cenotaph wreath. Addington had donated, too, the past year, so for 1943 they donate only thirty-five cents for each branch, to be able to buy a wreath at the Cenotaph next year. She said the Government wreath at the Institute wreath were the ones placed last, Fall, and she that became people are busy now to help out in this way the who made the supreme sacrifice help prevent this war, should not happen. It is their sons who are giving us to-day. May we pray that our wreath may be placed next year in the peace.

N. C. V. I. CADETS COMPLIMENTED BY INSPECTING OFFICER

Captain A. C. Holmes, Inspector of School Cadets in Military District No. 8, visited the Napanee Collegiate and Vocational School last Friday afternoon and made the annual inspection of the C.V.I. Cadets.

The Corps, made up of five Companies of boys and girls, gave a splendid demonstration of physical culture in the gymnasium and of drill work on the campus. The Cadets and their officers were highly complimented by the inspecting officer on their appearance and the manner in which they performed.

In the gymnasium, demonstrations were given separately by the boys and girls of the training they had received under the direction of the instructors, Mr. Robert Smith and Mrs. Egan. The commands for the girls were given by Miss Betty Bray, a student of the school.

On the campus, Captain Holmes took the salute in the march past, for which music was supplied by a boys' band led by Murray Wilson. The pipes were played by Vernon Wagar.

A team battel was staged by the boys and mock casualties were given first aid treatment by members of the school who had been given St. John Ambulance training by Miss Jean Hunsberger.

Following the inspection and a march through the town the Cadets were served refreshments at the school.

The following are the officers and non-commissioned officers of the Corps:

Cadet Major, J. W. Jamieson.
Cadet Captain, C. D. Walters.
Cadet Captain, Dorothy Wallace.
Cadet Lieut. D. E. Elliott.
Cadet Lieut. F. Dunlop

BOY SCOUTS ATTEND SERVICE AT TRINITY CHURCH

On Sunday morning the annual church parade of the Napanee Boy Scouts was held to Trinity United Church, when the minister of the church, Rev. G. M. Chidley, who conducted the service, preached a sermon of especial interest to the boys and to the large congregation in attendance.

Between 50 and 60 members of the Scouts, all smartly dressed in the Boy Scouts uniform, marched to the church in a body, headed by a Boys' Band led by Murray Wilson. In the church the flags and standards were placed by the leaders around the altar rail. The Scout Master, Werk Poole, attended the services with the boys and their Scout Leaders Mrs. and David McLellan, Glenn Holmes and Don Elliott.

Speaking on the text, "Ye are the Salt of the Earth", Mr. Chidley outlined the code of the Boy Scouts and pointed out that the duties of a Scout should be much the same as the purposes of salt. Salt, he said, exerts a cleansing effect on whatever it comes in contact with, and a Scout is expected to have a wholesome influence wherever he is. A Scout should give zest to his own life and to his associates, just as salt brings out the flavor of foods it is used to season. Salt, in itself, is useless until it is mingled with other substances. So a Scout is not fulfilling his complete function in life until, by his contact with others, he adds something to their lives by his helpfulness and good influence.

NAPANEE COUNCIL PLANS TO BUY FUELWOOD FOR RE-SALE

Gives Necessary By-Law Two Readings

The Napanee Town Council, at a special session on Monday evening, gave second reading to a by-law which, when approved by the Department of Municipal Affairs at Toronto, will give the town the necessary authority to purchase and resell wood for fuel for local consumption. The action taken by the Council is of considerable importance in view of the threatened scarcity of fuel for the next winter and the foresight of the Town Council will be commended by the citizens of the town.

A recommendation of the Finance Committee that Mr. George T. Walters, the appointed auditor of the municipal books, was accepted by the Council and the necessary by-law covering his appointment was passed. Mr. Walters' appointment is at the pleasure of the Council with regard to his term of office.

NOT SO GOOD

The appointment of former Premier Gordon Conant to be Master of Osgoode Hall, by the man who succeeded in ousting him from the Premiership, does not look so good. There are responsible newspapers and men in public life who are openly stating that the appointment was the result of "a deal." Of course, it is difficult for those not on the inside to prove that there was a saw-off. All the same, the whole business is not of a kind to restore confidence in the integrity of our public men, and to deepen respect for the Democratic processes of government.

After a widely heralded convention, and a lot of ballyhoo, the meeting of Provincial Liberals was duly held. There were two contenders for the leadership of the party, who stood out above all others. At the entrance to the King Edward Hotel, great banners told where one could find the committee rooms of these men: Mr. Harry Nixon and Premier Conant. It looked like a battle royal. There was much surface skirmishing, and then the Premier took a nervous breakdown, right in the midst of all this excitement. Now, we are not in a position to pass judgment on the illness of the Prime Minister, Mr. Conant—not being a medical authority—but, we can well imagine a man taking a nervous breakdown under the excitement and the pressure of the convention planning. If Gordon Conant was bound to have a nervous breakdown, certainly he could not have selected a more convenient moment—that is for Mr. Nixon. With Mr. Conant, the most serious contender safely tucked away in the hospital, the path was left clear to the high office. And Mr. Harry Nixon became Premier Nixon in an incredibly short time.

Mr. Conant, once the excitement of the convention had abated, and the mental agony of "Paradise Lost" had somewhat subsided, made a remarkable recovery, and the $7,000 a year appointment was made by the man who had benefitted by the breakdown of the former premier.

We have, certainly, no evidence to prove "a deal" or "a saw-off". All the same the whole sequence of events is not so good, and if we can size up public opinion at all, it bodes ill for the future. It provides another opportunity for those already disgruntled with the working of our Democracy, to plead for some "new deal" for the common man, for some system of government in which it will be impossible to play fast and loose with positions of trust and financial reward.

V

NORTH AFRICA CLEARING UP

The political situation in North Africa appears to be clearing up somewhat. It has not been an easy matter to get the two French leaders, Generals de Gaulle and Giraud, together. They are both strong men; they are both passionately loyal to France. But de Gaulle has a profound faith in the Democratic way of government; Giraud, on the other hand, has lost confidence in Democracy as it operated in pre-war France, and is ready to establish some form of central power to manage the affairs of the State.

It was because of Giraud's known views on government, and because in the provisional administrative group in North Africa he had associated with him certain former Vichyites, that the peoples in Democratic Countries were somewhat disturbed. And it was because of this that the two leaders were unable to come to some agreement as to the future government of France. Great issues were at stake, and de Gaulle refused to co-operate until assured that the pro-Fascist group would not be in control of any government that would be called upon, later, to conduct the affairs of France and assume responsibility for government of the nation.

It would appear that de Gaulle has finally succeeded in his efforts. In the provisional government now being set up in Algires, de Gaulle has, besides himself, three others who have been closely identified with the Fighting French ever since the fall of France. Thus the balance seems to lean towards the more Democratic form of government.

Now, it must not be thought that all this struggle that has been going on has been one of petty differences, or jealousy. A great issue was at stake. For the government which is now being set up in Africa will have to do not only with North Africa alone. It will, in so far as it is possible, become a government for all France, so soon as France is freed of the invader. The pattern of that Government is being formed now. So that it was of the utmost consequence that the issue be settled between the two men, each of whom represented a different point of view, but each of whom was moved by undying loyalty to his country.

The whole North African situation has caused progressive and Democratic people in the United Nations deep concern. It is hopeful therefore, to see the two groups coming together, and seeking to work out the future government for France, jointly. There will be less fear of Fascism rearing its ugly head in post-war France now that de Gaulle is along with his followers on the governing body in Algiers.

V

CANADIAN HEALTH

We might well expect that Canada, with its wide spaces, its abundant sunshine (under normal conditions), and its great plenty of food, would be one of the healthiest nations in the world. Perhaps it is, we have no statistics on that point. But it must have come as a distinct shock to the average Canadian to learn, through Defense Minister Ralston, that out of every 100 men examined for the Army, 50 are rejected. 35 of these are rejected, the Minister told the House, for medical reasons, and the other 15 for "emotional instability," which includes neurotic types and those mentally deficient. Altogether, Col. Ralston said, 74,410 had been discharged from the army, of which number 54,044 were discharged as being medically unfit. This latter class included the mentally deficient and the emotionally unstable.

This reveals a serious situation. It is fair to assume that the percentages of males would in all probability, prevail among women, too. So that the figures reflect a rather disturbing condition concerning the health of our people. It came out in the debate which followed Col. Ralston's statement that the population of our mental hospitals is doubling every thirty years.

Probably these facts, shocking as they are, will arouse public opinion which will demand that the causes be sought out and remedies found, so far as that is possible.

There can be no doubt but that a contributing factor to the condition has been the social and economic situation which has prevailed in Canada for the past twenty years. We who live in Napanee have short memories if we have forgotten the horde of young unemployed, undernourished men who used to knock at the door every day, for years, begging food. And the soup kitchen in the Armouries, where young men who wede pounding the snow-covered roads in zero weather and sleeping in the town jail, were fed and ushered on to the next town. A whole generation of youth lived like that for five years. Certainly that took a toll of physical health. Men became crippled with rheumatism long before such diseases should have been theirs; their teeth deteriorated early in life, their psysical resistance to disease was weakened.

And then there was the mental and nervous strain which accompanied this condition—the uncertainty of life, the sense of futility, the insecurity of the future, the fear af what the years might bring. All this and the inability to establish and maintain normal home conditions, must have been a contributing factor in producing neurolics and emotionally unstable young people. We are in all probability, now reaping the harvest of those dark and hopeless years.

Then, too, there are those who have become the victims of alcoholism and of social disease. On the former the nation gets very little assistance. The governments find, in the liquor traffic, an easy way of getting revenue. So the traffic is not suppressed, indeed, it is rather encouraged. It takes its toll of life, moral and mental powers, and is a contributing factor to the large percentage or rejects.

At long last, the Military authorities are taking action to determine the prevalence of social diseases among the army prospects. It seems strange that this scourge which is now curable in most cases should have been so long neglected.

These are a few of the factors which must be taken into account when trying to appraise the unusually large number who are rejected for health reasons. For the sake of those rejects, for the sake of others yet to be, the State should see to it that these causes are removed where possible, and every boy and girl born in this country given as strong and healthy a mind and body as is possible.

THE DESTINY OF INDUSTRY

THE REAL BATTLE LINES

War is industrialising Canada. From all sides comes praise of the production achievements that has been performed in converting this country into one of the arsenals of democracy. For the whole country is being subjected to great mental and physical readjustment. Changes that usually take generations have been telescoped into the last four years. Through it all though, we are reaching a great national maturity, and our achievements in the industrial field are catapulting us into a prominent position in world affairs.

The great changes coming to this country will come through industry, and the state of industry will determine the state of the nation.

The fact all this it is essential that our industrial machine which is now being created today, is built on sound foundations.

The recent outcrop of industrial unrest must have raised the question of just how sound are these foundations. These outcroppings certainly reveal the lack of philosophy in industry that unites the best elements in both management and labour in a common purpose. This lack has left these sound elements confused and disunited and open for subversive propaganda.

We have readily accepted, and there has been deliberately spread, the idea that there exists a hitherto class struggle between these groups. The time is come to destroy that myth forever. The all-ravaging within industry is between the patriotic elements in management and labour on the one side, and the unpatriotic, selfish and subversive elements in both on the other side. This is where the battle line must be drawn. Our future as a democracy depends on how quickly the sound elements can get together.

Not Who's Right But What's Right

Two men sat arguing at a table. Neither the union representative nor the manager could reach agreement on what the wage rates for the men should be. They finally called in a third party and asked for his advice. He made a very simple suggestion. "Why not decide on," he said, "draw up a list of what you think the rates ought to be, based on what you think is fair and square, then carry on negotiations on the basis of both sides giving a little more what is the right rate."

Negotiations were commenced on this basis and both men were surprised at how little apart their judgments were. A mutually satisfactory wage schedule was the outcome and mutual was replaced by mutual confidence.

Industry will find a programme that will unite sound elements in both management and labour when both fight for not who's right, but what's right.

Canada will have the industrial unity that our ambition and self-interest allows. We will have the industrial relations that our stockholders, our class consciousness and our guilty create. Management and labour can have the pioneering spirit that will produce the blueprint of what we are fighting for. They can be united to fight together for a new country the will to create a living and thinking of a free world.

No half-hearted convictions will ever produce pioneers. Canada needs men who are uncompromisingly fight for what they know to be right that they will be able to pull through when there is no trail out, to keep going even though others rest, to be so on fire that they draw kindred spirits to them and create a new spirit and leadership in industry and government.

Labour and Industry

What of Canadian Labour — day? How much is it to blame for the industrial troubles that are causing everyone so much concern, these days? Or how much is labour the chief victim of the lack of any industrial philosophy that will give grip the heart, mind and muscle of every person in industry? These are questions that any Canadian, who is really concerned with producing a fighting faith in this country, must answer. The recent War Labour Board enquiries in Ottawa have brought to light much opinion on the whole subject. They have revealed the great contrition for time and money lost, each make to industry, and also shown up the dangers which leadership get into the wrong hands.

It was Ben Tillett, that grand old man of British Labour, whose last words on his death bed expressed the things that he had fought for all his life. He said, "The Trade Union Movement should stand for more than wages and conditions of mercialism. It must develop a soul if it is to do its job of uplifting humanity."

Whether Canadian Labour develops that soul or not is as much the responsibility of management as it is of labour. Every employer needs to know how to produce in his men the moral toughness that is strong enough to stand up against the forces of greed and ambition. As well as producing the goods of production, he must produce the men the nation needs. For it is up to management not only to demand sound labour leaders, but also to help produce them.

Labour, on the other hand, faces the fact that unless it fights much harder than ever before for that soul that Ben Tillett talks about, its leadership is in grave danger of being taken over by forces who do not altogether have the best interests of the working man at heart.

In the fight for this soul is the common platform that will unite Management and Labour above suspicion and mistrust. The fight will range the sound elements in both against the worst in both. This is the battle that must be won in industry if the life line of the united nations is to be maintained and sound structure for the post war years built.

THE BOMBING OF THE DAMS

BY WAVERLEY ROOT

Reports brought in day by day of reconnaissance planes flying over the Ruhr flooded by the bombing of the Moehne and Eder dams have marked the extent of what is undoubtedly a great disaster for German war industry. They have noted the water inundated, and have permitted estimates to be made of the basis of the probable loss of life and the amount of damage to property. They have spoken of the flooding of factories and airfields, and the washing out of bridges and railroads. They have speculated on the effect which will be felt by the industrial region affected by the loss of electrical power generated by the water-power of these dams, and by the fact that water for industrial purposes will now be lacking. But little has been said about what may be one of the most important effects of the disaster, likely to infer the most direct influence on the course of war—the blow that has been dealt to German transportation, not by the immediate flooding of railroad lines, which will soon be operating again, but by the effect of the bursting of these two dams will have on Germany's inland waterways.

In Germany's thorough planning for war, she seems to have overlooked the fact that the problem of water transportation which she would have to solve in it. She did, it is true, make preparation for vast strategic movements. But she did so without foreseeing the eventualities which might arise. Germany put her faith in her construction of the great autostrades (Autobahnen) which radiate from her centres towards her frontiers. Across these she visualized pouring her floods of mechanized troops. Whatever it was meant that planners were carried away by the truly Germanic nature of these new constructions, or whether they have become so thoroughly devoted to the doctrine of mechanized armies that they foresaw this as practically the only means of transports their armies would use, they made the mistake of putting all their eggs in one basket. They sacrificed the development of their railroads to the autostrades. It did not occur to them apparently, that a shortage of gasoline would develop, and that in that case, they would need to return to steam.

Thus Germany entered the war with a railroad system in bad condition, and the strains of war to-day, with the constant attacks from the R. A. F. without and sabotage within, deteriorated it even further. As it became necessary to conserve gasoline, the attempt was made to transfer some of the traffic from the roads to the railroads. But even here the old shortage made itself felt, for Germany's greatest industrial area, this field is getting the lubricating oil which it used to receive from the Balkans. But even here the old shortage made itself felt, for Germany's greatest industrial area, the Ruhr, whose height is maintained during the dry summer months largely by water from the Eder and Moehne lakes.

The Eder dam break is likely to affect gravely the traffic on the Mittelland Canal, the most important east-west inland waterway, which connects all the chief navigable rivers west of Berlin. The Eder also controlled the water level of the important Weser - Dortmund Canal, which has been carrying heavy loads of war industry products, and may now become unusable. The latter two canals affected are the Ems-Dortmund and Rhine-Weser.

The time of year chosen for the bombing was the worst possible—from Germany's point of view (which it has to be assumed is the reason why it was chosen). The accumulated flood waters of winter and spring, ordinarily necessary to maintain water levels through the summer, have been dissipated in a single destructive inundation, and it cannot be expected that rainfall will be sufficient to make up for the loss until next winter.

This means that during the whole summer (in which American Office of War Information Director Elmer Davis said a move will be made onto the continent of Europe), the Germans cannot count on these canals to carry war supplies across the country. The railroads have already proved overloaded. Road transport is hampered by the gasoline situation. And the decline of Luftwaffe strength reduces the possibilities of air transport. If Germany finds herself obliged to move supplies to the west as well as to the east, in order that they may be used against an invading force, and if she finds herself obliged to shuttle men and material back and forth across Europe to meet simultaneous or successive attacks in different regions, she may well find that the part of her war machine which will crack first will be her internal communications. And to that result, the destructions of these two dams will have contributed greatly.

Women Taking Part In War Effort In Canada

Women over 15 years of age in Canada, approximately 3,870,000.

Engaged directly or indirectly in war industry, more than 247,000.

Engaged in the Armed Services, more than 25,966.

W.R.C.N.S. more than ..	2,185
C.W.A.C., more than	10,500
R.C.A.F. (WD), more than	11,000
Nursing Services	2,275
Female doctors in the Armed Services	35

The assistance of Canada's women through their work in industry, in business, in the armed services, in their homes and by voluntary effort has played an important part in placing Canada in the position of fourth largest producer of war supplies among the United Nations.

During the seven months to the end of April about 95,000 women were newly employed directly or indirectly in war industry, bringing the total to 247,000 by May 1. About 15,000 women enlisted in the armed services during the seven months prior to May 1.

The Women's Royal Canadian Naval Service, organized in June, 1942, had attested 2,185 and ended up 1,703 by May 1. About 110 are being called each week for training at Galt and Preston, Ontario. Officers are trained in Ottawa. The W.R.C.N.S. hopes to enlist 5,000 by the end of 1943.5.

Established in July, 1941, the R.C.A.F. (Women's Division) had enlisted more than 11,000 by May 1, and hopes to have 20,000 by the end of 1943.

The Canadian Women's Army Corps had enlisted more than 10,500 by May 1, and hopes to enlist 25,000 by the end of 1943.

More than 2,275 nurses are wearing Canadian war uniforms. The Canadian Army Medical Corps alone has enlisted 1,586 nursing sisters and 689 Military Nursing Service. The R.C.A.F. Nursing Service has 257 nursing sisters, and the Royal Canadian Navy has 152 nurses serving, apparently under the R.C.N. medical directorate.

There are 35 women doctors serving with the armed forces—19 with the Army, 12 with the R.C.A.F., and four with the Navy.

During the last thirteen months work of women volunteers has been greatly intensified under the direction of the Women's Voluntary Services Division of the Federal Department of National War Services, and Voluntary Service Centres have been established to prevent overlapping of volunteer work throughout the nation.

They have successfully organized voluntary support of the national programmes such as rationing, salvage, housing, price control, selling prices of consumer goods, encouraging thrift and savings, staffing Wartime Bureaucracies, etc. Local Government areas through W.V.S. centres, are providing recreational, canteen and refreshment creation centres, hospitality and entertainment and comforts for the armed services.

The "block system" of organization of housekeepers has been organized in nine cities: Edmonton, Calgary, Winnipeg, Kitchener, London, Hamilton, Cornwall, and Amherst are the only districts in Toronto. As an example of the Saskatoon block plan with 1,350 women volunteers, each block is contacted 10,262 times. Householders receive specific blocks, distribution of salvage, wartime literature, explosives, rationing collections and the distribution of various types of questionnaire surveys. The needy in Saskatoon and Cornwall have enlisted the aid of the women's Voluntary Services Division to conduct a census of the needy for immunization of preschool children.

The Winnipeg W.V.S. centre has listed its block system procedure in the recent Red Cross publication, successfully add this number of Canadian contacting the public to the extent of 10,262 times.

THE NEW ORDER IN HOLLAND

Hitler's confiscation campaign in Holland has raised so many bitter protests. The Hague and Schevenningen are two cities that they resemble the twin cities of Rotterdam. The bricks and other materials from the razed homes have been shipped to Germany.

Reports that—all Dutch property from an area 120 miles long and 12 miles deep along the Dutch coast is being removed inland for military camps, were accompanied by reports that evacuees have been forced to abandon their personal possessions which along with the bricks and stones of their demolished homes are being sent to Germany.

Confiscation of Holland and Belgium by the German occupation authorities has been ruthless, but at the same time scientific and well-organized. Every indication is that the looting campaign has been planned to destroy the nation.

Startling reductions in the standards within the two countries have become apparent. Nearly fourth of the Belgian children under 18 are reported to be tuberculous. Many more are threatened with the disease as production of milk, butter and other dairy products is reduced to half and even a third. Children need back home quantities of milk are left.

In Holland, only children enjoy unstinted milk rations. Eggs are not to be had at any price, pork has disappeared, and fish practically so. Even the Dutch people depend largely on cereals and vegetables.

There is no man-power problem in Holland because scarcely any industrial power remains. Only about 600,000 Dutch are now working for the Germans of any, 37,000 of them in France.

Belgium's textile industry has been shut down almost entirely and the remaining mains is producing only for the Germans. All Belgians between the ages of 18 and 20, with few exceptions, have been forced to work in Germany. Germans now are sending 100,000 more workers to add to the 200,000 Belgians previously commanded.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON, JUNE 6TH, 1943

"PETER COMFORTS PERSECUTED CHRISTIANS"

Lesson Text: I Peter 3: 13-17; 4: 12-16; 5: 6-10

This lesson and others like it have a very definite and very opportune message for us days like these. During the past twenty-five years we had economic and human disaster. But that only touched a part of the people. The rest were squandering money and resources with a wild and reckless prodigality. Inventive minds were busy designing new ways of extravagance. Alluding advertisements extolled ease, comfort and safety.

All that is gone. Now war has deprived us of things we thought we could not live without. We are rationed in food and gasoline. Everybody is becoming nearly bankrupt. Men are dying, and many more are standing by for hazardous jobs. Women are doing work they never thought they were capable of doing. It is a hard and exacting business — modern all out mechanized war. And in it men and women are showing "they can take it."

In days like these there is a deep need in the hearts of men and women of a former time, who suffered for their convictions, whose attitude is reflected in the present passages of scripture. In the background of today's lesson are persecutions, cruelty and suffering. The Christians were suffering for their convictions. They were set upon, beaten, threatened, and many were killed. All because they did not follow the crowd; all because they refused to compromise their beliefs and their convictions.

It is of value to us to-day to see how Peter, when men and women in the occupied countries are standing by their faith and suffering for their right to worship God as they see fit, writes Biblical writer has to say about persecution and how to meet it.

In the first place Peter insists a Christian "should be ready always to give answer to every man that asketh a hope that is in you." Very often the stand you take will depend on what seems often like sheer stubbornness. A reasoned answer is of great value to all for one's own peace of mind as well as to satisfy others. In this Peter says while having reasons for our convictions, good works must be combined. Keen debate is not enough. There is no answer to the argument of a consistent life. Peter is not an apologetic for. Perhaps, in seeking reasons and respectable and dignified answers have compromised the real Christian standards beyond recognition. It may have been that the Church has to become smaller and its message more uncompromising, in order that God lives. God gets His greatest sovereign way; in spite of man's sin and in spite of man's stupidity. In spite of his waywardness, perversity and selfishness. God's will may finally be done. A humble recognition of this is essential for a true Christian warfare.

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL ON TIRE THEFT CHARGES

After hearing the evidence for the Crown, Constable Gordon Purvis, Thursday afternoon in Napanee Police Court, committed for trial James Kirkwood, Kingston, for trial in the next court of competent jurisdiction, on the charges of breaking and entering the garages of Archie Denison and Robert McFarlane at Napanee, and theft of tires and tubes from the two garages.

The accused was alleged to have entered the garage of Archie Denison on January 11th, where he was said to have stolen three Silberling tires, and the garage of Robert McFarlane on two occasions, when he was charged with theft of a number of tires and tires and tubes.

Evidence was taken for the Crown only in connection with the charges of breaking and entering and theft at Denison Garage.

Floyd Denison, son of Archie Denison, told of having taken Kirkwood and another young man to his father's garage on the evening of Sunday, January 10th, at about 11 o'clock, to change a tire on Kirkwood's car. He identified Kirkwood as the man for whom he changed the tire. But Pc Culhane, who was with young Denison while the tire was being changed, was unable to positively identify Kirkwood.

Carman Hudgins, an employee of the Denison Garage, told of missing three Silberling tires from the tire room on the morning of January 11th.

John Taylor, who is now under sentence to serve two years in the Ontario Reformatory for breaking and entering the garages of Archie Denison, Robert McFarlane, and theft of tires from the two garages, stated that he was connected with Kirkwood in the garage breaks and break-in. He stated that after the tire on Kirkwood's car had been fixed at Denison's Garage, Kirkwood told him he had fixed the door of the tire stock room at Denison so he could be entered. After leaving the garage when the tire had been repaired he and Kirkwood drove around for a while and returned later the same night. He stated that Kirkwood got into the garage where he remained for about five minutes, after which he brought out three Silberling tires. The tires were put in Kirkwood's car and taken to Kingston, where they were hidden and later sold. The proceeds were divided equally.

Detective Taylor was unable to say to whom the tires had been sold, but he remembered it was to someone living in the Wartime Housing section of Kingston.

L. G. Freeman, who operates a refreshment booth in Kingston, a witness for the Crown, told of having bought six new tires from Kirkwood, sometime in March. Two of the tires, he said, were Dunlop, two Dominion, but he could not remember the brand of the balance. He also stated that the tires were delivered to him by Kirkwood and a young man named Taylor.

Harry McNeil, Kingston, appeared for Kirkwood. K. S. Ham conducted the case for the Crown. The trial will be held at the Spring Assizes in Napanee, which open on Monday, June 7th.

Auditors — Mrs. W. A. McLeod, Selby, and Mrs. M. Denison, Selby. The meeting adjourned for lunch.

AFTERNOON SESSION

Mayor Hall gave an address of welcome. He appealed at times people. As Mayor of Napanee, he welcomed us; as chairman of the War Finance Committee of Lennox and Addington he thanked us for support given the Fourth War Victory Loan, and as chairman of the Local Relief Board he explained the reason for the cutting down of the amount of sugar for canning purposes. Lennox and Addington was allowed 155,720 pounds of sugar and several meetings were held to proportion it fairly. He compared our rationing with the troubles of Greece, where everything is so exhorbitantly priced that thousands are going to die of starvation, and children fight over garbage pails, and bodies are unburied on the streets. We should be thankful.

Miss Collins, Departmental Representative, gave an address and presented the new Co-operative Programme, explaining that the reason for changes in it is, so work can be centralized and the department leaders can come to us. She said, we now have a big privilege of sharing in another's needs, and said that nearly a million knitted articles had been sent to armed forces. We should take our voting privilege more seriously. There will be one and a half million workers and demobilized soldiers seeking jobs after the war. Canada is still a land of prosperity and a great quantity of eggs, cheese and bacon will still be sent to England this year. We can run an economic system in peace time as well as war time, and we need not have a depression after the war. Then a Water Conservation scheme will be important. A reforestation program would have the double advantage of providing jobs and paying for itself in a few years. A housing scheme and most important, an improved educational system, are needed. Our motto, "For Home and Country" should bind together all women.

The speaker then gave an analysis of the co-operative programme and it was decided as a district, to make applications for five centres of meeting, the subject to be "Health Education."

Mrs. Reed, Roblin, Federated Representative, gave her report. She told us a little about our new president, Mrs. Clifford Holmes, and the retirement of Mrs. Duke, who has been president with increasing popularity for the past three years. The resolution which went from our convention, last year, was placed on the table she said because it was not properly worded. She then presented the suggestion which we were prepared for in advance, that of raising the federated fee to fifteen cents per member, to take care of the deficit and surplus. After discussion a vote was taken and it was decided to accept the advance. Mrs. Roblin thanked all for co-operative with a favourable decision, and concluded by reading a message from the new Provincial President.

V

Mrs. Simmons reported on War work. All twelve branches had reported.

Mrs. Ham announced that out of thirty-eight organizations who co-operate with Red Cross, thirty-two are women's institutes.

Miss Scott reported on Girls' work and five girls displayed the dresses they had made. She said, last year, Misses Irene and Beatrice Mowers received provincial honors, there being only thirty in the province who received them. There are thirty-five girls in the county who have joined the Girls' Garden Brigade, and there were only fifteen last year.

Miss Scott, of Selby, gave the report on Historical Research.

Mrs. I. Priest gave a report on Agriculture and Canadian Industries.

It was moved by Mrs. Allenbrand and seconded by Mrs. Simmons, that the balance of collection, amounting to three dollars and forty-two cents, be sent to the Milk for Britain Fund.

The Courtesy Committee reported.

The convention closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

Mr. James A. Garratt Died on Saturday At Vancouver

While in Napanee he conducted a bakery business and in the west continued at the same trade. Several years ago Mr. and Mrs. Garratt came to Napanee and made their home for a short time with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Garratt, where Mrs. Garratt, Sr., died. Later, Mr. Garratt returned to the West.

NEW BOOKS AT THE PUBLIC LIBRARY

Klondike Mike — Denison.

An Alaskan Odyssey, Michael Ambrose Mahoney is a legendary figure in Alaska. The unique quality of the story of Klondike Mike Mahoney, strong man of the north, quite apart from its interest as a document of human adventure, is a chronicle of a man whose feats of extraordinary strength and physical endurance have made him a legendary character during his own lifetime, and won for him a permanent place in the mythology of the last frontier, the North of the Yukon and Alaska during the years of the gold rush that began in 1897.

Selby United Church

Sunday, March 30th, with its beautiful weather, proved to be an outstanding day in the activities of Selby United Church. The attendance at the Sunday school session reached the high mark of 184. Also, in the evening, service which was in the form of a special men's service of song, was attended by a large congregation.

As a prelude to the regular worship a song service was held in which everyone took part heartily, thus preparing the way for the special feature of the evening's service, inspirational hymns and songs by the men's choir and quartette. The quartette, which was very popular in this community twenty years ago, is composed of Messrs. H. Crossman, Ward Sexsmith, Herb Kimmerly and Will Jackson. They contributed five very fine numbers and were accompanied by Mrs. George Robinson, in her usual capable manner.

The pastor gave a brief and appropriate message and in closing, thanked the men's choir and quartette for their very fine contribution to the evening's service.

BOWLING LEAGUE FRATERNITY WIND-UP SEASON

The members of the 1942 - 1943 Bowling League ended the season's activities for the season at an informal banquet held in the Superior Banquet Hall on Thursday evening last. A good number of the various teams was on hand to enjoy a delightful supper, prepared by mine-host Pete Oanas. Community dealing led by Walter Blakely, was indulged in during the meal and considerable fun was provoked by the continual banter of the various members.

Following the repast, in the Kinz, a short programme interspersed with the presentation of cups and prizes, was headed with a solo by Walter Blakely, followed by a pleasing duet by Al. Wallace and Walter Blakely.

The winners of the final competition and the cup for the highest standing, was the "Lucky Six" aggregation which was captained by Bill" Maracle. Joe Tustin, the president of the league, called on Chas. Walters to present the cup. In his inimitable style, Mr. Walters congratulated the team on their achievements, but warned "Bill" to look to the laurels, for next year, the Deseronto team, which was the runner-up during the past season, would be captained by himself. Mr. Maracle fittingly replied and accepted the cup amid the applause of the gathering. Individual cups were presented to each member of the winning them. As a penalty for being winners, the team had to "sing a number and the members proved themselves to be singers as well as bowlers.

The secretary of the association, Goldwin Smith, called upon Mr. F. Correll to present individual prizes to Joe Tustin, for the highest average during the season; Fred Tanner, for the highest triple, and to J. Wagar, for the highest single. Werk Poole, on behalf of the Gibbard team, accepted the prize for Wagar, in his absence. The door prize was won by H. E. Pullis.

Frank Correll gave an address on Sportsmanship in which he emphasized the need for a community to be well organized in sports for the betterment of the community as a whole and for the development and stability of its younger folk. He was thanked by the president.

A member of the I. F. S. at Mohawk Camp entertained with a couple of skeeves and natter and A. Wallace and Walter Blakely rendered selections.

The treasurer of the league reported a surplus on the year's operations, and it was moved by Walter Blakely, seconded by Don Holmes, that the amount be sent to the British War Victims Fund. After the singing of "Auld Lang Syne" the gathering dispersed and a team was chosen to bowl against the championship team.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

This column is sponsored by the Regional Office, Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Questions on price control, ration regulations and other Wartime Prices and Trade Board rulings should be mailed to: Information Branch, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, Victoria Building, Brockville, Ont.

Q. We are in the habit of slaughtering for our own consumption a few of the farm. Is there any special rule that we have to follow in order to do this ?

A. If you carry out such slaughtering for your own use, you are required to send a written statement to your Local Ration Board, giving your name and address and explaining that you slaughter for your own use. You will also surrender to your Local Ration Board the same number of ration coupons in the rate of one coupon for every two pounds (gross weight) of meat consumed. It is, however, provided that in no case need a farmer slaughtering for his own use surrender more than fifty per cent. of the valid coupons from the books of himself and his household.

Q. I did not receive a copy of the meat coupon value chart. Where can I get one?

A. Ask your Local Ration Board for a copy of it.

Q. Do I have to buy a large bag of sugar to preserve my fruit or jelling in my Victory Garden ?

A. No, these are not being put up in packages as small as 25 pounds under the supervision of the Dominion Department of Agriculture. The Prices Board also recognizes the necessity of Victory Gardens by doing nothing to prevent one person from sharing his supply of seed potatoes with a neighbour without having to sign an extra statement.

Q. We have begun to make dairy butter on our farm. Does this call for any registration ?

A. Yes, you should register right away with your Local Ration Board as a dairy butter producer.

Q. I live at such a distance from my work that I must use a bicycle to get to and from the factory. Do I qualify as an essential purchaser?

A. What a time will have a bicycle to sell and get an essentiality form from him. If you can prove that you belong to the category of essential purchasers, he can sell you a bicycle.

Q. We are thinking of renting our cottage this year for the first time. What should we do to abide by the rentals regulations ?

A. Make application to your Rentals Committee to have the rental of the cottage fixed by it.

WEDDING BELLS

VAN SLYCK - HAGERMAN

A pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Hagerman, Thursday afternoon, May 20th, when their youngest daughter, Lenna Gertrude, was united in marriage to Carlton Baltur, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur VanSlyck, of Morven, by the Rev. C. W. Hollingsworth.

The bride who was given in marriage by her father, wore white triple sheer over satin with gold trimming, a corsage of Sweetheart roses and a gold chain, which had belonged to her grandmother. The bridesmaid, Miss Mona Hagerman, sister of the bride, wore pink sheer. The best man was Corpl. Wilfred VanSlyck, Ottawa, brother of the groom.

The ceremony took place under an arch of pink and white streamers with a bronze fernery of flowers as a background. Luncheon was served to the immediate families. The toast to the bride was proposed by Mr. Harry Atkinson, student minister and was responded to by the groom. The groom's gift to the bride was a ship wheel clock, to the bridesmaid, a string of pearls, and to the best man a belt set.

For travelling the bride wore an emerald blue crepe dress with navy coat and hat. The bride and groom will reside in Oshawa, St. Catharines and Niagara Falls.

Prior to the wedding, Mrs. William Close of Violet, was hostess at a variety shower for the bride-elect, when she was the recipient of lovely and useful gifts. She was also presented with an end table by her pupils of the Violet school.

Mr. and Mrs. VanSlyck will reside at Morven.

Mrs. C. A. Hooper Died at Lindsay

The funeral of the late Mrs. C. A. Hooper, who died at her home in Lindsay on Friday, May 28th, was conducted at St. Mary Magdalene's Church, Napanee, by Archdeacon Dumbrille, on Monday afternoon, at two o'clock.

The late Mrs. Hooper, who was well known to many of the older residents of Napanee, was a daughter of the late John B. McGuin, formerly Registrar of the County of Lennox and Addington.

Mrs. Hooper's husband, the late C. A. Hooper, was associated many years ago, with the late W. E. Dowsee, in the firm known as Hooper & Dowsee, in Napanee. Years ago Mr. and Mrs. Hooper and their family moved to Lindsay.

Mrs. Hooper is survived by one daughter, Miss Edith L. Hooper, of Lindsay, and Mr. Arthur G. Hooper, Toronto, Inspector of Collegiate Institutes.

Following the funeral service at Napanee, Mrs. Hooper's body was placed in the family plot at Riverside cemetery.

OBITUARIES

THE LATE C. W. CUMMINGS.
ARTHURLETTE PASSES.

On Sunday, May 2nd, Arborfield, Sask., lost its oldest pioneer in the person of Charles Wellington Cummings, who died at the age of 93 years. Interment took place at Arborfield.

Mr. Cummings was born at Cressy, Ontario, Prince Edward County, on January 11th, 1847. He was the eldest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jennings Cummings. His mother's maiden name was Hester Hawley. He had four sisters, Christiann (Mrs. Dodge); Catherine (Mrs. Peter Rapar Wees); Hester Ann and Olive Amelia; also three brothers, George, Davis and Edward.

At an early age he with his parents, moved to Cloyne, being among the first settlers in those parts. On August 4, 1863, he married Susan Winters, the officiating minister being the late Charles E. Perry, of the Methodist Church. He lived at Cloyne until 1902, engaging in farming, sawmilling and lumber contracting for The Gilmore Lumber Company, Canada Lumber Company and the Gutney Lumber Company. He served for many years, as councillor in this district. In 1902 he moved to Edmonton and in 1904 to Ernestburn, where he farmed and ran a mail route for the local factory. In 1910 he came West to join other families from the parts, pioneering in Arborfield, Sask., in the Carrot River Valley, where he had since resided and where for some years he farmed and in the early years carried the mail over the Arborfield trail.

His wife predeceased him in 1932 at the age of 79 years. They had twelve children; seven daughters, Elizabeth (Mrs. Russel Brown); Mrs. John Gunn; Alvina (Mrs. Montgomery); Rika, Fronie (Mrs. John Kirkpatrick) and Maude, all of five sons, Frank, Fred, Nile (James and Wellington. Five of the family living are Frank of Arborfield, Fred of Arborfield, Alvina (Mrs. Montgomery) of Detroit, Mich., Rika of Kingston, Ont., and Wellington of Alaska, Que.

A man was giving some advice to his son, at the end of a rather stern lecture, he said: "Now my boy, you understand perfectly what I mean?" "Yes," replied the boy "what it boils down to is this: If I do well, it's because I'm lucky, and if I fail, it's my own fault."

JAP BESTIALITY HITS NEW LOW

Louis, (B.U.P.) — The Japwho wrecked Wesgrafice and missionaries for allieth Gen. Jimmy Doolittle's ing fliers after the Tokio raid only at cannibalism. Rev. Yager, American missionary was there, said, recently:

Yager, serving the congre- of missions at Yang Kiang, near which some of the fliers landed after their mur- bombing, told of the mur- ture and mayhem which fol- the Japs' discovery that Doo- Bolle missionaries and Chi- residents of Kiangsi and Anhui- se stranded fliers and helped escape.

One Japanese descended upon Yager said, Bishop Quinlin of Kiu Kiang, eight- priests and five nuns re- into the hills some 20 miles with 300 Chinese. They left Father Humbert Verdini, Yager said. "The bestiality of action cannot be imagined by civilized peoples."

Country Desolated

In the withdrawal of the Japanese," Father Yager said, "the bishop and the priests moved back into their former missions, and found nothing but destruction and desolation confronting them. Towns were completely laid waste. The whole country side reeked of death and misery. Poor country people who had stayed on hoping to be allowed to continue to work their fields, had been savagely tortured and put to death.

"From some of the villagers who had managed to escape death we heard stories far too brutal and savage for publication. Just one charge was not heard—cannibalism. But outside of that, take your choice and you can't miss the savage nature of the Japanese Army."

Bishop Quinlin found his Hukang home burned. He searched for Father Verdini and discovered only his sun helmet and a muddied jacket beside a pond in the rear of the mission, which was lined with human bones. Father Verdini never has been found.

Bestiality Indescribable

"We know the sixty or six children and old people in the residence with him were killed by the Japs," Father Yager said. "The bestiality of the action cannot be imagined by civilized peoples."

A 70-year-old French priest was beaten and stabbed and later died. A Chinese priest was beheaded. Property loss in churches and homes of the American missionaries totalled "well over $1,000,000," Father Yager estimated.

The Japs particularly were eager to find Father Dunker, Dutch priest who had brought the wounded Lieut. Capt. Harold P. Watson and his crew 40 miles across mountain country to safety. Father Dunker, burgher, German-Jewish doctor working in a hospital operated by the Irish Columan Fathers.

"The doctor, who stayed on with his German passport, was subjected to rough treatment as a result of his treatment of Lieutenant Watson," Father Yager said. "The hospital in which the doctor practiced and the care of the Irish missionaries was burned along with the town."

Chased by Planes

Doolittle and his crew, who landed near Shiang-Yu, were anxious to proceed immediately to Chungking, Father Yager said, but the injured Watson and his crew stayed a few days with Father Dunker. Some of the fliers also were assisted by Father William Glynn of Chicago.

"The fliers, with Doolittle in command, arrived at Ying-Tan about 7.30 a.m." Father Yager said. "They spent about an hour eating breakfast, then got on buses for their next lap toward Chungking. About forty minutes later three Jap planes came out of Nanchang and flew down the road after the buses.

"Fortunately, they were too late but they did manage to bomb a mail truck and kill three Chinese."

V

A Significant Move

According to a Stockholm message to the Norwegian Telegraph Agency in London, Baron Beck Friis, now acting as Swedish Minister in Portugal, will be sent to London to resume his post as Swedish Minister to King Haakon and the Norwegian Government in London.

Baron Beck Friis acted as Swedish Minister before the invasion, and was accredited to the Norwegian Court. As he has never handed over a letter of recall, he resumes his former post on according to a decision of the Swedish Government.

Baron Beck Friis' resumption of his post as Minister to Norway has important significance and will improve the relations between Fighting Norway and Sweden, not only for the moment, but also for post-war cooperation. Sweden's reluctance in this special matter has been apparent in the flesh to patriotic and fighting Norwegians, both at home and abroad.

In the Garden

GENERAL CARE

The most important job, after a garden is planted, is cultivation: There are others, too, and they should not be neglected but of all of them, the experts agree, timely cultivation heads the list. The major object is not just to destroy weeds, though that is a valuable by-product, but to stir up the soil, to check evaporation, let in air, and to generally produce a healthy environment for the growing plants.

After heavy rains, which will pound the soil flat and encourage hard surface backing when the sun comes out, it is especially desirable to go over the garden with a cultivator. In the small Victory plot or flower bed, cultivation can be carried out with a hand tool. Where the establishment is larger, a rake, hand-drawn cultivator or a horse or motor powered scuffler or cultivator will do the work.

Most professionals make it a regular practice to cultivate once a week during June and early July, and especially after each heavy rain. One should be careful, however, not to work the soil when it is still wet and soggy. This will do more harm than good as it is liable to pack the ground into hard lumps which will bake in the hot sun. It is important to wait until the garden soil remains moist but not muddy.

WEED KILLING

Weed killing is also important, the authorities point out. These things not only disfigure the trim garden but they rob the soil of fertilizer and moisture needed by the vegetables and flowers. A weekly cultivation and one or two thorough weedings early in the season will usually handle these things.

THINNING

This is another vital job, especially with those vegetables and flowers which it is impossible to sow thinly or which we must plant close together originally in case germination is poor or heavy insect damage feared. Carrots, beets, parsnips and early vegetables should be thinned two to four inches apart in the rows. It is not necessary to spare any more widely, as three or four inches will permit early development and then by pulling every other plant for the first few meals, there is room left for later and fuller development.

With bigger plants, eight to ten inches apart, or three or four vines or plants to each hill is sufficient.

MORE ABOUT PESTS

Beginners are inclined to worry too much about insect and other garden pests, experienced gardeners believe. True, there is almost one special insect for every plant that grows in Canada. As a rule, however, if we keep our garden growing vigorously through regular cultivation, in many cases the plants will outgrow most of the damage. But some dusting or spraying is advisable to ward off heavy attacks. Usually we can purchase ready-mixed materials. The important thing is to get these applied just as soon as damage or pests first appear.

WATERING

Watering at transplanting time and in case of severe drought will well repay the trouble involved. Generally speaking, however, hosing is not so necessary with the garden as many people believe. Overuse will result in baking and drowning of many plants. A little sprinkling daily is usually of no value whatever. One thorough soaking once a week in dry weather will be much better.

NO RUSH

There is still lots of time in most parts of Canada to have an excellent war garden. Admittedly one gets some personal satisfaction in getting vegetables planted weeks ahead of the neighbors and, if all goes well, a thrill out of being able to tell his friends that he has had his first radishes long before the usual season. But extra early planting is a gamble and that is why experts urge that only part of the seed be sown then and the balance preserved for planting at small time and later. When planting to spread over weeks in this way there is the solid satisfaction of having the harvest also spread over weeks in the summer and fall.

As a matter of actual statistics, the beginner almost always starts to plant his garden too soon and also stops planting too soon. There is still ample time in most parts of the country for planting all sorts of vegetables, and in fact the tender things like melons, cucumbers, peppers, tomatoes, etc., are best not sown or set out much before this date.

INFORMAL IS BEST

The most effective layout of flowers, lawns and shrubbery, for the average gardener, is an informal one. That is, curved paths and borders rather than straight lines. But when we put in these curves, especially in paths, landscape experts say, we must be sure to make a reason for them otherwise the whole effect will be artificial. At the bend in the drive, flowers mingle with shrubbery, rocks and flowers merely break the lines of the man-made structures behind them, but leave enough showing for contrast.

For screening, the gardener usually employs perennial plants, perhaps shrubbery and handy evergreens. One can, however, get very fair results with quick-growing annuals for both the bushy or vine growing types.

When a bird's eye view of your home shows that it needs paint or repair for its preservation, it is time to see your neighbourhood C-I-L Paint dealer. Replacements are hard to get.

LETTERS FROM NICKEY

THE STORY OF LIFE IN THE C.W.A.C.

Dear Babs :—

It is high time that I introduced you to "Betsy". This awful bundle of oddities came into my life, trailing a long long line of adventures in her wake, at short time after I transferred to Kingston.

"Betsy" is a gypsy of the highways and many many means only one thing to her—the open road. She is a demure little wench wearing a jaunty bonnet, (a little dinted now) ornamented with a handsome radiator top which smacks of the early days of Mr. Ford. With all these attractions, she is naturally the apple of our eye and more in demand than any other member of the Canadian Women's Army Corps at Kingston.

The winning way of her owner immediately make friends for her wherever she goes. Not that it always purrs but let us draw a veil over those dark chapters in "Betsy's" life. Ordinarily, she is a game little bus, only too willing to convey her crew of madcap "Quacks" (abominable nickname!) hither and yon.

Living A Good Life

Apart from my little taints in "Betsy", I have been leading a very sober life; writing yarns about the Canadian Women's Army Corps in Military District No. 8, getting lots of sleep, and some exercise as drill and P.T. are thought to be nice. A special effort is being made to smarten-up company drill. Once a week, the girls drill for an hour as the Armouries and they are beginning to look very well trained, indeed.

When the company is called on parade, the sergeant-major marches briskly across the Parade Square and calls out the platoon markers. She gives them their instructions and they pace off the necessary distances for the platoons. At the words, "On Parade," the company comes to attention and the girls march out to cover off their markers. This is followed by the platoon calling the roll and the command of the sergeant-major and reporting the number present. The company is then turned over to the Officer Commanding who then gives the order for the officers to fall-in. Each sergeant brings her platoon to attention and salutes the platoon officer who takes charge. This is followed by inspection which may be carried out by the platoon officer or by the Officer Commanding. This is the fateful moment when buttons, badges and shoes are subjected to the gimlet stares of the inspecting party. Not to mention hair — the parade bugaboo of the C.W.A.C. Hair must be worn above the collar!

A Neat Little Dodge

Ah, me ! Tendrils are tempting but, alas, they are not for the women in khaki. However, I know a neat little dodge for covering up length of hair during inspection. As the inspecting party proceeds down the front of the line, the girls stand as ramrods (their face blank like mummies) but as the party comes behind the end of the line to scrutinize the backs, the chins droop just a little. This allows the hair to swing clear, but to all appearances the girls are still "at attention." The drill is a drill is a drill.

It is fortunate that our drill has smartened up so decidedly, as we have taken part in two parades recently in which, I am glad to say, we held our own with the men. I love a parade—hands—the rhythm of marching feet—shoulder to shoulder. Oh, old me a "grandstander" if you like, but it goes deeper than that. As I march along, I can feel my heart almost bursting with the pride or belonging to the service. For a moment I can forget "the little Me." I think about the lads released from desk and other jobs, who are training with Canada's army in the field because I, and thousands like me, wear the uniform of the Canadian Women's Army Corps. I think of the ageless virtues of loyalty, gallantry and sacrifice which have created the Canadian Army and are today the sinews of that army.

You have not heard 'beat the drum like this for some time, have you, Babs ? Sorry, but I had to get it off my chest and you are a wonderful safety valve. Your Sergeant Pilot is a lucky lad. Is the day set yet? Oh, yes. I know that he is indispensable to the R.C.A.F. but I still feel that he might be spared to be married to me. The Army manages these things better. There I go — I can't resist trying to get a rise out of you. Not that it ever works Be sure to say 'hello' to Dave for me. Remember, I am looking forward to dancing at that wedding. I would like to go all-out feminine for the occasion. Well, I can dream, can't I ?

Dear Babs :—

The women in khaki have their hands full in the Navy-blue, that's the hive of busy bees ! To-morrow a visiting dignitary will inspect us, and today we are trying to get a rise out of you. Not that it ever works Be sure to say 'hello' to Dave for me. Remember, I am looking forward to dancing at that wedding. I would like to go all-out feminine for the occasion. Well, I can dream, can't I ?

OBSERVERS SEE PROMPT SWING TO SIDE OF ALLIES

BY DOUGALD WERNER
B.U.P. Staff Correspondent

Well-informed sources in London predict that fighting in the Balkans, such as would develop if the Allies tried an invasion thrust through Greece or Yugoslavia, would be the signal for Turkey's entry into the war against the Axis.

One informant asserted that the Turks would immediately join the Allies if the Axis should attempt to bring its armies down through Rumania or Bulgaria to cut the flank of an Allied invasion force.

The Turks fear Bulgarian designs on Istanbul and Turkish troops have been on the alert since the war started to block any move in that direction.

Germany's only prospect of keeping the Turks neutral is to get Russia again become the scene of battle, is to play a cautious game and keep her troops away from Turkey's frontiers, but observers believe that course would be almost impossible in event of an invasion.

The Turks are believed ready to pay the price of war in men and money if that course means assurance from Russia and Britain that they will be allowed to keep the vital Dardanelles.

Turkish fears that the Soviets may try to seize the Straits and thereby cut off the entrance to the Sea of Marmora and one of the few outlets of a determined British fleet prevented them from taking over the Dardanelles. The Turks want history to repeat itself through a new British pledge that the Soviet will not move in again.

One Turkish spokesman said the Turks are "heavily in favor" of the British, with the exception of a small group of army officers who have been trained in German miltary traditions.

He emphasized however, that cold logic rather than sentiment still dictates Turkish policy. Turkey, once the "sick man of Europe," will make no move to enter the war unless she is absolutely convinced that their future will be improved by that course.

THE DAIRY FARMER RANKS HIGH IN MILITARY PLANS!

Milk Homemakers! As the grass blankets the bare fields, the cattle go forth to graze. Mother Nature provides the nutrients and the herds eat consciently and steadily crop the tender shoots of grass to give us that most important food, milk.

Each evening the veteran dairy farmer opens the gate and his army returns to barracks without bands or bunting. Although his field uniform has faded from work and weather, in Canada's military strategy the farmer ranks high. For men must eat, before they can fight. Nations must have food with their freedom—and nature's best-balanced food is milk.

In spite of labour and machinery shortages, last year Ontario made 2.9 million pounds of cheese, exporting 125 millions; made 261 million pounds of butter, and used four and a half million pounds of milk in other ways. The average consumption of butter in Canada is 7.2 oz. per person per week. In 1942 butter production was lower than the previous year, while cheese production was up 34 per cent. Estimated needs require an increase of 6 per cent in milk production in Ontario.

This province can be proud of its farmers for pitching in and producing bumper crops of corn, wheat, meat and other foods, as well as milk — for working longer and harder. Farmers' wives, too, have been doing their share.

RECIPES

Corn and Cheese Casserole

One cup canned corn, one cup of bread or cracker crumbs, one cup grated cheese, half-teaspoon salt, two cups scalded milk, one tablespoon melted fat, one teaspoon of Worcestershire Sauce, two tablespoons chopped green pepper (optional), two eggs.

Combine all ingredients except eggs and milk. Beat egg yolks and add with milk. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Place in greased baking dish and oven-poach in a moderate electric oven (350 deg.) until set — about 40 minutes. Serves 4 to 6.

Cheese Scallop

Four tablespoons fat, four tablespoons flour, two cups milk, one cup grated cheese, salt and pepper, bread crumbs, four cups of cooked spaghetti or macaroni; OR four hard-cooked eggs and two cups spaghetti, potatoes, celery, corn or peas; OR four cups spaghetti and two cups of celery, corn, cabbage or peas.

Make a cream sauce of fat, flour, seasonings and milk. When cooked, add grated cheese. Place alternate layers of spaghetti, etc., and cheese sauce in a greased baking dish. Cover with crumbs and bake in a moderately hot oven (375 deg.) until thoroughly heated — 30 to 40 minutes. Serves 6.

TAKE A TIP:

The care of milk is very important. Here are directions for the homemaker to follow:

1 Provide a receptacle for milkman to put bottles in.
2 Take milk into the house as soon as possible. Keep in a cool place, preferably the electric refrigerator.
3 Wipe off top of bottle before using. Pour out only enough milk for each meal. Keep leftover milk in a capped bottle or a covered pitcher.
4 When empty, rinse, wash and scald bottles; return daily.

THE QUESTION BOX

Mrs. T.B. says: "There has been a big piece of enamel knocked off my electric range and when the oven door is closed it 'checks' more. What will prevent this?"

Answer: Obtain special enamel from your electrical merchant and apply.

Mrs. J.H. asks: "How do you can fish?"

Answer. This method of canning fish keeps well. Scale, wash and clean fresh fish (whitefish, lake trout, salmon or haddock). Cut in pieces, then sprinkle a little salt on each piece. Pack in sterilized jars, and add two tablespoons vinegar to each quart—to soften bones. Adjust rubbers and covers. Partially seal. Place in water bath and let water boil gently for three hours. Remove jars. Let cool quickly. Do not invert. Wrap in paper if storage room is not cool.

VITAMIN B2 (RIBOFLAVIN)

HEALTH LEAGUE OF CANADA

The greater the intake of riboflavin in one's daily rations, the better one's general health and the longer one is likely to live, a leading United States nutrition authority states.

If you are interested in good nutrition, you'll have come across the word "riboflavin" before this. It is the name given to part of the Vitamin B complex, and it is present in milk, eggs, meat (especially liver) and green leaf vegetables. If you are familiar with livestock feeding, you will know that riboflavin is as important in animal food as in human diet.

The interesting thing about riboflavin is that the more you take, the more good it does. Most vitamins are needed in certain quantities and the body cannot make use of a great excess.

A large intake of riboflavin brings about that "feeling of well-being and buoyant good health," which is much better than "average good health", and a great deal better than just not being sick.

A low level of riboflavin brings about earlier signs of old age, a shorter prime of life, a lower level of general health, and, if prolonged, will cause a disease known as ariboflavinosis. This ailment is characterized by weakening of the eyes, cracks at mouth corners, digestive disturbances and poor skin condition. These conditions are common, especially among office workers who drink too little milk. For without milk it is difficult to get the optimum amount of riboflavin. The average daily requirement for an adult is 2.2 milligrams.

MOTORISTS ASKED TO GIVE AIRMEN A LIFT

An appeal has been made on be- half of the personnel of No. 1 T.F.S. at Deseronto, for motorists between Belleville and Napanee, who see the men on the highway in the evening to give the Airmen a lift, whenever possible.

It has been explained that the men are quite willing to use the bus when possible, but in many cases they are unable to get bus accommodation at the required times.

Facilities for entertainment are decidedly limited around the camp and in Deseronto, consequently the men go to Belleville or Napanee to spend the evening. Oftentimes they are not able to get a bus back, and, unless they are picked up by motor- ists, must walk the whole distance back to the camp.

These facts were given by Mr. Goodman, the Camp Y. M. C. A. Director, and are printed in the interests of the Airmen.

Maj. H. L. Armstrong Honored By King In Birthday Honors

The name of Major H. LeRoy Armstrong was included in the list of honors conferred by King George VI on his birthday, last week.

Major Armstrong, whose home is in Napanee, was made a member of the Order of the British Empire, designated by the initials "M.B.E." worn after the name.

Major Armstrong, who is Second in Command of the 15th Field Regiment, has been overseas since last August. He enlisted early in the war with the 32-34 Battery. He was formerly in command of the local 47th Field Battery (R) and had been with the reserve army since shortly after the First Great War.

Mayor Armstrong's wife, the former Mildred Johnston, and his three children, reside in Napanee and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Armstrong, live near Napanee on the Newburgh Road.

CAMPAIGN FOR FUNDS FOR GREEK RELIEF TO RUN TO JUNE 26

$500,000 Objective For Dominion

During the next three weeks, June 7th to June 26th, a campaign will be conducted throughout the Domin- ion to raise at least $500,000.

The object of this national cam- paign, through which it is hoped to obtain funds with which to buy food, medical and other supplies, for ship- ment to Greece, where thousands and thousands of men, women and child- ren are slowly starving to death.

The campaign is being conducted by the Greek War Relief Fund with headquarters at 1507 Royal Bank Building, 360 St. James Street Montreal. It is authorized by the Department of National War Services, Ottawa, under a letter dated April 22, 1943, signed by the Director of Voluntary and Auxiliary Services.

There will be no solicitation for personal subscriptions allowed, so the success of the campaign de- pends upon the extent to which the public of Canada voluntarily sends in subscriptions.

Everyone remembers the magnifi- cent resistance of the Greeks. They resisted Hitler and Mussolini, but they have paid a terrible penalty, and today there is no race suffering as intensely as the Greeks in their homeland.

The National Chairman of this campaign is Jackson Dodds, former general manager of the Bank of Montreal. Other well-known in- dustrialists have already promised their full support.

The local committee is headed by Mr. W. J. Wiggins, Manager of the Napanee Branch of the Roya Bank of Canada, and Mr. Peter Ganas, proprietor of the Superior Restau- rant.

Contributions may be left or mail- ed to the Greek War Relief Fund, in care of The Roya Bank, Napanee, The Napanee Beaver Office, or sent direct to the National Headquarters, at 1507 Royal Bank Building, Monti- real, Que.

DON'T LET THEM STARVE

Greek men, women and children are dying by thousands from starv- ation.

In a single day over 6,000 dead men, women and children in the streets of Athens — victims of starvation!

The death rate among children, ten to 30 years, has increased twenty times the normal figure.

Food rations are less than one- third the normal consumption be- fore the war.

Little children are skulking through the towns as scavengers, fighting over garbage cans in search of a morsel of food.

Babies are abandoned in the streets.

Mothers bury their dead children in secret, if possible, so they can retain the ration-cards. Then they resume their begging, fighting sav- agely for food to help stave off death.

But, despite these tragic circum- stances, GREECE STILL FIGHTS ON!

These are statements of fact taken from reports of the International Red Cross:

The black market of Greece is appalling —

A loaf of bread costs $22.50;
a pound of steak, $34;
a dozen eggs, $27.00;
a pound of sugar, $22.50;
5 lbs. of potatoes, $14.25;
a cake of soap, $11;
a pair of shoes, $400;
a $25 suit of clothes, $1,500;

And yet, WE TALK of rationing in Canada!

A motion by Reeve Daly and Coun- cillor Robson was passed, asking that a committee be appointed to act in conjunction with the Greek Relief Fund drive.

The Mayor appointed Reeve Daly and Councillors VanAlstyne and Robson.

A communication was read from the Napanee Iron Works, asking that they be given a rebate of their por- tion of the garbage collection tax, as they have no garbage at their plant, only ashes, and the garage collector has refused to take them away.

Referred to the Police Committee to investigate and report.

Reeve Daly, Chairman of the Fin- ance Committee, presented the fol- lowing statement of the town's fin- ances from January 1st, 1943, to May 31st, 1943:

Revenue: Rents, $105.69; licenses, $412.60; fines and fees, $116.53; mar- ket rents, $120.00; streets, $7.00; health and sanitation, $116.89; fire and water, $1.50; relief refunds from Province of Ontario, $563.22; County road refund, $2,014.36; refund re re- lief outside municipalities, $229.66; debenture receipts, waterworks de- partment, $1,893.20; debenture in- stalment on water tower and equip- ment, $754.42; miscellaneous, $506.29; bank, $65,323.67; local Ration Board, $261.68.

Protection of persons and property: Police, $1,295.00; street lighting, $1,563.94; fire and water, $2,133.14.

Streets, $2,380.23; health and sani- tation, $3,066.16; charity and wel- fare, $575.95; debenture principal, $13,788.94; debenture interest, $4,067; garbage collection, $1,006.94; schools, $14,150.00; county rate, $17,450.00.

The Chairman also presented a statement from the Treasurer of accounts paid by him during the month of May and for which he asked for ratification. The amount of the accounts paid was $6,673.13.

On motion, vouchers were granted.

Following is a report presented in reference to the activities of the Police Department for the month of May, as submitted by Chief-of-Police Moore: Complaints received, 14; complaints investigated, 14; doors found unfastened, 12; gas pumps found unfastened, 1; summons serv- ed, 6; arrests, 5. During the month of May the following convictions were obtained in the town: Eleven charges under the Criminal Code, six charges under the Liquor Control Act, one charge under the Highway Traffic Act.

The following report was submit- ted by the Relief Officer for the month of May:

Amount of relief to be paid by the town, $190.86; amount of relief to be paid by the province, $204.86. The number of heads of families on re- lief was 4, dependents on relief 14, single persons on relief 7; a total of 25.

The securing of sufficient patch- ing material for repairing the streets came up for discussion and the in- formation was forthcoming that al- though an order had been placed for 1,500 gallons, the amount on the town had only been 500 gallons. This amount would hardly be suffi- cient for repairing the paved roads.

An effort is being made to secure more patching material, but the out- look is not very encouraging.

Messrs. Fred H. Henderson and Chas. Buchanan addressed the Coun- cil in reference to the usual grant for the Harness Race. Mr. Buchanan pointed out that the Lennox Fair had proven one of the most success- ful of its size in the Province of Ontario, and particularly so in the exhibit of Dairy Cattle. 123 head of Holstein cattle were exhibited at the Lennox Fair last year on Black and White Day, and this was the largest exhibit at any fair in the whole province.

Mr. Henderson explained that while the Fair last year was not financi- ally a success, it was highly success- ful every other way and was most beneficial, not only to the town, but the surrounding rural community.

The dates for the Fair have been fixed, but a lot will depend upon whether a Midway can be secured. Transportation problems have to be settled before anything definite can be done.

The granting of the request was referred to the Finance Committee with power to act.

A motion was passed authorizing declaring July 1st a public holiday.

Following the passing of accounts the Council adjourned until June 28th, at the call of the Mayor.

PUPILS' WORK SEEN BY PARENTS AT "OPEN DAY"

A large number of the parents of the pupils attending the West Ward Public School were given an opport- unity of seeing some of the work done by their children when "Open Day" was held at the school, last Wednesday afternoon.

A musical program including num- bers by each grade in the school, was presented in the open air from a platform erected by the pupils, under the direction of the principal, Albert Hill. Races were run on the campus, for which prizes will be presented to the winners at a later date by the Home and School Asso- ciation.

The interior of the school, of which a tour of inspection was made by the visitors, was decorated with a great many bouquets of spring flow- ers and the walls were covered with examples of the art work done by the pupils.

In the basement where the Man- ual Training and Home Economics classes are held, there were displays of the needle work done by the girls in grades 6, 7 and 8 and ex- amples of the woodwork done by the boys.

Considerable interest was shown by the visitors in the Home Econ- omics and Manual Training rooms, which were added to the school class rooms when the new courses were instituted a few years ago. Gradually new equipment is being added and the pupils who take the courses show a great deal of interest in the work and are gaining valuable experience.

TEACHERS ASKED TO TAKE SUMMER WAR EMPLOYMENT

Special Attention Given to Registration of Teachers for War Work

Mr. M. L. Perry, Manager of the Local Employment and Selective Service Office, states that he has received special instructions, origin- ating with Arthur MacNamara, Di- rector of National Selective Service, that special efforts must be made to obtain school teachers into farming or other essential work during the summer holidays.

"Honorable Humphrey Mitchell, Minister of Labor, recently issued an appeal to school teachers to engage at farming or other essential work during the summer time", Mr. Perry said. "The Minister appealed to teachers not to regard the closing of the schools this year as a holiday, but rather as an opportunity to aid directly in solving Canada's war-time labor problems".

Mr. Perry said that the Local Em- ployment Office will give special attention to registering teachers, either for work in this district, or for essential work in their home lo- cality, or even elsewhere, depending upon where work is available.

It is not the intention of Selective Service, Mr. Perry pointed out, to keep teachers away from the special Summer Courses which they are sometimes required to take. How- ever, it was emphasized that teach- ers will be given priority consid- eration, and that the present in- tention is to get teachers to accept jobs for the summer only, after which they will return to the teaching pro- fession.

At the present time there are a considerable number of vacancies at the local office, both in agriculture and other essential work, and Mr. Perry stated that the local office staff will be glad to assist the teachers in obtaining suitable employment either locally or elsewhere.

HONOR WHERE HONOR IS DUE

At its recent meeting held in Gananoque The Bay of Quinte Conference of The United Church of Canada passed a resolution expressing appreciation of the work which Mr. Donald Gordon had done in connection with the stabilization of prices. This was a genuine expression of a group of thoughtful men, who were somewhat aware of the problems which Mr. Gordon has faced and the measure of success he has achieved. Too often, public bodies are prone to criticize and to forget those who are giving conscientious service to the public.

Those who visit The United States on occasion cannot but be impressed with the difference in the cost of living between the two countries. There has been a greater tendency towards inflation in The United States than in Canada. Prices of many commodities across the border are now fixed, but they are at a higher level than here. Whatever we have of checks and balances against inflationary trends, has been due to the quick and drastic action taken by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Donald Gordon has done a good job.

Mr. Gordon has very recently pointed out however, that the whole structure of price stabilization is liable to fall to pieces without the continued co-operation of the public. Perhaps the point of most danger now is that of the primary producer. Farm products were not restricted. This was largely due to the fact that the primary producer had not been receiving a fair share of the national income. Now, however, while other commodities have been kept fairly stable, the farm prices have risen until the difference between what the farmer receives for his products and what he pays for his goods, is greatly reduced. The price of potatoes, cabbage, turnips and other vegetables has increased to quite a marked degree. Whatever rise there has been in the cost of living has been due almost wholly to the advance in farm products. It would look now as though the farmers are receiving fair prices. And it may be that if the whole price structure is to be maintained, and the nightmare of inflation avoided, a stabilization of farm prices will soon be necessary.

There is one way in which we all may assist the national effort, reduce our own cost of living and that is by planting gardens of our own. There is plenty of land in and around Napanee which can be used for this purpose. Most of our people have vegetable gardens, but nobody should be satisfied unless they are cultivating every bit of garden space available. For the first time, due to the lateness of the season, and the unprecedented demands for foodstuffs from abroad, Canada faces a shortage of certain farm commodities. Here is an area of service in which we all can be profitably engaged.

FEEDING STARVING PEOPLE

Food from Canada and The United States is getting through to Greece. By international agreement all the food shipped into Greece is distributed by a joint commission of Swedish and Swiss Red Cross, under the auspices of the International Red Cross Committee in Greece. This is absolutely confirmed, by reports of the committee and eye-witnesses. None of the food goes to the enemy. Every bit of it is used to feed the Greek people. Greece is never, even in the best of times, self-sufficient. A great deal of food has to be imported, and with all trade cut off, the situation is serious. But that is not all. The war has robbed the Greeks of much of their manpower and facilities for raising crops. The country is overrun by an invading army which destroyed everything it did not confiscate. The result of these factors is that a whole nation is practically starving. People are hungry, really hungry. It is not a matter of a meatless day once a week, or a rationed diet. They have not even the barest necessities of life. Many thousands have died through starvation, and from disease caused by malnutrition. Many thousands more would have died had it not been for the food which went forth from Canada and The United States. But a shipload or two of flour and beans for a whole nation provides only a few pounds for each family, for three or four days. There must be a continuous flow of food if the Greek people are to be kept alive. This requires not only food and ships and personnel, it requires money. An opportunity is given to Canadians to share in this humanitarian task of saving the lives of the Greek people. If a canvasser does not call, send the money to The Beaver Office, and we will see it goes to the proper authorities.

We owe it to the Greek people to do all we can for them. When the whole of Europe was overrun by the enemy and it looked as though Germany would succeed in conquering every European nation, Greece dared to oppose her victorious march. It was a terribly one-sided encounter. But by opposing Germany, Greece held up the attack on Russia, thus giving The United Nations valuable time for preparation. Greece paid the price in lives lost, country devastated, and food confiscated. Greece is still paying the price. We owe it to this gallant people to give out of our abundance that some, at least, of the women and children who otherwise will starve to death, will be saved.

A BIT OF A SHOCK

In a rather lengthy editorial in The Kingston Whihg - Standard on Saturday, our highly-esteemed neighbour confessed to be greatly shocked at a resolution which was embodied in the report of the Committee of Evangelism and Social Service, adopted by the Bay of Quinte Conference of The United Church of Canada, at its meeting in Canaanoque, last week. This confession of a shock was a confession we had hardly expected from a paper so usually well versed on current movements. Nobody should have been shocked at the action of The Bay of Quinte Conference who had read the Archbishop of Canterbury's statements on social and economic reconstruction, who had read the findings of the Malvern Conference, or who had read the reports of General Councils, Conferences and Presbyteries of The United Church in recent years, or who was acquainted with the work of the Fellowship for a Christian Social Order. Even a passing acquaintance with these would make clear to any group that there is a well-defined movement within the Christian Church which is not satisfied with the sort of unrestricted competition which has marked our economic structure for the past century or so. And they are not satisfied because of the way in which it has failed to meet the essential needs of all people. The Bay of Quinte Conference would admit all the marvellous benefits which have come as a result of what is called Free Enterprise. But that does not prevent the Conference from recognizing the need now for government control of business and of the means of production. To argue as the Kingston paper does that the phrase in the resolution which says: "And whereas privately controlled industry was unable to use its full capacity in peace . . . " means "that private enterprise is to blame because the demand for its products did not warrant peak production in peace time" is hardly a fair deduction. It scarcely needs to be pointed out that during the depression there was just as great a demand for goods as ever, families wanted furniture, they needed clothing, they demanded food. The demand was there, but private enterprise did not meet the demand because the goods could not be sold at a profit — coffee was destroyed, oranges were dumped in the sea, hogs were slaughtered and destroyed; automobiles, furniture, all sorts of manufactured goods were stored up, not because there was no demand for them, but because the economic system which should have enabled people to purchase them was not capable of meeting the situation.

The Whig-Standard says, "that with all due respect to the cloth, we cannot accept these recommendations of The Bay of Quinte Conference." Does The Whig-Standard not know that The Bay of Quinte Conference is not a matter of "cloth". Half of the Conference are laymen, doctors, lawyers, farmers, school-teachers, businessmen. The findings of the Conference are not those of a few men of "the cloth" but of those from all walks of life who have given more than passing study to the subject under discussion.

That the economic order under which we have lived for three hundred years has brought untold benefits to certain nations, ourselves included, cannot be denied. But it cannot continue as it once functioned. To argue that because an economic system was good at one time it must be good for all time, is to deny the very idea of progress which brought it into being. Change and adaption to new conditions is the law of life. To express the hope, as the Kingston paper does, that when the war is over government regulations will be lifted and the old conditions be restored, is a bit of wishful thinking. It reveals a failure to appreciate the deep - seated causes of the world-shaking revolution which is taking place before our very eyes.

Norwegian "Towns" Flee Nazis

The whole populations of certain localities in Norway near the Swedish border have been crossing into Sweden lately, sometimes taking their cattle and most essential possessions with them, according to reports from the Swedish press. It is said that during the first half of May there was a regular flow of refugees from Norway, sometimes taking the form of a mass exodus. Now there is hardly a locality near the border which has not been affected by escapes into Sweden.

The whole population of Rhberget near Trysil, about 200, crossed the border bringing their cattle. From Elvskogen, south of Kongsvinger, that 70 persons from the sparsely populated area have gone to Sweden. From another place, a local teacher arrived at school one day to find that no pupils were waiting for him. All the children had fled to Sweden with their parents. One reason for this mass exodus is said to be the discovery, by the Germans, of underground activities in the frontier districts, and the knowledge of the reprisals, arrests and rounding - up of hostages that were bound to come.

THE SORT OF LETTER THE CENSOR LIKES

Sir,— An excellent example of safeguarding military information is exhibited by the following soldier's letter:

Date: Who Cares,
Place: Ditto.

Greetings:

After leaving where we were before we left for here, not knowing we were coming here from there, we could not tell if we would arrive here or not. Nevertheless we are now here and not there.

The weather here is just as it is at this season but of course quite unlike the weather where we were before we came here. After leaving what we came by, we had a good trip.

The people here are just like they look but do not look be like they were where we came from. From there to here is just as far as it is from here to there.

The way we came here is just like everyone comes from here to there. Of course we had to bring everything we had with us for we wear what we would wear here which is not what we wear where we were. The whole thing is quite a new experience here because it isn't like what it is like where we were when we left for here.

It is now time, in all probability to stop this somewhat too newsy letter before I give away too much information as the censor here is likely to be a spy.

Love,
Uno-Hoo.

LANDLORDS MUST COMPLY WITH RENT REGULATIONS

The numerous changes of residence taking place at this season of the year, including a shift of population from urban accommodations to summer cottages, lead the Rentals Administration of the Prices Board to remind landlords that in every case where a lease or a sub-lease of a month or longer is contracted, it is obligatory upon them to complete without delay a form WC-40, obtainable at any office of the Board. One copy of this form is required to be handed forthwith to the tenant, while a third is retained by the landlord.

The completion of this form, furnishing details of the terms of rental, is necessary if the lease is either written or oral, and it applies to all accommodations, including houses, commercial premises, apartments, flats, and summer cottages, where occupancy is given for a month or longer. Only premises used exclusively for farm purposes are excepted.

This stipulation has now been in effect for more than a year and it must be followed whenever a new lease is contracted or an existing lease altered.

Appropriate penalties are provided under the rentals regulations for non-compliance with this requirement and there have been already several cases in Eastern Ontario where fines have been imposed upon landlords for failure to complete the specified forms.

Report Overcharges For Hauling

Reporting the receipt of complaints about charges made by carters and others for the removal of ashes and similar accumulations, the Regional Office of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board draws attention to the fact that the firms or individuals furnishing such services are, like all others engaged in performing haulage, subject to price control. They must not exceed the charges made by them for similar services during the basic period of September 15 to October 1941, unless they have received specific authority to do so. Prompt investigation of complaints concerning these and similar services or of ground of over-charging is promised by the Board.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON, JUNE 13TH, 1943

LESSON TEXT: II PETER 1: 1-11
GOD'S EXCEEDING GREAT PROMISES

This letter was not written by the Apostle Peter. It was written a century and a half later than the time of Peter, when the Christian Church was at that time a common literary place. It was done to attract attention and to emphasize what the great man (in this case Peter) would have said had he been alive. The book from which this lesson is taken was addressed to Christians everywhere.

The first section of the lesson contains the salutation, a blessing, and a condensed statement to the effect that those to whom he was writing were partakers of the Divine nature through the knowledge of Christ.

The past few years has seen a growth among our people, of the spirit of self-sufficiency and indifference to the spiritual side of his nature. Our schools had ruled out religion, our churches had become largely places of conventional worship. Family worship declined. Sunday observance became a matter of convenience. In a word, man had neglected the Divine side of his make-up. He felt he could get along very well by his own prowess, his own strength, his own wits. Now, he is brought face to face with the failure of that philosophy of life. He is learning in the hard school of bitter warfare, that man cannot trust himself alone. That there is another side besides that which he shares with all nature. There is a Divine side. As Peter puts it here: a Divine nature. This Divine nature, Peter says, man may share through the power which knowledge of God gives him.

This is not so abstract as it sounds. How, for example, does a child get the nature of the parents? In the first place by the physical endowment. But that is not all. Many a boy, given a good physical inheritance, has failed to follow in the footsteps of his father. Poor must, by training, by imbibing a proper ideas, and by instilling right habits, convey their own nature to their children. It will simply, because they were with that so many sons of the parents and masses become mindless because they have the nature their parents inculcated and stated through the training in home and the attitude of parents, to life.

Similarly, we have all been with a potentially Divine nature but we can only be partakers of to the full if we cultivate it by the attitudes, personality and grace of Christ. Christ makes know the Divine nature. Christ veals to us the nature of God can become God-like when we children to parents par excellence under His constant and gracious fluence. We are learning today, and school boards are realizing their attitude to religion and coming those who would lead children of the Christian truth way, while in business and politics there is a growing sense of failure of secularism and a new prehension of the Divine nature of mankind.

Peter has made it clear in the section that by taking advantage and becoming Christian they become partakers of the Divine nature. He now gives some practical suggestions as to how this is to be cultivated and developed. A Christian has to put forth some effort, and is left undirected. Is just going to be evil as good.

Here then are some of the which Peter suggests, diligence virtue, knowledge, self-control, tience, godliness, brotherly love. This is quite a formidable list. But the virtues catalogued are essential to the Christian character. The attainment and development of a Divine nature.

FAT IS AMMUNITION!

Fat and bone conservation begins at home and ends in the firing line

- DO YOU KNOW -

One pound of fat supplies enough glycerine to fire 150 bullets from a Bren gun.

Two pounds of fat will fire a burst of 20 cannon shells from a Spitfire or 10 anti-aircraft shells.

Bones produce fat and aircraft glue.

If we saved fat at the rate of one ounce per person per week this would mean 36,000,000 pounds per year, enough to produce 3,600,000 pounds of glycerine for explosives.

OUR FIGHTERS DEPEND ON YOU

"Every householder who delivers to a retail butcher, collector, or Salvage Committee, any rendered or unrendered fats or bones shall be entitled to receive from the person to whom they are delivered 4 cents per pound net weight for rendered fats, and 1 cent per pound for unrendered fats."

The above paragraph is a direct quotation from Order A-642 of The Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

"Rendered fat" means fat melted down and strained to remove solid matter. It includes drippings and strained pan grease resulting from the cooking of meat.

"Unrendered fat" means raw or partially cooked fat free from lean meat and bone, but not fully rendered.

"Bones" means raw or cooked bones of cattle, sheep and hogs.

EVERY OUNCE COUNTS!

SAVE AND STRAIN EVERY DROP TO SPEED VICTORY. SELL IT TO YOUR BUTCHER OR GIVE IT TO YOUR SALVAGE COMMITTEE.

NOTICE TO BUTCHERS, HOTELS, ETC.

You have been mailed a copy of Order A-642. This Order affects operators of hotels, restaurants and other establishments where meals are served. It is of immediate importance to butchers and slaughterers. If your copy has been lost, you can obtain another from the nearest office of The Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

Under the new system introduced this year, Income Tax is now on a pay-as-you-earn basis. The reduction of the 1942 Tax made this possible.

In most cases the larger part of the reduced tax will have been paid by the 1942 tax deductions or instalment payments. One-third of any balance must be paid by 30th June and the remainder on or before 31st December, 1943.

You must file an Income Tax return and pay any balance to establish your right, after the war, to the refund of the Savings Portion of your tax.

If you are a salary or a wage earner, your employer can probably supply you with Income Tax Forms—otherwise, they are available at your local Post Office or the office of your District Inspector of Income Tax.

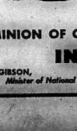
Forms may be secured from your local Post Office or District Inspector of Income Tax.



To help you fill out your Income Tax forms a booklet ("Farmers' Income Tax Guide, 1942") has been prepared to cover the special conditions which apply to farm operations. ILLEGAL POSSESSION GAS RATION BOOKS BRINGS FINES

Convicted of being in illegal possession of gasoline ration books, John N. Amey, of Kingston, was sentenced in police court in that city to serve six months definite and two months indefinite in the Ontario Reformatory. On a similar charge Grant Gerow of the same city, was fined $50 and costs, with the alternative of serving two months in jail.

In sworn statements given to the R.C.M.P., both of the accused admitted that they were in illegal possession of gasoline ration books. Amey said that he had bought about 30 of them from a stranger for $250, while Gerow admitted having secured six of the books which he attempted to sell for $15, returning them to Amey without having made any sales.

In passing sentence, Magistrate J. B. Garvin emphasized the wartime need for gasoline and the seriousness of supplies being wasted. W. O. Dwyer appeared as counsel for the Department of Justice.

During an argument over some dishes Wheeler gave his father-in-law a beating up, striking him around the head and face and kicking him to bleed profusely. Constable Chambers arrested and placed Mr. Wheeler under arrest. While in the office of the Chief of Police, Wheeler refused to be locked up and assaulted the constable before he could be placed in the cells.

WAAC'S In U.S. Revue Visit Canada Entertain Members Can. Army

Kingston, June 7. — It was W.A.A.C. meets C.W.A.C. here over the week end, when 25 other ranks of the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps of the United States and three officers, believed to be the first group to come to Canada, entertained men and women of the Canadian Army.

The W.A.A.C.'s, members of a mixed troupe of over sixty, appeared in a two-act musical revue "Bands-A-Poppin!" staged entirely by personnel of the United States Army from Pine Camp, N.Y. The revue was presented Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon at the Canadian Signals Training Centre at Vimy, on the outskirts of Kingston for army personnel in the Kingston area and their friends.

Women's Army Auxiliary Corps members of the troupe were guests at a luncheon on Saturday afternoon at the barracks of the Canadian Women's Army Corps at Barriefield, where they were also billeted for the week-end. The WAAC's and CWAC's spent most of the week-end discussing their respective units, and of course the main topic was uniforms.

Col. H. D. Belton, post commander of Pine Camp, and Mrs. Belton, accompanied the U. S. group, which came to Kingston in a reciprocal entertainment engagement arranged through Col. C. H. Ackerman, District Auxiliary Services Officer of Military District No. 3. Morley Plunkett, former member of the Dumbells, well known as army entertainers to the 1914-1918 veterans, now an auxiliary war services officer at Kingston, recently took an entertainment group from M.D. No. 3 to Pine Camp, and was mainly responsible for getting the United States troupe to come to Canada.

The Pine Camp Post Voluntary Orchestra, a really hot jive aggregation, which could also play sweet music under the baton of Corpl. Irving Weinstein, had the Canadian Army lads and lassies swaying in their seats.

As the title of the show reveals, "Bands-A-Poppin!" is modelled after the stage show "Hellz-A-Poppin!" and the presentation of comedy and songs, climaxed by a finale which included the flags of all the United Nations, was greatly enjoyed by Canada's men and women in khaki.

Officers in the Pine Camp group on tour reports over the week-end of Col. A. E. Duncanson, D.S.O., and D., Commandant of the Canadian Auxiliary Corps Training Centre, Barriefield, who with Col. F. O. Matloch, M.C., V.D., Commandant of the Canadian Signals Training Centre, at a luncheon expressed appreciation on behalf of the soldiers in the Kingston area for the splendid entertainment provided by the U. S. Army personnel.

Shoppers Asked To Change Day of Week-end Shopping

Transfer of the customary week-end shopping from Saturdays to Thursdays or Fridays is suggested by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board with a view to relieving merchants who are suffering from manpower and other difficulties and also enabling consumers to receive better service.

It is recognized that many people, including those belonging to country districts whose occupations allow them to visit towns on Saturdays, cannot be expected to alter their accustomed shopping habits. In other cases, however, a change in the accustomed shopping-day would cause little inconvenience or hardship and it was, indeed, with a view to relieving Saturday congestion in food stores that the validity dates of ration coupons was changed from that day to Thursday.

The Prices Board feels that spreading the shopping over the week instead of concentrating it on Saturdays will prove of marked benefit to many purchasers who are carrying on with a shortage of experienced help and other problems and also promote easier and more efficient shopping on the part of consumers.

BIRTHS

BENNETT— At Brantford Hospital, on Thursday, June 3rd, 1943, to Cpl. and Mrs. W. J. Bennett (Edith Drake, formerly of Napanee), a son.

ADDINGTON DISTRICT
W. I. ANNUAL

The morning session opened at 9.30 with the president, Mrs. C. A. Baker in the chair. Mrs. Baker called on Rev. W. G. Thompson, who gave a brief address complimenting the Women's Institutes on the good work they were doing in raising the standard of home life now when war conditions make it so necessary.

A very kind address of welcome was given by Mrs. Harold Hawley. This contained a great many good thoughts.

Minutes and financial report of the district were then given by the District Secretary and the Auditor's report was read by Miss Cameron, of Newburgh. Community singing "O Canada" and "Keep the Home Fires Burning" was accompanied by Mrs. Dean Vandervoort.

The report on Agriculture and Canadian Industries was read by Mrs. Easterbrook, who had received reports from all the branches. Historical Research was reported on by Mrs. Acton Robinson, who reported many items added to the village books and papers on the early history of many of our villages. The first rest office in Sheffield was opened in 1846. This township also had the first warden of the county to the person of Mr. Perry, who first built the Perry Bend. Miss Powell's history of the Women's Institutes "Forty Years a Country Life" was then read by some Institutes and read with interest.

The report on social welfare given by Miss Cameron, mentioned sewing circles, garden clubs, entertaining of girls in those classes. First Aid kits placed in schools, Mothers-in-law parties, papers on health and child welfare, etc.

Reports on publicity and citizenship were given by Mrs. D. Channin and Mrs. C. King respectively and a splendid report on war work was read by Mrs. George Walker. Donations of money for jam money for central fund, money for blankets and gifts to soldiers and sailors, afghans, books to camps, quilts, clothing, aid to Russian relief and aid for Chinese, knitted articles of all kinds and $2,000 worth of seeds to Great Britain.

The paper on Home Economics, read by Mrs. F. Snider reported papers, demonstrations and exhibits, war time economics, canning recipes. This was followed with community singing which was enjoyed, and the president called on Mrs. Holmes of Belleville, president of the Federated Board, who was present.

Mrs. Holmes brought greetings from the Federated Board and thanked the district for the donation to the central fund which had grown from $500 to the Aid for Russia, $569 to Chinese Relief, $1,000 for Great Britain. Already, many letters had been received from people in Britain in appreciation of the work. The Central Fund also bought a mobile kitchen at a cost of $1,000. It also sent 130 tons of jam and honey to Britain, and helped advance dress and Victory Loans. Mrs. Holmes then thanked Mrs. Holmes for her splendid address.

Mrs. Robllin, our representative on the Federated Board, read and moved Miss Clarke, superintendent of Women's Institutes, Ottawa, be hooved the W. I. members would achieve a balance between war work and home and community work. She also explained how resolutions should be brought to the Federated Board.

It was decided to ask branches for 10c a member, instead of 10c, for federated fees.

A splendid exhibit of handicrafts and made-over articles was shown by a member of each branch. A great many beautiful pieces of embroidery, rugs, also hooky quilts, were featured besides practical garments.

The president, Mrs. Baker, gave a resume of the meetings made in the district during her term of office.

A message from Lady Tweedsmuir, thanked the district for their donation to the wreath to be placed on the cenotaph in Ottawa, and Addington were the only two local district W. I's to donate this wreath. It was decided to give a donation this year.

Mrs. Easterbrook replied to the address of welcome thanking Yarker Women's Institute for the splendid shown in Mrs. Hawley's address.

Afternoon Session

After lunch the entire room of Yarker School and the junior room under the direction of Mrs. Valentine and Miss Hamilton, respectively, gave several selections, showing the good results gained from their study of music in the school. Miss Jean Scott, the leader of girls' work, next spoke of her work with the girls, congratulating the district on the appearance of the new members held. A very successful Achievement Day was held in Napanee on May 1st, which was well attended. The girls were present, and wore their dresses to exhibit them.

Mrs. Allore led in a memorial service for a member, Mrs. Hannah Egan, who has passed away, is very much missed by her associates in Institute work.

Miss Collins, of the Department of Agriculture, congratulated Miss Scott on the splendid dresses made by the girls' classes. She said that the wonderful contributions the Institute is making towards the war effort and thought there were many things to study after the war: refforestation, heating, better living and better roads would be suggested also improved educational programs. It was decided that we would have a special course in nutrition "Two vocal solos by Mrs. Hugh Ramsay were much enjoyed as was a reading by Mrs. D. McLaughlin.

Mrs. McNaughton, of Sydenham, and Mrs. C. A. Copp of Harrowsmith, were welcome guests and expressed their pleasure at being present. Assembly singing followed by discussion on lunches, which forms a problem since so many foods are rationed, brought forth many ingenious solutions to the problem.

A quiz was then put on "Who's Who in Canada," sponsored by Mrs. Earl Boyce. This was very instructive and educational.

Officers Elected

The election of officers resulted in the following being elected: Hon. President, Mrs. Arthur Baker; President, Mrs. E. W. Berry; 1st Vice-President, Mrs. T. Allore; 2nd Vice-President, Mrs. H. Easterbrook; 3rd Vice-President, Mrs. D. Vandervoort; Secretary - Treasurer, Miss Meg Johnston; Federated Representative, Mrs. A. Baker; Alternate, Mrs. Geo. Wilford; District Directors, Mrs. E. W. Bawe; Alternate, Mrs. G. McAuley; Auditors, Mrs. Baldwin, Miss Cameron.

The Standing Committee conveners were re-elected.

The Courtesy Committee consists of Mrs. Graham, Mrs. Bleecker, Mrs. Robllin, Miss Collins and Miss Bell, a big lively meeting and helpful address, also Yarker - Colebrook District Directors. They reported the present style of lunches be a permanent custom. They reported having our district represented who has worked so hard to make a success of the district work.

LETTERS FROM NICKEY

THE STORY OF LIFE IN THE C.W.A.C.

Dear Babs :—

One of the most exciting events in my army career occurred last Wednesday when we were honored by a visit from an officer of the Canadian Women's Army Corps from National Defence Headquarters at Ottawa. I have been raving about the achievements of this official ever since I enlisted and she seemed to be a legend rather than a person. I could hardly believe that I was really to see her in the flesh.

Promptly at seven o'clock, we all piled trucks which were waiting to take us to the Drill Hall at Barriefield where the C.W.A. dignitary would review us. You know, Babs, if you could have seen that convoy of trucks filled with the girls in khaki singing their Army songs, you would have understood the true meaning of "esprit de corps."

The girls were drawn up in formation by eight o'clock, each girl standing in her allotted place, eagerly awaiting the important visitor. At last she arrived, a slender little lady with a charming personality and a friendly smile for all. With her opening words we were spellbound, and listened with rapt attention during her very brief but inspiring talk.

She warmly complimented us on the smart appearance of the companies and made us feel, each and every one of us, that she was truly proud of us. She pointed out the unique opportunity with which we have been favoured of serving at this moment. Finally she reminded us whether we served in Canada or overseas, we were the representatives of the Canadian people. I feel that in every heart her words made the flame of loyalty burn a little higher.

I have a hunch that with very little encouragement, I might elucidate further on the wonders of the C.W.A.C., so perhaps I should change the subject before your patience snaps, and tell you some of the latest gossip, chatter.

I've mentioned that you would like to hear how by friend, Barton-Kingsley's career is progressing. Dear old Barty has been so wrapped up in her hush hush course since she left Kingston that she has not been herself at all and I am afraid poor Cuthbert is out on a limb. However, I saw her brooding soulfully over some daffodils a few days ago, so I think spring may work wonders and then any time now and Cuthbert will come into his own again. I think he is her match though. It can only be fate when two people with such elaborate vocabularies meet.

Thanks for the box of cookies. You are much too good. This I say, munching your delicious crisp meringues. Well, it is wonderful practice for your career as a housewife — and I love being a guinea-pig. However, any moment a pack of hungry females may burst in upon my privacy and that will be the last I will see of your toothsome goodies. That sounds rather grudging but I really do not mind. It is bread upon the waters. Many a time when my purse has been rather low and I've no condition to buy snacks, I have shared wonderful spreads with who ever happened to have a box from home. Army girls will take the shirt off your back but you can have theirs any time for the asking.

Must cease this nimiere et criere and get ready for drill. It is Tuesday night, so that means 'on the double.'

Bye for now.

"My poor fellow," said the old lady, "here is a shilling for you. Goodness gracious, it must be dreadful to be lame, but just think how much worse it would be if you were blind."

"Yer right lady," agreed the beggar. "When I was blind I was always getting counterfeit money."

June 10 Deadline For Meat Retailers

Retailers are reminded by the Prices Board that June 10 will mark the end of the two-week period during which they have been permitted to accumulate a stock of consumer coupons with which to replenish their supplies of meat. Since May 27 they have been allowed to buy meat from their suppliers without having to turn in coupons. But by June 10, when they will have a two-weeks' supply of consumer coupons on hand, they should be ready for the regular routine of meat rationing.

Rationing officials point out that at no time will retailers be required to turn in coupons when they order meat, because they will not know the exact weight or how many coupons will be required. Instead, they will pass on coupons to the supplier when they pay for meat, always provided that is not later than two weeks after the meat has been delivered.

Hitler's Programme For 1943 Badly Messed Up

Allied air activity in Western and Southern Europe, with the threat of a second land front pressing ever closer, shows signs of throwing Hitler's 1943 campaign plans out of gear.

With weeks of suitable weather now past, the expected summer offensive against Russia has not materialized, Hitler's one chance, as Allied experts viewed it, was to deliver a crippling blow to Russia as early as possible.

With Russia held in check, Hitler would be in a better position to meet an Allied blow in the west, particularly in the matter of air power and mechanized forces.

The suddenness and completeness of the Axis collapse in North Africa must have caught Hitler off balance, as it surprised even the Allies. It left a long stretch of Mediterranean Coast from the Pyrenees to the Aegean vulnerable to attack and difficult to defend at so many threatened points.

At the same time, the aerial offensive against Northwestern Europe and the vital war centres of the Reich itself has been stepped up to a point where it seems unlikely Germany can stay in the war very long without pulling in from the outer fronts and making a last-ditch stand in Central and Western Europe.

To abandon a final attempt to eliminate Russia this summer would be tantamount to a confession on Hitler's part that he has lost the war.

Prime Minister Churchill told Congress that Hitler was due this summer to make a third and supreme effort to destroy Russia's armed forces — not. It may be noted, to conquer more Russian territory. It is the task of the Allies, Mr. Churchill said, to take the pressure off Russia.

This the Allies are doing effectively by the air offensive, as was noted by Premier Stalin with obvious satisfaction as long ago as May 1. The offensive, it is safe to say, is not due to diminish. Allied bomber output has reached the point where the considerable losses entailed can be sustained and more than replaced as Germany is pulverized.

The upshot is that Hitler, his air strength dissipated and dwindling may have to try merely to hold on the Russian front. If he fails and the Russians begin a westward march, many students of German war psychology believe Hitler will go to any extreme to avert the over-running of Eastern and Central Europe by the Russians which is a prospect dreaded above all by Germany and her satellites.

The alternative might be to submit to Allied occupation by bargaining for the best terms possible under the main inducement Germany could offer — the great saving of Allied lives which would otherwise be expended in storming the European fortress.

FASTBALL LEAGUE OFFICIALLY OPENED LAST WEEK

Large Crowd Attend

Nearly 1,000 enthusiastic fans attended the official opening of the Napanee Fastball League at the Gibbard Memorial Park, on Wednesday evening last, when the Mowhawk Flyers from L. C. S. Deseronto defeated the local Gibbard sponsors 9-8 in a game that went into extra time of 14 to 6.

Prior to the game three Flights of Airmen formed up on the parking lot outside the diamond and headed by the Trenton Air Station Band, and paraded to the outfield and raised the flag pole, where the flag was raised. After the ceremony the airmen marched around the outfield and crossed in front of the grandstand, where Wing-Commander McDonald took the salute. In the visitors box, from which the salute was taken, were Mayor D. R. Hall and A. W. Poole.

Brief addresses on the value of entertainment and the wonderful opportunity of being able to enjoy a sport, were given by Mayor Hall and Wing Commander McDonald. Mr. W. Poole, on behalf of the Gibbard Furniture Shops, in the absence of Mr. J. MacPherson, officially turned the Gibbard Memorial park over to the Bayshore Fastball Association.

The speakers were introduced by H. J. Goodman, Y. M. C. A. representative at the Airport, and president of the league.

MAYOR HURLS FIRST BALL

To officially open the season, His Worship Mayor Hall vested himself in his coat and proceeded to the batter's box. Mr. Poole took on the duties of catcher while Wing Commander MacDonald, after several attempts, broke a club in his left hand, finally picked one to clip a fly high, and on the inside, for a foul fly.

THE GAME

Right from the first there was no doubt left in the minds of the multitude as to the outcome. Smart fielding and clever work with the bat in the pinches gave the R.C.A.F. a thick edge in the early stages of the Gibbard squad.

Costly errors on the part of the latter provided the visitors with a margin that could not be overcome, as strike-outs were chalked up by their pitchers. Three triples, two doubles, and also a homer by Polsey of the Air Force, comprised the hits for the winners, while the locals were held to two doubles and three singles.

The batteries were: for the Air Force, Pecket and Barnard; for Gibbards, Holmes and Rombough, Stone.

The umpires were: Corpl Bowman at the plate, Joe Killorin on bases.

Fined at Belleville For Violation of Wartime Regulations

When Clarence Jeffry, of West Huntingdon, Ont., was fined $50 and costs in Belleville police court on a charge of having violated the Wartime Leasehold Regulations in regard to the rental of premises, 931 Station Street, Belleville, Magistrate J. L. Lloyd remarked: "I find that smaller fines imposed in the past have been ignored, as property owners pay no attention to the rent control orders and therefore, the increase in the fine is deemed necessary as a warning to others."

At the same time Stanley McDonald, Shannonville, Ont., who pleaded guilty to selling potatoes at prices above the maximum fixed by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board was fined $50 and costs.

Four Ottawa merchants, Thos. Julien, Floyd Fisher, Mrs. Edith Pelletier and Isidore Braunstein, faced similar charges in regard to the price of potatoes in Cornwall police court and were fined $10 and costs each by Magistrate P. C. Bergeron, who also imposed a like fine upon Calvin C. Hope for having taken gasoline from a wrecked car contrary to the Oil Controller's regulations.

The Deseronto squad played particularly smart ball in the outfield, while the local team had several errors that put men on the bases.

The batteries were: Deseronto, Keech and Jones. 47th Battery, Youngs and Jones.

Umpires, Wade and Wilson at the plate; Smith on the bases.

SUPPORT SOLICITED GREEK RELIEF

The campaign for voluntary subscriptions for Greek War Relief is off to a good start in Napanee, and it is hoped that every citizen will show an interest in the worthy cause.

The proceeds of this fund will be used to buy food and medical supplies for starving Greece. The Canadian Red Cross will buy the supplies. A joint Commission, composed of representatives of the Swiss, Swedish and Greek Red Cross Societies in collaboration with the International Red Cross will distribute them.

We owe it to the Greek people to help them. Their victory over the Italians was the first turning point in the war. Their resistance to Hitler delayed his invasion of Russia, probably prevented an attack upon Syria, and gave us valuable time to prepare.

And Greece is still fighting!

TAG DAY, SATURDAY, JUNE 19TH

The Chairman of the Local Committee, Mr. Peter Ganas, proprietor of the Superior Restaurant, the Secretary, Mr. John Diamant, and the Treasurer, Mr. W. J. Wiggins, have arranged a Tag-Day to be held this Saturday, June 19th, by permission of the Committee appointed by the Mayor and Town Council. Give liberally to save Greek children from starvation.

Or cheques may be mailed direct to the National Headquarters, at 1507 Royal Bank Building, 360 St. James Street W., Montreal, Que. Cheques should be made payable to the Greek War Relief Fund.

LUMBER DEAL CAUSES ROW AT YARKER

Morris Donaldson, of the Township of Camden and Fred Jeffrey, of the village of Yarker, appeared in the Magistrate's Court on Monday afternoon last, charged with fighting in a public place and taking part in an affray. According to the evidence submitted it appeared that Donaldson had a small pile of used lumber that Jeffrey wanted to buy and the owner refused to sell it for less than $5.00 Jeffrey claimed he and Donaldson made a deal for $2.00 About three weeks after the affair was made, Donaldson returned to Yarker to find the lumber gone. On making some enquiries he was told Jeffrey had removed the lumber.

Donaldson, then wrote Jeffrey a letter stating that the lumber had to be paid for or he would take action. According to Jeffrey, the amount stated in the letter was $2.00 but Donaldson stated it was $5.00 The letter could not be found and as a result much talk in the court room ensued over the contents of the letter.

Quite a number of witnesses were called to give evidence in regard to the fight between the two accused men. Jeffrey claimed Donaldson stopped him on his way home in Yarker on June 3rd and demanded the money or he would lay a charge of theft against him. One word led to another and he claimed Donaldson struck him on the left temple, breaking the glasses and a piece of the lens had to be removed from the flesh round his eye.

A struggle ensued and it appears that Jeffrey also struck Donaldson, after they had been parted and broke his glasses and cutting his eye, which had to be stitched. The battery witnesses as well as the Crown's appeared to uphold Donaldson's story.

Some of the evidence was very conflicting One part was the story by Jeffrey that he and a car load of employees from Yarker were on their way to Kingston to work in the Aluminum Plant and on their way they stopped to give assistance to a party trying to start a stalled truck. Jeffrey claimed that it was at this moment on the road Donaldson was the driver or owner of the truck and after getting the vehicle started, told Donaldson that he would pay him the $2.00 if he would see him at the plant. In Donaldson's evidence it came out that Donaldson did not own or drive a truck at the time Jeffrey stated.

Counsel for Donaldson, Mr. H. McNeil, of Kingston, asked for a dismissal of the case on the lack of sufficient evidence to warrant conviction. The Magistrate and the Crown Attorney, K. S. Sham, asked that the Court's decision be deferred until the charge against Jeffrey was heard.

Practically the same evidence was submitted in this case, after summing up the points to be judged on, Mr. W. S. Herrington, counsel for Jeffrey, asked for a dismissal also of the charge against Jeffrey.

In passing the sentence of the court, Magistrate Garvin claimed that the evidence of Donaldson and the many cases led him to believe that Jeffrey was the responsible party and he was ordered him to pay a fine of $5.00 and costs or one month and dismissed the case of Donaldson.

Of our forefather's many virtues, Thrift was not the least.
They bought the things they needed not
And their savings they increased.
A lot of us get more money now
Than we ever got before;
But if we don't save, then we'll all go broke
When we finish this old war.
Spending it all on the stuff we don't need
For the sake of the new sensation
May give us a kick and make us feel good
But it sure is the start of inflation.

RED CROSS NEWS

Some time ago Miss Marian Henderson, of Selby, made a cot quilt and sent it to the Napanee Red Cross and eventually the quilt went to England. Marian who is only eleven years old had put her name on the quilt and a short while ago she received a letter from Mrs. Quennie Clark, an English girl who has married a Canadian soldier from London, Ont. and who had been given the quilt by the Canadian Red Cross. Mrs. Clark wrote a charming letter thanking Marian for the gift and praising the workmanship and saying that owing to the stringent rationing it was doubly welcome.

The attractive poster now in the window of the Red Cross workrooms was made by Miss Bette Mitchell of Tamworth, and given by her to the Red Cross.

Miss Ann Allinotte and Mrs. G. S. Reid were hostesses in the workrooms on Saturday afternoon.

The following articles were received from the units, this week: Colebrook and Yarker Women's Institute — 5 quilts and 3 shirts; Tamworth — 3 quilts and Red Cross quota work.

Roblin — 1 quilt.
Alter Well W. A. — 2 quilts.

Plans for the Red Cross Garden Party are completed and two interesting guests, Mrs. Fraser and Mrs. Mackenzie, chairman and vice-chairman of the Women's War Work Committee, will be present from Toronto.

PIONEER RESIDENT CELEBRATED 90TH ANNIVERSARY

Possesses Papers for Ship Family Came to America On

On Thursday last, June 10th, an auspicious event took place at the residence of the Misses McGreer, Bridge Street, when their brother Mr. Fletcher McGreer celebrated his ninetieth birthday. A small family party was given in his honour by his daughter, Mrs. Percy Chambers. The tea table was centred with a birthday cake and floral decorations of lily-of-the-valley and pink carnations. Although Mr. McGreer has had indifferent health for several years, he was able to join the guests for tea and receive congratulations. Greetings and gifts were received from numerous out of town friends and relatives. Mr. E. Darcy McGreer of Ottawa, and recently returned from a six-year sojourn in Japan, was present for the day.

Mr. McGreer was born at the McGreer residence on the Deseronto Road, ninety years ago and lived there during the early part of his life and for several years after his marriage to Valentine deMesie, of Montreal. About fifty years ago he moved to Montreal with his family and returned to reside in Napanee with his sisters, five years ago, following the decease of Mrs. McGreer. Mr. McGreer had a family of seven children, of whom five are living, the Misses Marguerite and Louise McGreer, who reside in Montreal, Mrs. Percy Chambers of Napanee, E. Darcy McGreer of the Department of External Affairs, Ottawa, and Eric McGreer, secretary-treasurer of the Board of Trade, Calgary. His two eldest sons, Stanton and Maurice, died on active service during the last war.

Mr. McGreer has several interesting documents in his possession, one being the copy of a certificate of registration for the ship in which his grandfather, Captain Gilbert McGreer sailed to this country and brought his family, in 1819. The certificate is dated at the Port of Coleraine, Ireland, the 21st May, 1816. The ship is described as being foreign built, having one deck and two masts, her length being 48 ft. 4 ins. breadth 16 ft. depth of hold 8 ft. 6, and weighing 66 tons. She is described as a square-sterned brig with no figure-head. The ship was originally a prize of war as the certificate mentions that she was prize No. 53 legally condemned and the duties and duties paid at Leith, May 30th, 1812.

Mr. McGreer also has a copy of "The Napanee Bee" dated March 14, 1832 as well as letters dated 1825 addressed to relatives living at Napanee Mills, as Napanee was then called.

FASTBALL LEAGUE OFFICIALLY OPENED LAST WEEK

Large Crowd Attend

Nearly 1,000 enthusiastic fans attended the official opening of the Bayshore Fastball League at the Dominion Memorial Park, on Wednesday evening last, when the Mowatt Flyers from L. T. S. Deseronto defeated the local Gibbard sponsored team to the tune of 14 to 6. Prior to the game three Flights of Airmen formed up on the parking lot outside the diamond and headed by the Trenton Air Station Brass Band, paraded to the outfield and led the flag-pole, where the flag was raised. After the ceremony the band marched around the outfield and crossed in front of the grandstand where Wing-Commander McDonald took the salute. In the visitors' box, from which the salutes were made, were Mayor D. R. Hall and W. W. Poole.

Brief addresses on the value of entertainment and the wonderful opportunity of being able to enjoy sport, were given by Mayor Hall and Wing Commander McDonald.

W. W. Poole, on behalf of the Gibbard Furniture Shops, in the absence of Mr. J. MacPherson, officially turned the Gibbard Memorial over to the Bayshore Fastball Association.

The speakers were introduced by R. H. J. Boodman, Y. M. C. A. representative at the Airport, and president of the league.

FOR HUBS FIRST BALL

To officially open the season, His Worship Mayor Hall vested himself in his coat and proceeded to the pitcher's box. Mr. Poole took on the duties of catcher while Wing Commander MacDonald, after several attempts to choose a club to suit him, finally picked one to clip it a high, and on the inside, for a foul flip.

THE GAME

Right from the first there was no doubt left in the minds of the spectators as to the outcome. Smart fielding and clever work with the bat on the pitcher gave the R.C.A.F. a thick edge in the early stages of the fastball squad.

Costly errors on the part of the hubs provided the visitors with a lead that could not be overcome. A strike-outs were chalked up by the pitchers. Three triples, two doubles, and also a homer by Poley of the Air Force, comprised the hits for the winners, while the locals had to be held to two doubles and three singles.

The batteries were: for the Air Force, Pecket and Bargman; for the hubs, Holmes and Rowbotham, Moore.

The umpires were: Corpl Bowman at the plate, Joe Killorin on bases.

PIONEER RESIDENT CELEBRATED 90TH ANNIVERSARY

Possesses Papers for Ship Family Came to America On

On Thursday last, June 10th, an auspicious event took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Bridge Street, when their brother Mr. Fletcher McGreer celebrated his ninetieth birthday. A small family party was given in his honour by his daughter, Mrs. Percy Chambers. The tea table was centred with a birthday cake and floral decorations of lily-of-the-valley and pink carnations. Although Mr. McGreer has had indifferent health for several years, he was able to join the guests for tea and receive congratulations. Greetings and gifts were received from numerous out of town friends and relatives. Mr. E. Dazey McGreer of Ottawa, and recently returned from a six-year sojourn in Japan, was present for the day.

Mr. McGreer was born at the McGreer residence on the Deseronto Road, ninety years ago and lived there during the early part of his life and for several years after his marriage to Valentine deMarie, of Montreal. About fifty years ago he moved to Montreal with his family and returned to reside in Napanee with his sisters, five years ago, following the decease of Mrs. McGreer. Mr. McGreer had a family of seven children, of whom five are living, the Misses Marguerite and Louise McGreer, who reside in Montreal, Mrs. Percy Chambers of Napanee, E. Dazey McGreer, of the Department of External Affairs, Ottawa, and Eric McGreer, secretary-treasurer of the Board of Trade, Calgary. His two eldest sons, Stanton and Maurice, died on active service during the last war.

Mr. McGreer has several interesting documents in his possession, one being the copy of a certificate of registration for the ship in which his grandfather, Captain Gilbert McGreer sailed to this country and brought his family, in 1810. The certificate is dated at the Port of Coleraine, Ireland, the 31st May, 1816. The ship is described as being foreign built, having one deck and two masts, her length being 48 ft. 4 ins. breadth 16 ft. depth of hold 8 ft. 6, and weighing 66 tons. She is described as a square-sterned brig with no figure-head. The ship was originally a prize of war as the certificate mentions that she was prize No. 53 legally condemned and the prize duties paid at Leith, dated 30th, 1812.

Mr. McGreer also has a copy of "The Napanee Bee" dated March 14, 1850 as well as letters dated 1825 addressed to relatives living at Napanee Mills, as Napanee was then called.

Fined at Belleville For Violation of Wartime Regulations

When Clarence Jeffry, of West Huntingdon, Ont., was fined $50 and costs in Belleville police court on a charge of having violated the Wartime Leasehold Regulations in regard to the rental of premises, 93½ Station Street, Belleville, Magistrate J. L. Lloyd remarked: "I find that smaller fines imposed in the past have been ignored, as property-owners pay no attention to the rent control orders and therefore, the increase in the fine is deemed necessary as a warning to others."

At the same time, Stanley McDonald, Shannonville, Ont., who pleaded guilty to selling potatoes at prices above the maximum fixed by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board was fined $50 and costs.

Four Chrysler merchants, Thos. Julien, Floyd Fisher, Mrs. Edith Parisien and Isidore Braunstein, faced similar charges in regard to the price of potatoes in Cornwall police court and were fined $10 and costs each by Magistrate P. C. Bergeron, who also imposed a like fine upon Calvin C. Hope for having taken gasoline from a wrecked car contrary to the Oil Controller's regulations.

DESERONTO EDGE 47TH BATTERY 4-3

On Friday night a fair crowd attended the second game of the season when the Red-Heads of Deseronto played the 47th Battery team and the visitors edged the local squad by a ringle counter, 4 to 3.

On the whole, the game was a good one. Smart pitching and fielding coupled with a few errors to make it interesting gave the fans their money's worth.

The Deseronto squad played particularly smart ball in the outfield, but the local team had several errors that put men on the bases.

The batteries were: Deseronto, Kreen and Jones — 47th Battery, Youngs and Jones.

Umpires, Wade and Wilson at the plate; Smith on the bases.

SUPPORT SOLICITED GREEK RELIEF

The campaign for voluntary subscriptions for Greek War Relief is off to a good start in Napanee, and it is hoped that every citizen will show an interest in the worthy cause.

The proceeds of this fund will be used to buy food and medical supplies for starving Greece. The Canadian Red Cross will buy the supplies. A joint Commission, composed of representatives of the Swiss, Swedish and Greek Red Cross Societies in collaboration with the International Red Cross will distribute them.

We owe it to the Greek people to help them. Their victory over the Italians was the first turning point in the war. Their resistance to Hitler delayed his invasion of Russia, probably prevented an attack upon Syria, and gave us valuable time to prepare.

And Greece is still fighting!

Magistrate's Court

On Thursday afternoon in the Magistrate's Court, presided over by Magistrate Garvin, of Kingston, Delmar Seales of the Township of Richmond paid a fine of $13 for careless driving.

Melville Norris, Kingston, who was remanded on May 27, on a charge of breaking and entering and the theft of ten automobile tires and four inner tubes, from the property of Robert McFarland, Napanee, also appeared, and was given a suspended sentence of two years. He was also ordered to pay the sum of $27 within one month, being the amount of money expended in returning him to Napanee from Germany. The magistrate in reviewing the case, warned the young man to mend his ways and any leniency shown by the court was due to the help the accused had given the Crown in prosecuting the case.

Players Hurt While Playing Softball

On Wednesday night during the game between the R. C. A. F. and Oshawa, Jack Cobbe, a member of the local team had the misfortune to fracture a finger, and on Friday evening, Hugh Brennan of the 47th Battery twisted his left ankle and tore the ligaments. Hugh will be out of the game for the season and will have to remain off his feet for several days.

William Wade, acting as umpire behind the plate on Friday night, was also injured. A foul tip struck him in the face and badly injured his nose.

Lose your temper and you lose your point.

LUMBER DEAL CAUSES ROW AT YARKER

Morris Donaldson, of the Township of Camden and Fred Jeffry, of the village of Yarker, appeared in the Magistrate's Court on Monday afternoon last, charged with fighting in a public place and taking part in an affray. According to the evidence submitted it appeared that Donaldson had a small pile of used lumber that Jeffrey wanted to buy and the owner refused to sell it for less than $5.00 Jeffrey claimed he and Donaldson made a deal for $5.00 and when he called after the offer was made, Donaldson returned to Yarker to find his lumber gone. On making some enquiries he was told Jeffrey had removed the lumber.

Donaldson then wrote Jeffrey a letter stating that the lumber had to be paid for or he would take action. According to Jeffrey, the amount stated in the letter was $2.00 but Donaldson stated it was $5.00 The letter could not be found and as a result much talk in the court room centred on the contents of the letter.

Quite a number of witnesses were called to give evidence in regard to the fight between the two accused men. Jeffrey claimed Donaldson stopped him on his way home in Yarker on June 3rd and demanded the money or he would lay a charge of theft against him. One word led to another and he claimed Donaldson struck him on the left temple, breaking his glasses and a piece of the lens had to be removed from the flesh round his eye. A struggle ensued and it appears that Jeffrey also struck Donaldson, after they had been parted and broke his glasses and cutting his eye, which had to be stitched. The latter's witnesses as well as Constable Cross appeared to uphold Donaldson's story.

Some of the evidence was very conflicting. One man was the story by Jeffrey that he and a car load of employees from Yarker were on their way to Kingston to work in the Aluminum Plant and on the way they stopped to give assistance to a party trying to start a stalled truck. Jeffrey claims that it was at this meeting on the road Donaldson was the driver or owner of the truck and after getting the vehicle started, told Donaldson that he would pay him the $2.00 if he would see him at the plant. In Donaldson's evidence it came out that Donaldson did not own or drive a truck at the time Jeffrey stated.

Counsel for Donaldson, Mr. H. McNeil, of Kingston, asked for a dismissal of the case on the lack of sufficient evidence to prove a conviction. The Magistrate and the Crown Attorney, K. S. Sham, asked that the Court's decision be deferred until the case had been heard.

Practically the same evidence was submitted in this case and after summing up the points to be judged on, Mr. W. Herrington, counsel for Jeffrey, asked for a dismissal also for the charge against Jeffrey.

In passing the sentence of the court, Magistrate Garvin claimed that the evidence of Donaldson and the many witnesses led him to believe that Jeffrey was the responsible party to the affray and ordered him to pay a fine of $5.00 and costs or one month, and dismissed the case of Donaldson.

Cf our forefather's many virtues, Thrift was not the least. They bought the things they needed most.

And their savings they increased. A lot of us get more money now Than we ever got before; But if we don't save, then we'll all go broke When we finish this old war. Spending it all on the stuff we don't need For the sake of the new sensation May cost us a kick and make us feel good But it sure is the start of inflation.

ANNUAL BAY OF QUINTE CONFERENCE HELD AT GANANOQUE

Attendance Not as Large as Last Session

The annual sessions of the Bay of Quinte Conference were held in the town of Gananoque from Tuesday June 1st to Friday, June 4th. The attendance was below average, probably caused by the shortage of help on the farm in the factories and in business.

The devotional speaker was Rev. Dr. Moss of New York City, and his messages were both interesting and inspiring. The Lay Association Banquet was a great success and everyone was delighted with the address of Miss Charlotte Whitton of Ottawa.

The Conference opened its sessions on Tuesday, July 1st, and finished its work Friday evening, at 6 p.m. Certain findings of the committees of Conference, especially those of industrial relations and social service and evangelism, have been widely discussed by editors of newspapers in Ontario.

The officers of the Conference for 1943-1944 are: President, Rev. George S. Easton, B.A., D.D., of Peterboro; Secretary, Rev. James E. Beckel, of Elgin, Ont.; Treasurer, Rev. J. E. Glover, B.A., of Hastings; Press Representative, Rev. Andrew McLauchlin, Toronto; and Chairman of the Settlement Committee, Rev. James Semple, B.A., Th.D. of Tweed.

The following pastoral change in this area, are: Robert W. McLauchlin, B.A., who was ordained on March 17th, goes to Bancroft; Rev. John Trumpour of Bridgewater, goes to Cannifton; while Rev. W. J. Davis of Cannifton is transferred out of the Conference. Rev. Henry A. Bird, B.A., of the Montreal - Ottawa Conference, comes to Deseronto; Rev. George C. McQuade, of Almonte, goes to Tweed, and Rev. H. L. Morrison, B.A., Th.D. of Tweed, goes to Almonte. Rev. J. T. Caswell, B.A., of Boblin, goes to Tamworth.

Arrangements were made to have the full ordination service in Bridge Street United Church, Belleville, on September 8th, at 8:00 p.m. It is expected that the next sessions of Conference will be held in Peterboro, in June, 1944.

Among those in attendance from Napanee, were Revs. C. M. Chidley, C. D. McLellan, A. C. McCallum, and Messrs. A. McGregor and C. Bexsmith.

RED CROSS NEWS

Some time ago Miss Marian Henderson, of Selby, made a coc quilt and sent it to the Napanee Red Cross and eventually the quilt went to England. Marian who is only eleven years old had put her name on the quilt and a short while ago she received a letter from Mrs. Quennie Clark, an English girl who has married a Canadian soldier from London, Ont. and who had been given the quilt by the Canadian Red Cross. Mrs. Clark wrote a charming letter thanking Marian for the gift and praising the workmanship and saying that owing to the stringent rationing it was doubly welcome.

The attractive poster now in the window of the Red Cross workrooms was made by Miss Bette Mitchell of Tamworth and given by her to the Red Cross.

DOWN UNDER

Australia and New Zealand are so far from the North American Continent that we are in danger of underestimating the part the people in those islands are playing in the present struggle. It is calamitous to lose sight of the Global character of the war. What takes place in China profundly affects the whole Allied situation. What happens in Russia, New Zealands and the islands of the seas, may have very far reaching effects in Canada and the United States. Dr. C. Bernard Cockett, from Australia, who has been travelling the United States on a goodwill tour, emphasized this in an interview he had with the editor, on Saturday. Dr. Cockett pointed out that when the Japanese attacked New Guinea, the fate of the Western World was in the balance. Had the Japanese succeeded in capturing New Guinea, nothing could have prevented them from getting Australia, because Australia had sent all her munitions to Britain, after Dunkirk, and all her men to theatres of war in the Middle East. Had New Guinea and Australia fallen into the hands of the Japanese, the Pacific lane would have been open and the attack could have been expected on the Western Coast of Canada and the United States. With the condition of our defenses at that time, it is not difficult to imagine what would have happened. So near was the danger to Australia that all women and children had their grips packed with a week's iron rations and were ready to be evacuated into the hill country at a moment's notice.

Two factors saved Australia. One was the friendliness of the natives of New Guinea. They were the carriers, and never once were they reduced by the Japanese, but continued loyal to the British cause and the British people. This is a tribute to the treatment which they received through the years from the hands of the Australians and the British people.

The other factor was the help of The United States. No wonder when we consider the desperate straights to which the Australians were reduced that they called frantically to the United States for help. That help was forthcoming and men of the United States Army, Navy and Air Forces, worked side by side with the Australians and the "Fuzzy Wuzzis," and together prevented the Japanese from getting New Guinea and hence Australia.

This friendliness between the United States and Australia is just an extension of the friendliness, which has existed between Canada and the United States for over a century. No doubt this binding of the peoples together in a joint enterprise, when the nations are at-war will cement the Anglo-Saxon Democracies together even more securely than ever. We have discovered that in face of a common danger, we can pool our material and spiritual forces. If that is carried over into the days of peace, there is nothing that will stop the Democracies from co-operating to the common good and making impossible any further resort to arms as a means of settling international differences.

ZOOT SUITS

We saw a couple of these recently, draped around a couple of 'teen-aged young men, in New York. Silly things they seemed, with drape shape, reat pleat, stuff cuffs. But we put it down to the overanxiety of 'teen-agers to attract attention and to do the startling. But, apparently there was something more to it than that; at any rate the wearing of the zoot suit seems to have become the symbol for a sort of immature recklessness. In Los Angeles the wearers seemed to be obsessed with hoodlumism.

There are those who maintain that the vandalisms and the recklessness of the zoot-suiters is a result of the war. There are more casualtjes in a war than those which appear in the casualty list. The home is, in many instances, one of these. With father, elder brother, in the forces, and with mother and elder sister in war industries, many and many young folk are deprived of the training so essentially a home obligation. Juvenile deliquency has jumped by leaps and bounds in this and other nations at war. The problem is taxing the ingenuity of the resources of churches, social agencies, and government officials. It may well be that the suiters are the products of these conditions. The situation is a challenge to all who are interested in the future welfare of the State. If this outer garb is but a symbol of the degeneracy, a reaction of youth, it may well constitute one of the most serious of our many war problems, and perhaps should not be laughed off at the exuberance of silly 'teenagers.

WARTIME ELECTIONS

Premier Nixon intends to act in a way that is consistent with his previous record. The Prime Minister of Ontario resigned from the Ontario Cabinet in protest against what he said was an unconstitutional method of selecting a premier. Now that Mr. Nixon has been chosen the Leader of the Ontario Liberal Party, in a properly called convention, and has assumed the Premiership, he intends to have an election to determine the will of the people.

Constitutionally the Prime Minister is on solid ground. The Democratic Nations are at war to preserve Democracy and to uphold the rights of the common man to choose his political leader. With that we are in full accord. But the holding of an election in war time is a difficult process. It is liable to abuses, and may not always give the soldier overseas the power to express an opinion, enlightened and unbiased. No body of men is more deserving of consideration than those in the Armed Forces. But the recording of a vote under war conditions is extremely difficult. In the First World War a Dominion election was held. No impartial observer or historian would care to uphold that experience as an example.

In the proposed election rumors have it that a proxy vote will be taken from the soldiers. Just how that will operate is not yet clear. Probably the soldier overseas will nominate someone here at home to cast a ballot on his behalf. That will be one way, and perhaps as fair a way as can be devised under the circumstances. Yet it is well known that there are political differences even within a family. So that the proxy vote may not be an accurate one. But probably in the law of averages it will work out as satisfactorily as any method that could be devised. At any rate, it ought not to be so easy to jerrymander the votes as it would be under some other method.

Much may depend on the conditions that prevail in the war areas. If our Canadian forces are heavily engaged at the time the election takes places, they will not be in any mood to discuss politics or to give consideration to the election. As for that, nobody can predict. It may just be that before a vote is called the whole interest of the nations will be so concentrated on the part our men are taking in overseas warfare, as to make the election little more than a formality.

MISSION TO MOSCOW

We do not often comment, in these columns, on the good or otherwise, of individual movies. But we were privileged, recently, to see a preview of "Mission to Moscow." It is a propaganda picture, let that be admitted. But it is one which will well repay anyone who can do so, to see it. In the United States, a battle of the pen has raged around this picture. The point of debate is whether the picture does justice to Trotsky. The picture shows Trotsky as the man who was instrumental in organizing Fifth Columnists in Russia, who were prepared to overthrow the Government by collaboration with Nazi Germany. The plot was nipped in the bud, and the leaders in it brought to trial and given the death penalty. Whether this is true to fact or not will probably not be known until historical documents are available in the years to come. We have inclined to the view that Trotsky and his followers were, to some extent at least, ready to sell out their country in the hope of gaining power.

But quite apart from this the picture gives a good vivid portrayal of the tremendous power of German militarism, and the extent to which it had seeped through every phase of German life. It also shows the difficulties which the Russians faced in making their case clear before the world. After seeing the picture we met a Norwegian who escaped Norway by way of Sweden and Russia. He spent two months in Russia and was glad to do so for he said: "There were so many conflicting reports about Russia in the Norwegian Press that I was glad to see it for myself, and to observe the tremendous strides the nation had taken towards socialization of all life.

What is true of the Norwegian Press is true of the rest of the whole world. For years it was impossible to get a clear picture of Russia. Probably because the media for presenting the pictures were not sympathetic to the experiment.

The President of the United States sent Mr. Davis to Russia to get the truth. He was not an orthodox ambassador. He saw not what he wanted to see, he saw everything seeable, and saw objectively. This he reported, and with the President's blessing published his reports in the book which has now been filmed. The picture not only presents the terrifying organization of German militarism, but it gives a thrilling portrayal of the spirit and power of the Russian people. It departs, somewhat, from the book, but perhaps not too seriously. It will help to place Russia in its proper light in the eyes of the common people.

This is essential in view of the struggle which will no doubt be resumed in certain quarters when the war is over; a struggle to frighten the Democracies by cries of socialism, bolshevism and anti-religion. We must not assume that struggle is over. And yet, The London Times, as well as leaders in Church and State, in Great Britain, are loudly proclaiming that the safety of the post-war world lies in the closest possible alliance between the United Nations now at war. It will be a tragedy of tragedies if, in the days to come, we forget the price which Russia has paid for her share in the cost of world freedom.

Rehabilitation Program Outline For Army Men

Ottawa, (C.P.) — Walter S. Woods, associate deputy minister of Pensions and National Health, told the House of Commons committee on post-war reconstruction that the post discharge re-establishment order is "the most far-reaching piece of rehabilitation legislation in existence anywhere."

He said benefits of the order are six-fold:

1 It provides an opportunity for any member of the forces, man or woman, to learn a trade or take a brush-up course on a skill they already possess;

2 It makes provision for those whose education was interrupted in university to resume their studies and with respect to those who are able to attain entry to a university within fifteen months after their discharge, it provides assistance in university training, maintenance and tuition fees for a period equivalent to the length of their service.

3 It provides for assistance in the way of maintenance grants to those engaged in business enterprise on their own including farming pending the time when returns come in adequate to their needs;

4 It makes provision for maintenance grants to those temporarily incapacitated from seeking work;

5 It provides for out of work benefits for those capable of working but for whom work is not available.

6 It provides for given credit to those who, upon discharge, enter insurable employment for the time they have spent in the service since July 1st, 1941.

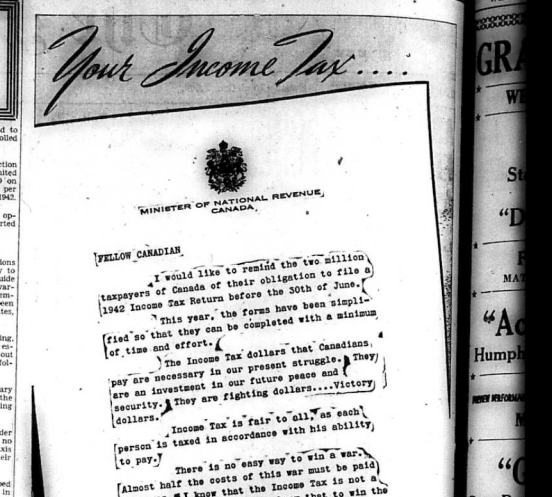
Formerly the post discharge re-establishment order did not make provision for the maintenance of children but by a recent amendment children now are provided for on the same scale as that used by the dependents' allowance board.

Barber Shop Humor Makes Nazis Gray

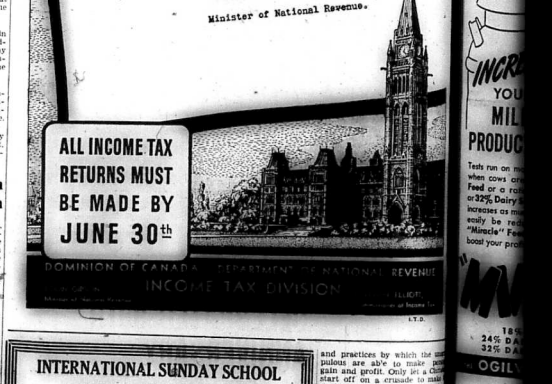
The barbers of occupied Holland are getting into the hair of the Nazis.

In the Hague, a Dutch Nazi, attached to a unit defending the coastal area, found a loyal Hollander were waiting for a shave. When the owner of the place asked: "Who is next" the loyalist replied with an ingratiating smile. "Well, I really am, but you had better attend to this gentleman first because the American and English may arrive any minute."

The Hitlerites, an underground newspaper reports, are changing because Dutch barbers are charging five cents above the normal price to shave Nazis — "because their faces are longer these days."



Your Income Tax....
MINISTER OF NATIONAL REVENUE, CANADA.
FELLOW CANADIAN,
I would like to remind the two million taxpayers of Canada of their obligation to file a 1942 Income Tax Return before the 30th of June.
This year, the forms have been simplified so that they can be completed with a minimum of time and effort.
The Income Tax dollars that Canadians pay are necessary in our present struggle. They are an investment in our future peace and security. They are fighting dollars....Victory dollars.
Income Tax is fair to all, as each person is taxed in accordance with his ability to pay.
There is no easy way to win a war. Almost half the costs of this war must be paid by taxes. I know that the Income Tax is not a pleasant burden, but I also know that to win the war, Canadians are willing to fulfil their obligations....to pay the price and to shoulder their responsibilities with the same unbeatable spirit as shown by those who have gone from our shores to fight.
Minister of National Revenue.



INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON, JUNE 20TH, 1943

"JOHN DESCRIBES TRUE CHRISTIANS"

Lesson Text: I John 2: 1-6; 3: 13-18; 4: 15-17

The Book from which the passages which form the basis of this week's lesson are taken, was written about the beginning of the second century of our era. Christianity was well on its way then. It had passed through the early critical days. But that is not to be taken to mean that all its critical days were over. Indeed, the history of our religion reveals the startling fact that Christianity is always facing critical situations. Today, no less than on other occasions, organized Christianity is on trial. The Church is facing a strange new world, and is confused, bewildered and in some areas, dejected and discouraged. New dynamic, powerful ideologies have arisen to challenge the Church's whole philosophy of life. To meet this challenge faith, courage and conviction are required. These qualities can be sustained as we go back to the source of our religion and learn from whence those who were making a new world two thousand years ago received the power to do so.

The problems with which we are faced are almost terrifying in their extent. "What can we do?" "How can we help?" These and similar questions are much on men's minds. Perhaps the ordinary Christian is overwhelmed by the magnitude of the problem, because of the habit of his way with looks at the world as a whole and neglect the part each individual plays in it. Both are necessary. But, a Christian must begin with himself.

The elder here is dealing with persons, giving individuals advice. "Don't sin," he says. Now that is not a popular injunction. We do not like the word sin. At least we do not like to talk or think about it as it relates to our actions and own spirit of life. "Don't sin," he says ,but it you do sin, then the writer says you are to recognize that sin need not be a permanent condition. God, through Christ, forgives. We do not need a long theological discussion as to how that process works. Too often in recent years we have spent our time trying to satisfy our intellects as to the way that forgiveness or other great Christian processes work. The time has come when we must leave much of this to the theorists and the scholars For those who would make their Christian experience real and vital all that is essential is that we accept at face value the promises of God--promises of a spend time satisfying our minds as to how electricity works, and yet we use it on a thousand occasions in our daily lives. Pew worry as to what keeps the aeroplane up and yet we use it when it becomes necessary to make a fast trip. If our faith is to become strong we must have convictions, convictions we will fight for and die for, religious convictions. We must believe in sin, in its devastating effect on human personality, and in the forgiveness of sin through Jesus Christ.

How can we find out the reality of Christ's promises? How do we proceed to test them out. The writer puts his finger on the spot when he says. "Hereby we know that we know Him if we keep His commandments." That's the test. We know God as we do the things He commands us. The writer uses strong language. He says that a person who says he knows God and does not keep His commandments, is a liar.

The writer who knows a good deal about both professed and unprofessed human nature, tells his hearers that they are not to be surprised if the world hates them. Of course it does. It hates those who, by their way of life, would overcome its methods and practices by which the multitudinous are ab'e to make money, gain and profit. Only let a Christian start off on a crusade to make the world a better place to live in, to apply the principles of Jesus to social situations, he will soon see that "the world" thinks He will be regarded as a crank, a fanatic, someone to be laughed and whose plans will come to power in the political affairs in British history, he pays with blood, sweat, toil and tears. It is not an easy task to which he calls Britain. Christianity does not. It is not an easy life to which it calls; too many have made it so. But the elder here and in many others know that the great dynamic of our Christian faith were not those of spiritual appeasement or compromise, but days when Christians had convictions and fought for them. Christianity is a war and not a peaceful peasement policy.

But John does not deal in abstractions only. He says that it must be a practical thing. The Christian faith is not something to preach about, and to talk about. It has practical implications. It is to use to praise about our creed, as the Greeks unless we do something with it. "Whosoever hath the world's goods, and beholdeth his brother in need, and shutteth up his compassion from him, how doth the love of God dwell in him? By their fruits ye shall know them."

"Whosoever shall confess that Jesus is the Son of God, abideth in him, and he in God." Yes! but confession is something more than an expression of the lips. It must spring from the heart. It must be watered and reinforced, and exemplified in works.
